SMALL BUSINESS OPPOSES GROSS TAX BILL

$3,300,000 HOUSING PROJECT FOR ATLANTA IS APPROVED

602 UNITS FIRST OF $14,250,000 SLUM CLEARANCE

$3-PER-ROOM RENT; INDIVIDUAL HOUSES

Will Be Situated Adjacent to Techwood; To Be Completed Within Year

Plans for the first section of Atlanta's new $14,250,000 slum clearance and housing program have met federal approval, and work on the project will begin at an early date, officials of the Atlanta Housing Authority announced yesterday.

The new buildings have been named Clark Howell Homes, in recognition of the work done by the late editor and president of The Constitution in helping make possible Techwood Homes, and the movement now under way in Atlanta to provide decent, modern homes for low income familes.

Six hundred and two dwelling units, containing approximately 2,475 rooms will be built at a total cost including land, of $3,300,000. Of the sum three million dollars is a federal loan. The remainder will be raised in Atlanta by the sale of bonds. Rents from the property will retire the indebtedness within 60 years, sponsors of the project said.

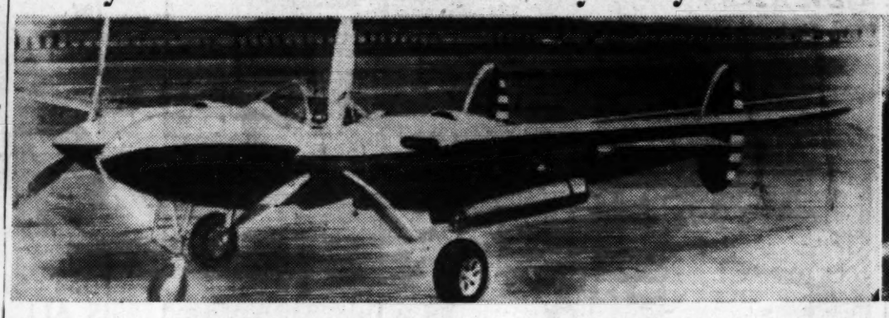

The new houses will be located on about 30 acres of land adjacent to Techwood Homes. The property is bounded roughly on the south, west and east by Mills, Luckie and Lovejoy streets, and continues northward almost to North avenue. A seven-and-a-half-acre recreation park for the use of the residents of both Techwood and the new homes will be provided.

The plans call for about 59 buildings, containing individual two-story homes, with front and back yards. Living quarters will be on the first floor, and bedrooms on the second. All construction will be fireproof.

Ranging in size from a few two-room units for aged couples to six-and-a-half-room houses for large families, the houses will be

Father Fought in War of 1775 When He Was Mere Lad.

By LEE FURMAN.
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

GIBSON, Ga., Feb. 11.—In a little farm house where time stood still, death came tonight to Georgia's last "real" daughter of the American Revolution—Mrs. Mary Pool Newsom, affectionately known as "Aunt Mary," whose father as a mere youth fought in the Colonial army in the struggle that won this nation independence.

The death of 89-year-old "Aunt Mary"—who a few years ago attended her first motion picture show and said she "didn't like it"—left but two other "real" daughters still living, one in Springfield, Vt. and the other in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Newsom lived on a tiny, two-acre farm about two miles north of here, in Glascock county. Her father, Henry Pool, who was a boy in his teens when he fought in the Revolutionary War, was 90 years old when "Aunt Mary," his youngest child, was born, April 15, 1850, to his third wife, Elender Hutchinson Pool.

Eldest Child 60.

At the time of Mrs. Newsom's birth, her father's eldest child by his first wife was 60 years old.

Georgia's actual Daughter of the Revolution had made little change in her mode of life since the far day when the family moved from their old home "beyond the crick" to the house in which she died, and in which she lived for more than 40 years.

As the world moved along at top speed down the years, time was unnoted within the bare-looking, one-story house, with its clean-swept, sandy front yard and neat vegetable garden.

Candles were lighted as dusk came, and an old wooden clock ticked loudly on the mantel shelf. In the kitchen, which was little more than a lean-to, "Aunt Mary" ladled out meal by the gourdsful, to bake hoecake over an ancient iron griddle, set over glowing coals in the fireplace.

Living simply and neighborly

LOWEST INTEREST FOR SCHOOL LOAN

Only Seven-Tenths of One Per Cent Charged by Collaborating Banks.

The $2,181,000 school loan made by the state, in which the four members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association are participating, was advanced on what is believed to be the lowest interest rate on record—seven-tenths of one per cent.

This was revealed yesterday as the clearing house association members sent the state checks for their share of the total. Governor Rivers immediately ordered the money applied on past-due salaries of the common school teachers and each of them will receive about six weeks' salary tomorrow or Tuesday.

PONTIFF IS BORNE TO SAINT PETER'S IN SAD PROCESSION

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11.—(AP) Pope Pius XI, a tiny figure in the vast, still basilica of St. Peter, the Apostle, lay in death tonight in the chapel of the sacrament, lighted by 24 candles and watched by four noble guards.

His body had been borne from the Sistine chapel to St. Peter's with rich, medieval ceremony on the very day he had expected to address the Italian bishops on the 10th anniversary of the Lateran accord, the pact between the church and Italian state which gave him the name of "The Pope of the Conciliation."

The removal of his bier from the Sistine chapel on the shoulders of eight attendants was made in a reverent and picturesque procession within the walls of the Vatican.

To Kiss Slipper.

The eight bearers of the bier lowered it on the funeral couch so that the body rested inside the wrought iron gates of the chapel but with the feet outside so the faithful later could approach and kiss the Pope's slipper.

The transfer followed the first general congregation of the cardinals, the princes of the church, in preparation for the conclave which will elect the next Pontiff.

Thirty-one of the 62 cardinals attended the session, held while prince and peasant were passing by the Pontiff's body in the Sistine chapel, and swore to observe the constitution which governs the period until a new Pope shall have been selected.

Ring Is Broken.

In today's first general congregation, the late Pontiff's fisherman's ring, symbol of papal power, was broken and a new one will be given his successor soon after the election.

As the cardinals met, the Italian bishops who had been summoned by the Pope to hear him speak on the anniversary of the Lateran accord were given the contents of his intended address.

Vatican authorities believed it unlikely that the communication would be made public unless the next Pope ordered it.

It was explained that the congregation of cardinals normally would not sanction publication, lest it embarrass the policy of the new Pontiff.

Ecclesiastical circles expressed the belief that the message dealt with the effect of the new Fascist racial laws on the church's rights in matrimony under the concordat.

Thousands of the faithful, some of whom at best caught only glimpses of the ceremony today, tomorrow will have a chance to pay their homage to the Pontiff in the basilica and to kiss his slippered foot.

Nine Funeral Services.

The first of nine funeral services also will be held tomorrow in St. Peter's, where burial will take place Wednesday.

Several thousand persons visited the bier this morning in the Sistine chapel.

U. S. Chiefs in Polio War Laud Lead Set by Georgia

State Fund Again To Top Nation, O'Connor and Morgan Told by State Workers at Victory Dinner, Ending 1939 Drive.

Predictions that Georgia in 1939 has exceeded its 1938 national record for contributions to the fight against infantile paralysis were made last night as the highest officers of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis outlined the battle yet to be waged and highly praised Georgians and the late Clark Howell Sr. for "blazing the trail" in this war against disease.

Developments included:

1—W. V. Crowley, Georgia treasurer, announced that more than $48,000 already has been received and Governor Rivers predicted the fund in this state will be approximately $60,000 when all counties report.

2—The Georgia Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., was immediately set up as a permanent organization, with the state and district chairmen as a board of trustees to administer one-half the fund which will remain in Georgia.

3—The chief executive revealed an application for increased power for the state's radio station, WGST, donated by the late Mr. Howell, has been made and that a daily program of an hour will be devoted to the infantile paralysis battle, if it is granted.

4—Basil O'Connor, former law partner of President Roosevelt, who is chairman of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and Keith Morgan, national director, heaped praise upon Georgia and Georgians for leading the way in the developments which have brought about the national foundation.

Prominent Georgians from every part of the state gathered at a downtown hotel to participate in the annual Victory Dinner and to hear the addresses of the national officers of the foundation last night.

Continued Effort.

He emphasized the long years and studious research that will be necessary before scientists can find the cure for this crippling disease. As an example, he pointed out the 40 years that elapsed between the discovery of the cause of yellow fever and the development of the positive preventative.

Progress is being made, however, in the treatment after the disease has struck, he pointed out, remarking upon the invention of the iron lung for cases of respiratory paralysis.

"I first visited Georgia 12 years ago with the President," he said. "Then Warm Springs was little more than a deserted resort. The abandoned hotel's roof let the

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The United States Department of Commerce in its weekly resume of business conditions throughout the country today reported a continuation of the favorable trend which has been evident in Atlanta and Georgia generally during recent months.

Based upon reports obtained from the Federal Reserve Bank, the department said that retail sales in Atlanta for the week ending February 4 showed an increase of more than 28 per cent above the previous week and better than 6 per cent above the same week a year ago.

Following is the department's brief summary of business conditions found in Atlanta last week:

Federal Reserve Bank reported retail sales in Atlanta for week ended February 4 increased 28.1 per cent above previous week and 6.3 per cent above same week last year. Clearings, $52,000,000; last year, $47,600,000.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Patricia Morison, brunette actress, looked fetching enough in her stylish hat but it obscured her vision, and as a result she stepped into a moving truck. Her injuries were painful but not serious, a police report said.

SECRET WAR PLANE CRASHES IN TREES; FASTEST IN WORLD

America's Bid for Air Supremacy Cracks Up at End of Flashing Hop Across U. S. in 8 Hours.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—A new secret twin-motor army pursuit monoplane called the "world's fastest" warplane, crashed into a tree on the edge of Mitchel field on Long Island tonight at the end of a flashing near-record transcontinental test flight.

The pilot and sole occupant of the 400-mile-an-hour ship, was Lieutenant Ben S. Kelsey, crack test flyer, who was saved from serious injury by the plane's all-steel cabin.

When Kelsey arrived over the army field here after averaging 350 miles an hour, he circled for a landing, going about 150 miles an hour.

He apparently overshot the field, observers said, and zoomed the motors to pick up speed and altitude. The right motor appeared to choke, sending him into a steep right turn.

Shears Tree Tops.

As Kelsey cut the throttle again, the plane slipped down and sheared off the tops of some trees bordering the field, the undercarriage caught in a 35-foot tree, and the plane plunged down into a sand pit on the Cold Stream golf course.

Bystanders pulled Kelsey out of the wreckage. He was taken to a hospital with cuts on one eye and one hand, and suffering from shock. He was released after an examination.

Colonel James Chaney, field commandant, called an inquiry board into session immediately.

DECLARES IMPOST WILL SPREAD RUIN, COST MANY JOBS

LEVY WOULD TOTAL '33 1-3 PER CENT'

Administration Leaders Will Meet Tonight To Seek Revenue Revision.

A caustic attack on the proposed one per cent gross income tax was launched yesterday by two large business associations while legislative leaders were preparing for a conference tonight to draft a program for early tax revision action in the Georgia general assembly.

Drawing the battle lines against the proposed gross income tax were the Georgia Mercantile Association and the Georgia Automobile Dealers' Association, which flayed the "gross income tax" as a misnomer for a "gross receipts tax"; predicted it would mean ruin for little businessmen; cause more unemployment and urged that the administration put into practice economies recommended by the house investigating committee.

Third of Profit.

The associations charged the proposed tax is in effect a tax of 33 1-3 per cent on successful merchants and Georgia businessmen.

They reasoned that successful businesses operate on a margin of profit of 3 per cent—the 1 per cent tax claiming exactly one-third of their net profit. The tax would further cut into the income of businesses not so successful, they stated, adding a business that operated at a loss would have to pay, too.

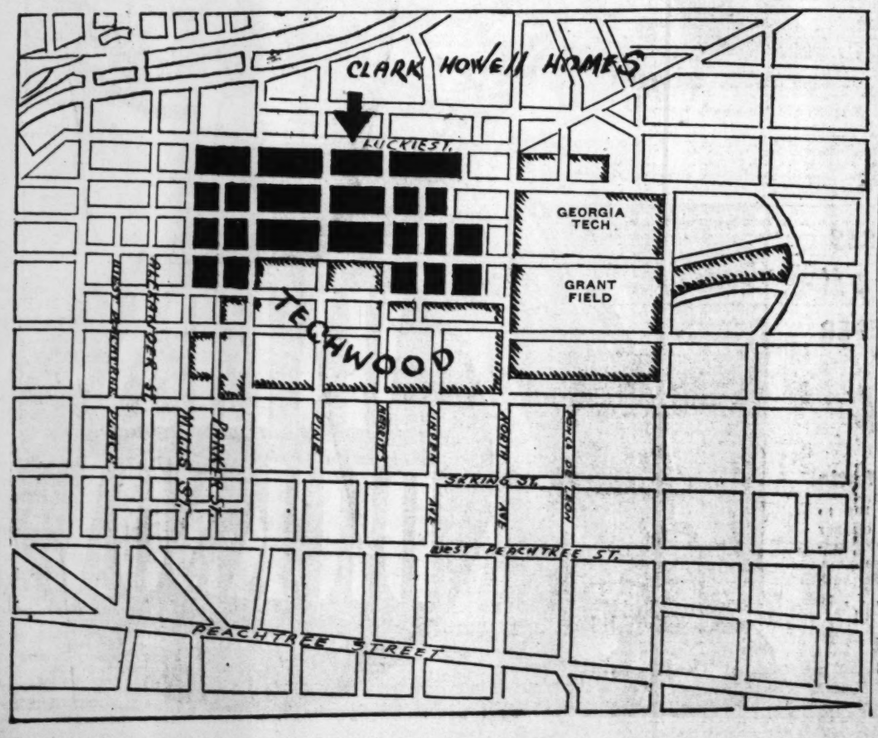

Meanwhile, the majority of legislators were at home over the week end, listening to the views of the voters about the gross income tax bill, the proposed 4 per cent sales tax and the bill levying a 20 per cent tax on all types of amusements and soft drinks.

When they reconvene tomorrow morning they will have before them printed reports of the economy committee urging revisions and consolidations in the school department to save $269,000 annually.

Tonight, Governor Rivers, members of the all-important ways and means committee, leaders of the

DRY FORCES ADOPT 5-POINT PROGRAM

Call for Immediate Severance of Liquor Revenue From Schools.

A five-point program opposing legal liquor was adopted last week by the central committee of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia, W. W. Gaines, chairman of the group, announced yesterday.

The committeemen pledged:

1. To renew emphasis upon the moral and spiritual aspects of the use of alcohol, calling upon ministers to "sound this note in no uncertain terms; 2, to support the house bill to outlaw liquor; 3, to urge regulation and control of whisky in the 120 counties which are still legally dry; 4, to call for the immediate severance of liquor revenue from the school system; and 5, to seek election of a Governor and legislature committed to "the cause of prohibition."

Gaines said the committeemen all agreed that repeal has been a failure, both as to revenue and control.

DRIVERS WARNED AGAINST OLD TAGS

Arrests Will Be Made Thursday, Says Hornsby.

Operators of automobiles with 1938 tags will be subject to arrest in Atlanta beginning next Thursday morning, Police Chief M. A. Hornsby indicated yesterday in general orders to members of the department.

Hornsby instructed his men not to arrest drivers for operating with 1938 tags until that day.

Time for obtaining tags without penalty has been extended to Wednesday, February 15, by act of the legislature with Governor Rivers' signature of approval.

The plays originally were scheduled for Friday, Mrs. Slaton said, but the Studio Club changed the date to give its members an opportunity to see Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, who will be in Atlanta February 23 and 24.

"Sweet and Twenty," directed by George Bush," and "Bedside Manners," directed by C. K. Pullen, are the plays.

Committee from the "House of Progress Exposition," sponsored by The Constitution, selecting a site in Chelsea Heights on which to remove the cottage to be built on the city auditorium stage at the conclusion of the home show. The home is to be sold to the highest bidder, and the price accepted will include the lot. Left to right, Alvin Roger Moore, architect; Foster B. Steward, director of the exposition, and F. C. Hale, secretary of the Atlanta Lumber and Building Supply Associaton.

Highest Bidder To Get Model Home At 'House of Progress Exposition'

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

When the "House of Progress Exposition," to be opened on March 13 at the city auditorium, closes its week's showing on the night of March 18, the beautiful five-room bungalow on the stage, through which thousands will pass, will go into possession of some fortunate bidder.

The home is to be disposed of through sealed bids to the highest bidder, the bid accepted to include a beautiful lot in Chelsea Heights with the bungalow removed to the lot and everything completed and ready for occupancy.

The lot, 65x167, already has been selected in the pretty wooded subdivision, a fast-developing section north of Ponce de Leon, a short distance beyond the Venetian Club. In this tract streets are already laid out and paved; water, sewerage, gas and electricity are availabie, and all other modern conveniences are at hand. Already a number of attractive five to seven-room cottages have been erected there. The lot selected is well shaded, facing on Kathryn avenue, extending through to Chelsea drive.

Chelsea Heights is being developed by Homes Beautiful, Inc., which is furnishing the lot, while the contract for erecting the home on the stage and its removal to Chelsea Heights has been awarded to Hardin & Ramsey, Inc., local builders. Cecil Ramsey will have personal charge of its erection.

The designs for the home were drawn by Architect Alvin Roger Moore, member of the A. I. A. The stage bungalow will contain five full-sized rooms and bath, the building to be 52 feet long and 32 feet deep. The living room will be 20x16, the bedroom 13x12, the dining room 14x12, the kitchen 12x10, with a roomy and modern bathroom, and a front porch 26x 8 1-2 feet. When removed to the subdivision lot, and this is included in the accepted bid, another bedroom will be added, the home furnished with modern heating, the best of wiring, and every feature desired in an up-to-date home will be put into it.

The cottage being built to meet the approving gaze of thousands of visitors to the home show will, of necessity, have to come up to the very highest standard of workmanship and be built of top-notch materials. These materials are being supplied, in the main, by the various exhibitors at the exposition, and they are vying with each other as to the quality of material furnished. This phase of the erection of the home, which is to be built in complete sections; easily removable, is proof sufficient that the winning bidder will get for his money a home above the average in workmanship and material.

Cash not Likely.

In its purchase it is quite likely that no cash consideration will be necessary from the bidder. Already a tentative loan has been arranged for from FHA that may, under some conditions, take care of the payments necessary, leaving only monthly, long-term notes to meet. This is not definitely assured, but is a favorable possibility. The home on the stage will be tastily furnished, but its furnishings will not be included in the sale.

Monroe's Landscape and Nursery Company, who will handle all the beautiful landscaping and garden effects for the home on the stage and for the Exposition generally, also will do whatever landscaping is necessary on the subdivision lot to make it attractive to the eye and in keeping with the beauty of the home.

The "House of Progress Exposition" is sponsored by The Constitution, and will be staged under the personal direction of Foster B. Steward, who has successfully handled a number of trade expositions here and in other cities.

Space Contracted.

The date of the home show—March 13 to 18—is ideal for such an exposition. Real estate men, lumber dealers, builders, heating concerns, and others interested in home building, as well as dealers in home furnishings and decorations, are much interested in the coming exposition. About 50 of the 60 spaces allotted to exhibitors already have been contracted for, as well as the entire space in Taft Hall.

Atlanta school students in the higher grades are becoming enthused over the miniature home building contest, in which 12 cash prizes are offered for the best and most original homes entered. More than 200 students in the various schools are already at work preparing their model miniature homes.

Special entertainment each afternoon and evening, beautiful flower gardens and exceptional landscaping and decorations will give to the interior of the city auditorium an artistic and genuinely attractive appearance.

Only a short time remains to complete the rental of all available space for exhibitors.

VOTERS ARE COLD TO F. D. R.'S EFFORT TO CHANGE PARTY

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Copyright, 1939.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—President Roosevelt's crusade to "liberalize" the Democratic party is making scant headway today—in fact the tendency within his party at the present time is in the opposite direction.

This is indicated in a score of surveys of the Democratic rank and file conducted over the past few months by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

President Roosevelt has been struggling for more than a year to draw a sharp distinction between "liberals" and "conservatives" and to convert voters in his own party to the strictly liberal point of view.

But the President is apparently facing odds even in his own party. Nation-wide Institute studies show that during the past six months a growing number of rank and file Democrats have become tired of further New Deal reforms and favor a more moderate course in the next two years.

Lack Candidate.

Coupled with the growth of conservative sentiment among the men and women who make up the Democratic party is the failure of the New Dealers—thus far—to develop a strong popular candidate to follow President Roosevelt in 1940.

The Institute's latest survey of Democratic eligibles The Constitution, December 2 or 3, showed that the most popular candidates for the nomination at that time were conservatives or middle-of-the-roaders. The strongest out-and-out New Dealers were Senator Alben Barkley and Attorney General Frank Murphy—named seventh and eighth respectively in the list of those most popular—while Harry Hopkins, another Presidential favorite, was ninth. The leaders were:

1. Vice President John N. Garner.
2. Secretary of State Cordell Hull.
3. Senator Bennett Clark.
4. Postmaster General James A. Farley.
5. Governor Herbert H. Lehman.
6. Philippine Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.
7. Senator Alben Barkley.
8. Attorney General Frank Murphy.
9. Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins.
10. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Meanwhile Institute surveys show that the number of Democrats who favor a "conservative" type of candidate is increasing, despite the President's emphasis on "liberalism." In July, just before Mr. Roosevelt commenced his unsuccessful "purge" campaign against Senators Tydings, George and "Cotton Ed" Smith, the Institute asked a carefully selected cross-section of Democratic voters in all parts of the country:

"If President Roosevelt is not a candidate for re-election in 1940, would you prefer a conservative type of candidate or a New Dealer?"

A NEW DEALER 63%

But the latest Institute survey on the same question, published today for the first time, shows a trend to the right:

A CONSERVATIVE ... 41%
A NEW DEALER 59%

On the basis of the 1936 election, this would indicate a "New Deal wing of approximately 16 1-4 million Democrats today as compared with about 11½ "conservatives."

The Institute has investigated Democratic party sentiment from many angles, and one of the most interesting experiments, just completed, attempted to define the President's liberal-conservative issue in terms of New Dealers and conservatives in the Democratic party. The survey shows that three typical "conservatives" — Garner, Clark, and Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia — are slightly more popular with Democratic voters as a group than three typical "New Dealers" — Hopkins, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Senator Barkley.

The vote is:

Garner, Clark or Byrd . 52%
Hopkins, Wallace or Barkley 48%

BOBBY JONES.

TO HONOR 'BOBBY' FOR CHEST RESULT

A "certificate of distinguished achievement" will be given Robert Tyre Jones by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce for his work as head of the 1938 Community Chest campaign. It will be presented formally by Alvin B. Cates, president, at a dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club tomorrow night. Preston S. Arkwright will be toastmaster. The official bodies of the chamber and of the Community Chest have been invited to attend.

Cates explained yesterday the award had no connection with Jones' long-time contribution to Atlanta's fame as the home of the world's "grand slam" champion of golf.

"The achievement recognized specifically in Bob Jones' selection for the honor was his leadership as general chairman of the Atlanta Community Chest campaign last fall when, for the first time in eight years, the announced goal of the campaign was exceeded," said Cates.

"The results of Mr. Jones' achievement in this, the most difficult civic responsibility he has undertaken since his retirement from competitive sports, are so important in so many ways that the certificate has been voted to him virtually by city-wide popular demand, the first time the chamber of commerce has honored a citizen in this manner since 1935.

Served City's Needy.

"The most tangible result of his achievement, and the one which we feel inspired Bob Jones to give so indefatigably of his time, his labor and his own resources of every kind for more than two months last fall, will be expressed day by day throughout this year in a broader service to all the variety of human needs in Atlanta through the 32 agencies supported by the Community Chest.

"Another result, important though intangible, is the stimulus to Atlanta's civic self-respect, to the feeling of confidence that Atlanta again is capable of uniting to make a success of a big job because, under Bob Jones' leadership, Atlanta did accomplish in a big way the job we had tried and tried again to do for so many years."

Jones' name is listed in the organization's "hall of fame" with 27 other citizens honored in the last 18 years for outstanding contributions to Atlanta's welfare made over and above the citizen's normal "line of duty."

Nine have died since they received the award. They include Lewis H. Beck, Forrest Adair, William Candler, William Lawson Peel, Hollins Randolph, Amos G. Rhodes, Mrs. J. M. High, J. Carroll Payne and Eugene Black.

Living holders of the certificate include Dr. Michael Hoke, Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, J. M. B. Hoxsey, Cator Woolford, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, Ivan Allen, Thomas K. Glenn, Mayor William B. Hartsfield, Mrs. Nora Earnest Northern, J. J. Haverty, E. Allison Thornwell, Bishop Warren A. Candler, Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, Rev. Dr. Herman L. Turner, John A. Boykin, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson and Juliam V. Boehm.

JEFFERSON NAMES BRYAN TO BOARD

Atlanta Attorney Re-elected by Stockholders.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 11. Judge Shepard Bryan, of Atlanta, counsel of the organization for more than 30 years, was re-elected a director of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company at a stockholders' meeting held here. Judge Bryan is well known in life insurance circles all over the country, being counsel for many large life, fire and casualty insurance companies.

Julian Price, president of the company, pointed out at the meeting that the financial condition of the Jefferson Standard is the best in its history, assets at the close of 1938 being in excess of $80,000,000, while new life insurance sales for the year totaled $46,000,000.

President Price reported that during 1938 the company's assets gained $6,814,000, an increase of $567,000 each month during the year. Payments to beneficiaries and policyholders during the year were placed at $6,000,000, bringing the total amount paid out since the organization of the company 32 years ago to $105,000,000. Total insurance now in force amounts to $385,000,000, the highest in the history of the company, it was reported.

PROBERS PREPARE TO KILL CHARGES AGAINST PERKINS

Impeachment Proceedings Fail; Thomas Assails Secretary for Her 'Gentle Slap' at Reds.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Some members predicted flatly today that the house judiciary committee would exonerate Secretary Perkins of charges of wilfully failing to enforce the immigration laws.

Both Democrats and Republicans said privately that the only question remaining before the committee was whether to close a preliminary investigation immediately with a vote of confidence in her administration. Nothing has been presented to them, they added, to warrant impeachment as proposed in a resolution by Representative Thomas, Republican, New Jersey.

"Unless something turns up pretty soon in the way of a lead for us to follow, my guess is that the only thing for us to do is to report back to the house that our investigation has produced nothing," said one committeeman, who declined use of his name.

Thomas accused Miss Perkins, Gerald D. Reilly, labor department solicitor, and James L. Houghteling, immigration commissioner, of "high crimes and misdemeanors" for not pressing deportation charges against Harry Bridges, CIO west coast leader, on grounds that he was an alien Communist.

Secretary Perkins went before a closed session of the judiciary committee Wednesday to repeat the department's contention that the Bridges proceedings had to be suspended until the supreme court announces a decision in a case involving the question whether membership in the Communist party is adequate grounds for expulsion. That litigation involved Joseph Strecker, Hot Springs, Ark.

The secretary's statement to the committee that she was not in accord with the principles of the Communist party, that she did not share Communistic economic or political views and that she regarded Communistic tactics as an "impediment" to this government, brought a tart retort from Thomas.

In a statement made public today, he said: "She doesn't hate it, she doesn't abhor it, she dislikes certain features of it." He said she had only given Communism a "gentle slap on the wrist."

Thomas said Miss Perkins' defense of her administration led him to the conclusion that she and her friends "have been the best friends that this Communist alien (Bridges) could possibly have had."

Salvationist Advances

MAJOR R. B. FITTON.

FITTON IS MADE HOLZ SUCCESSOR

Becomes Young People's Head for Army.

Appointments of Major Richard B. Fitton as young people's secretary for the southern territory to succeed the late Brigadier Ernest R. Holz, and of Major Edward Laity, commanding officer at Mobile, Ala., to succeed Major Fitton as men's chief side officer and general secretary of the Southern Training College here, were announced yesterday by Lieutenant Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, southern territorial commander of the Salvation Army.

Major Fitton, in addition to serving at the training college for the past two years, held appointments as young people's and divisional secretary for North and South Carolina, Texas and south Atlantic divisions. His work with young people which has been uniformly successful according to Commissioner Pugmire qualifies him in every way for the important post to which he has been assigned.

Major Laity has commanded several of the larger Army corps and has also served as young people's secretary for the gulf division.

600 HIGH SCHOOLS INVITED BY EMORY

More than 600 high schools in the southeast have been invited to enter the sixth annual Emory University alumni scholarship contest, according to Robert F. Whitaker, executive secretary of the sponsoring association.

To be awarded on a geographical basis, $300 scholarships to Emory will go to 20 winning students. In the event a winner does not accept the scholarship for his region, it will be offered to the second highest student.

Contestants will each take a "basic preparation test" in the early spring. Students with superior scores on the examination, which includes the various fields of preparatory school work, will be awarded "certificates of excellence" by President Harvey W. Cox, of Emory.

Examinations will be held simultaneously in all schools, Whitaker said, and will be administered by an official in the school or by an Emory alumnus in the community.

States to be represented with entrants include Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South Carolina, North Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia. Last year there were more than 1,000 students competing.

10,000 Catholics In Atlanta Mourn Death of Pius XI

Atlanta's 10,000 Catholics yesterday joined those of the faith throughout the world in mourning the death of Pope Pius XI, and special services were planned in mourning-decked edifices of the city.

The local churches were draped with black both inside and outside.

Today was to have been a day of joy and celebration. It was to have been the 17th anniversary of the coronation of the beloved leader of the church. Instead it will be a day of sorrow, and the celebration services will be converted into memorials in honor of Pius XI.

Father Joseph Moylan, of the Co-Cathedral of Christ the King, announced that a high solemn mass will be held at 11:45 o'clock this morning at the church and invited the public to attend.

Father James T. Reilly, of Sacred Heart, announced a high mass at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, and Monseignor Joseph F. Croke, of St. Anthony's, planned memorials.

Father J. R. Smith, of Immaculate Conception, said members of his congregation would join others in their memorials but that he planned none at the church.

Services will be held at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Anthony's, in West End.

'My Greatest Thrill,' Says Quads' Mother

GALVESTON, Texas, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. W. E. Badgett, mother of Jeraldine, Jeanette, Joyce and Joan, looked at the quadruplets through a glass panel for the first time today, held the hand of her husband, brushed away a tear or two and remarked "they are smaller than I thought they would be."

The quads were born prematurely on February 1. Mrs. Badgett said she was extremely happy but added:

"I don't know what I would have done if there had been any more than four."

She remained in front of the door of the quads' room for 20 minutes.

"It was the greatest thrill of my life," the mother admitted.

Two U. S. Cardinals Sail for Papal Vote

Mundelein Races to Pier Just Before Sailing; O'Connell Twice Before Has Arrived Too Late.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Two of the three United States Cardinals were on the high seas tonight bound for Rome and participation in the solemn ceremonies attendant upon the selection of a successor to the late Pope Pius XI.

George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, boarded the Italian liner Rex about 30 minutes before sailing this afternoon after a whirlwind journey from Florida, where he was on vacation. He was whisked from the station to the pier behind a police escort.

Motors to New York.

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, motored to New York, accompanied by the Rev. Salvator M. Burgio, and went to his cabin in the Rex immediately upon his arrival at 10:30 a. m.

William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, is aboard the Cunard liner Brittanic, which is scheduled to arrive here Monday from Nassau, the Bahamas.

He has booked passage Wednesday on the Italian liner Saturnia. The Saturnia is due to reach Gibraltar at noon, February 26, the same day the Neptunia, bearing South American cardinals, arrives there.

If Cardinal O'Connell can make connections with the Neptunia—and Italian line officials said he could—the prelate will arrive in Rome in time to participate in the election.

Is Third Race.

Twice before—once after the death of Pope Pius X in 1914 and again after the death of Pope Benedictine XV in 1922—Cardinal O'Connell made hurried trips to Rome and each time arrived after a new Pope had been selected.

The balloting for a new Pope must begin not less than 15 nor more than 18 days after the death of the pontiff. It was believed the ceremonies would not start until February 28, the last day possible under church law, in order to give American cardinals time to reach Rome.

Surrounded by gold candelabras and a guard of honor, Pope Pius' body is shown as it rested in state in the Sistine chapel yesterday before it was transferred in a solemn procession to St. Peter's. There, resting on the funeral couch for the nine separate services, the Holy Father's feet were placed in a position where thousands of devout may kiss his slippers.

with Kelsey present. The findings were expected to be kept secret and sent to Washington. Kelsey left soon afterwards for Washington in an army plane.

Kelsey took off from March Field, California, at 9:12 a. m. (E. S. T.), stopped briefly at Amarillo, Texas, and Dayton, Ohio, and arrived here at 4:57 p. m.

The National Aeronautic Association at Washington announced that it had officially timed Kelsey's flight at 7 hours, 45 minutes and 36 seconds.

The association said he made the fastest flying time for a cross-country flight on record, but that his two stops made his elapsed time 17 minutes, 11 seconds slower than the record set by Howard Hughes in 1937. Kelsey's flying time was 7 hours and 36 seconds.

Kelsey's flying distance was estimated at 2,400 miles. The route followed by Hughes was 2,445 miles.

Two Weeks Old.

The plane was a new Lockheed, the army's first twin-engined pursuit plane, completed at the Lockheed Burbank plant two weeks ago.

It was an all-metal single-seater, with stratosphere operating equipment, tricycle undercarriage, and super-high lift devices.

It was designed to carry a nest of high-powered machine guns, but had none today. Its designation was XP-38.

MYSTERY SHIP TOPS BEST IN EUROPE

The sleek twin-motor, low-wing monoplane was declared to be capable of speeds approaching or exceeding 400 miles an hour. It can show its tail insignia to the fastest craft thus far developed in Germany, Italy, England or elsewhere, informed military circles asserted confidently.

The XP-38 was described as one of several spectacular craft figuring in the $300,000,000 administration program to expand the air corps to 5,500 planes.

The use of two stream-lined 1,000-horsepower motors, Air Corps Chief General Arnold said, "opens up new horizons of performance probably unattainable by nations banking solely on single-engine arrangement."

Germany's Messerschmidt and Britain's Spit-Fire fighters, believed to be their fastest, are single-motor craft.

MOREHOUSE TO MARK FOUNDER'S DAY FEB. 18

Founder's Day at Morehouse College will be observed on February 18 and 19 by alumni, students and faculty of the college on the 72d anniversary of this leading southern institution for negro young men, according to an announcement yesterday from the office of Acting President Charles D. Hubert. A number of events are being planned for the celebration, which will be climaxed on Sunday, February 19, with the annual Founder's Day address in Sale Hill Chapel, on the Morehouse campus.

In keeping with the tradition of inviting an outstanding Morehouse graduate to be the Founder's Day speaker, the committee this year has selected for the high honor, Dr. James M. Nabrit, executive secretary to the president of Howard University in Washington.

lic for five hours except for a brief period when Crown Prince Umberto and other Italian dignitaries went to pray beside the body.

Soon after the Crown Prince had left, the third son of former King Alfonso of Spain, Juan, prince of the Asturias, visited the chapel to pay his tribute.

Thousands of persons began collecting in the great St. Peter's square at midday in advance of the removal of the Pope's body to St. Peter's.

By the time that the bells of the basilica began tolling at 3 p. m. as a sign that the procession had started, an estimated 50,000 persons were crowded outside the grilled portico gate.

Few Get Glimpse.

Only a few hundred were able to glimpse the ceremony through gates and later through the basilica's doorway.

Red-robed cardinals, purple-robed bishops, members of the papal court in ecclesiastical robes or rich uniforms, and diplomats and other dignitaries in formal dress marched in the procession.

So, too, did a simple priest as a symbol of humility and so did servants who had waited on the Pope. Among them was his thin and old valet, Chevalier Giovanni Malvestiti.

CONGRESS TO ADJOURN IN TRIBUTE TO PIUS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Congress leaders arranged today to have both house and senate adjourn Monday after a brief session, as tribute of respect to the late Pope Pius XI.

House leaders also will ask adoption of a resolution by Representative Shanley, Democrat, Connecticut, extending the sympathy of congress to "the millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world on the loss of this outstanding leader."

In the senate, Majority Leader Barkley will make an address praising the Pope's work in behalf of peace.

During the day, Catholic University here announced that as a memorial to the Pope it was instituting a "national crusade for God in government." The Right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector, said American Catholics had been invited to pledge themselves to "defend the republic against atheistic propaganda" and to "maintain respect for rightly constituted authority."

PRINCE JOSEPH II WILL VISIT BERLIN

Liechteinstein Anshluss With Germany Discounted.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 11. (UP)—Informed sources close to Prince Francis Joseph II of Liechenstein admitted today that the ruler of that tiny principality planned to visit Berlin this month but denied that an anschluss with Germany was in prospect.

Reports that the Prince and German authorities were negotiating to bring the 75-square-mile monarchy within the German reich were distributed by the London Exchange Telegraph Agency.

The Exchange Telegraph reported that Prince Francis Joseph holds estates in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria and that pressure was being brought upon him for an anschluss under threat of confiscation of those estates.

DER FUEHRER COOL TO ITALY'S CLAMOR

Hitler Reported 'Urgently' Suggesting That Duce Temper Colony Cries.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Sources close to the Nazi government reported tonight that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had "urgently suggested" that Italy make only moderate demands against France in Premier Benito Mussolini's campaign for fulfillment of Fascist aspirations in the Mediterranean.

The final text of Italy's demands against France probably will be conveyed to Hitler after next Wednesday's meeting of the Fascist grand council at Rome, diplomatic circles said.

Hitler was described as urging Mussolini to confine his claims to such points as can be met by the French government, which has already declared it would refuse to consider any territorial demands. He also was said to have suggested that Mussolini act in a manner that would avoid arousing antagonism of Britain or France and thus result in a flat rejection of Italy's claims.

Such action by Mussolini would limit his demands to such points as a customs arrangement at Djibouti and participation in administration and profits of the Suez canal.

At the same time, the Italian press upset diplomatic predictions that the death of Pope Pius would slow down the anti-French campaign by renewing its attacks through the extremist political weekly, Relazioni Internazionali, at Rome, which demanded that Italian claims on Nice, Corsica and Tunisia must be settled or "France will be destroyed by arms by the Italian people."

He said probably only Franklin D. Roosevelt dreamed of what could be developed at Warm Springs in the fight against this disease.

Howell's Aid Lauded.

Morgan recalled that in 1933 the late Mr. Howell helped to encourage Georgians to give the nickels and dimes and quarters for the construction of Georgia Hall and Warm Springs and he stated that this Georgia campaign among the people for small amounts really was the origin of the March of Dimes and the national celebration of the President's birthday.

Treasurer Crowley reported that $48,793 have been donated thus far, with 12 more counties to be counted. This led the Governor, who presided at the dinner, to predict that the total will exceed last year's sum of approximately $55,000.

Rivers and L. T. (Pat) Gillen, state director, explained that one-half the money raised in Georgia will be spent in this state for the benefit of crippled children here. The incorporated foundation was set up to administer the money in Georgia.

Gillen last night turned over to Director Morgan a check for $20,000 as part of Georgia's contributions to the fund. The state is the first to present its check to the Foundation this year, the director said.

Charlton county and its school system again this year won the trophy for exceeding their quotas.

Newly appointed Attorney General Ellis Arnall presented the county trophy while Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, presented the school cup.

Mrs. Frank Dennis, co-chairman of the women's division, gave the individual school cup to the Chicopee Mills school, whose 200 pupils contributed $223 to the fund.

Mrs. Robin Wood, co-chairman of the women's division, and Mrs. E. D. Rivers presented the college cup to Piedmont College, whose 200 students gave $130.

LINCOLN'S WORDS ON LABOR CITED AS 'TUNED' TO TODAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Many of Abraham Lincoln's precepts on the relationship between capital and labor were pictured today on the eve of the 130th anniversary of his birth by William T. Hutchinson, a University of Chicago historian, as "accurately tuned" to world conditions of today. In support of his views, the professor cited Lincoln's statement of 1864 addressed to the workingmen of New York as epitomizing Linoln's capital-labor philosophy. At that time Lincoln said:

"The strongest bond of human sympathy, outside the family relations, should be one uniting all working people of all nations and tongues and kindreds.

"Nor should this lead to war upon property or the owners of property. Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable, and is a positive good to the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise.

"Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example insuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

Junior Legislature of High School Seniors To Be Formed in State

By VALCO LYLE.

A junior legislature for Georgia, modeled after the present general assembly and having as its aim the practical education of senior high school students in affairs of government, will be inaugurated this spring under auspices of the Georgia High School Association.

Announcement of the novel plan was made Saturday by Thomas J. Collins, a member of the history department faculty at Tech High school in Atlanta, who originated the idea more than two years ago and who recently was named head of a 25-man committee of teachers and educators to direct the project.

The plan calls for election of 257 senior high school students—the same number that constitutes the house and senate of the regular legislature—who will convene as a model legislature in Atlanta for a period of one week. The tentative date of the assembly has been set as the week of May 8.

The student legislators will take up such current problems as taxation, relief and public welfare, socialized medicine, and pensions for school teachers. A list of from six to ten items for the junior assembly to consider will be worked out by the committee, which will hold its next meeting in Atlanta March 24 in connection with the annual convention of the Georgia Education Association.

Collins, a close student of governmental affairs, has worked for more than two years in acquainting school officials and others with the project. A committee from the executive board of the Georgia High School Association was appointed nearly a year ago to decide whether to sponsor the project. The committee met last fall and unanimously adopted the plan.

Details, however, were not worked out until last Saturday when the committee named by the High School Association met. The committee includes, besides Professor Collins, the president and secretary of the ten district divisions of the High School Association and the following persons, most of whom served on the original executive board committee:

Junior senators will be elected by the high school students in the county that now furnishes the senator for its district. The county representatives—one for each two unit votes allowed that county—will be elected by popular vote of the high school students of the county.

The student campaigns for the offices, the financing of their trip and one-week stay in Atlanta, and chaperonage will be under supervision of the president and secretary of the congressional district divisions of the High School Association and the various city and county school officials.

Ciudad Truillo To Fete Former Rulers--Marines

CIUDADTRUJILLO, D. R., Feb. 11.—(UP)—Thousands of visitors poured into the capital tonight as the Dominican Republic prepared elaborate ceremonies to honor the armed forces which once governed it—the United States marine corps.

Oldest city in the West Indies and scene of many revolutions which culminated in establishment of an American military government supported by the marines in 1916, Ciudad Trujillo was colorfully decorated as officials prepared to rename one of the city's main streets "Avenue U. S. Marine Corps" to commemorate rescue work performed by the marines after the hurricane which struck the island republic on September 3, 1930.

Representing the United States marines, which turned over control of the country to an elected government in July, 1924, Brigadier General W. P. Upshut, U. S. M. C., arrived today aboard the destroyer Texas. An American marine airplane squadron of 44 planes will maneuver over the capital during ceremonies tomorrow.

3 NAZI WRITERS ARRESTED IN PARIS

Expulsion Ordered for 26 German Residents.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Three German newspaper correspondents were arrested and expulsion orders were issued against 26 German residents of Paris today for reasons police refused to disclose.

The police said only that the newspaper correspondents were arrested for "activities in no way related to their professional duties." Those in custody included the correspondent of the Berlin newspaper Boersenzeitung and his wife. The Paris office of Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung was raided in connection with the arrests.

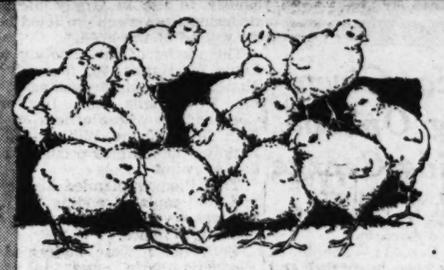

German Ambassador Count Johannes von Welczeck discussed the affair with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, who told the Nazi representative he would keep him informed of the progress of the investigation.

and the Fulton National Bank are participating in the loan.

Arrangements for the loan and the seven-tenths of one per cent interest rate were effected in a series of conferences between Governor Rivers, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and Ryburn G. Clay, president of the clearing house association. Until details of the loan were announced it was understood Mr. Clay was acting only for his bank, the Fulton National.

In obtaining the loan at the low rate, Governor Rivers saved approximately $8,500. In a special appropriation bill the general assembly limited the interest rate to 1 1-2 per cent and set up $16,500 for the interest. The lower rate requires interest of only $8,000.

Under the terms of the agreement with the banks the money is to be repaid by July 1.

Democracies Curry Franco's Favor

Britain and France Expected To Recognize Regime This Week; Rebels Turn on Valencia

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—British and French recognition of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime as the legal government of Spain apparently is the next move of the democracies to sway the Spanish Insurgents from Fascist and Nazi influence.

Informed quarters expressed belief tonight that such recognition might be granted next week.

Two developments were seen here as indications that Franco desires British-French friendship despite his obligations to Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

First, he accepted use of the British cruiser Devonshire for sending his emissary to the strategic island of Minorca to negotiate its surrender by the government to exclusively Spanish forces.

Second, he agreed to keep Italian troops away from Catalonia's frontier with France when his armies routed the last government forces from northeast Spain and took up positions along the French-Spanish border.

Informed diplomats in London said the planes that bombed Minorca definitely were identified as Italian. They expressed belief that the Italians may have staged the bombardment without Franco's approval to show dislike of the British-aided negotiations and to frustrate Minorca's surrender to exclusively Spanish troops.

INSURGENTS TURN AGAINST VALENCIA

PERPIGNAN, France (Near the Spanish Frontier), Feb. 11.—(AP)—The Spanish Insurgents, conquerors of Catalonia, turned their military might today against Valencia as peace efforts in the Spanish civil war marked time and the government stuck to its refusal to surrender.

Seven ministers flew from France to join government Premier Juan Negrin, who was reported from Alicante, Spain, to have quarreled with military commanders in the bare fourth of the country his troops still hold.

"PEOPLE'S TRIBUNAL" JUDGE DOOM'D

PERPIGNAN, French-Spanish Frontier, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Edouard Barriobero, who presided over the dreaded Loyalist "people's tribunal" at Barcelona, was sentenced to death and shot by the Nationalists, it was reported here today.

"If I could start life anew I would renounce all violence," he was quoted as saying.

"REFUGEE" BABIES CARRIED IN SUITCASES

ARGELES SUR MER, France, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Three Spanish refugee mothers carried their babies into the Argeles concentration camp in suitcases today in order to stay with their husbands.

The "suitcase babies" exemplified various ruses employed by Spanish women trying to keep their families together despite French rules separating them.

'Robust—Of Good Sense'

America Given Wrong Opinion Of King George

By H. J. J. SARGINT.

(Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.—People in London have been surprised and puzzled by an article published in the current issue of Scribner's Magazine, in which the plans of the British royal visit to America are discussed with some frankness.

The article says that public opinion in the United States largely believes that the Duke of Windsor is still the rightful owner of the British throne and that George VI is a colorless and weak personality on probation in the public mind of Britain, as well as of the United States.

Far from it, George VI is neither colorless nor weak. He expresses his views in the most robust language very often and he is full of good sense.

If David had remained on the throne, with or without a wife, he would have been at loggerheads with his ministers sooner or later. And most Britons believe that, if the present King of England lives long enough, he will develop in much the same man as his father George V was—a sound, level-headed sovereign—with a high sense of duty, and with a considerable amount of political influence behind the scenes.

The question of a reconciliation between the Duke of Windsor and the other members of the royal family does not arise, because they have never fallen out.

Nothing prevents Windsor from coming back to England, but, also, nothing is less remote than the grant of the title of "Royal Highness" to the Duchess. As one high officer of state said to this writer: "If the lady were to be given the title of Royal Highness, there would have been no earthly reason for not granting her the title of 'Majesty' and placing her on the throne by the side of Edward VIII. That eventuality even Edward VIII did not ask for."

How far the press of Canada and the United States will be allowed access to the King and Queen is still a matter for conjecture. It should be remembered that the King and Queen are going to make a state visit to Washington. The King will appear in the federal capital in the full uniform of a field marshal or of an admiral of the fleet. He will not drop in at the White House and visit the President as one country gentleman would visit another.

A bucket of shucked corn dumped into a pen of hogs owned by M. S. Tharrington of Rocky Mount, N. C., struck a large animal on the head and injured it so badly it had to be killed.

NOTES DISCOVERED ON OFFICE SLAYER

One of Bloodstained Missives Quotes Bible in Justification for Shooting.

Police disclosed yesterday two bloodstained notes were found in the pockets of a discharged employe who shot to death the manager of an insurance company and then turned the weapon on himself Friday.

As police studied the notes, their writer, D. A. Pledger, 42, of a Tenth street address, clung tenaciously to life in Grady hospital suffering from a self-inflicted bullet wound of the head.

The victim of the shooting was Louie M. Hanks, 30, formerly of Montgomery, state manager of the Praetorians Life Insurance Company, in whose offices on the fifth floor of the William-Oliver building the gunplay occurred Friday morning.

That Pledger planned his action and contemplated ending his own life was revealed by the notes, according to police.

Both notes were addressed to Pledger's wife, and indicated plainly that Pledger, whom Hanks replaced about three months ago as manager and who subsequently left the employ of the company, brooded over loss of his post.

GEORGIA'S LAST REAL D. A. R. DIES

Mrs. Newsom looked with disdain upon modern ways and housekeeping conveniences. She died of infirmities of old age, and with memories of honors from the D. A. R. organization and many annual remembrances from its membership throughout the country.

Her sister, Miss Sarah Pool, another "real" daughter of the Revolution, died in 1936, at the age of 91. Both had been honored by gifts of gold spoons with the D. A. R. insignia inscribed on them. The local Nancy Hart chapter of the D. A. R. honored "Aunt Mary" annually, and each Christmas she received gifts and cards from members in many states.

"We never thought much about pa fightin' in the Revolution," said "Aunt Mary," in an interview a few years ago, as she shifted her black sateen bonnet a couple of inches.

"I don't remember him at all. He died when I was two years old and ma never talked about him much to the children, and we don't know nothin' about him except that he married three times and fought in the war.

"No, we never did think much about it until the day Dr. Yarbrough came by, lookin' up the Pool family. He likes to trace up things like that."

Mrs. Newsom referred to Dr. H. Y. Yarbrough, of Milledgeville, whose wife in 1926 was regent of the Nancy Hart chapter of the D. A. R. at Milledgeville.

"Well, we got the family Bible," continued Mrs. Newsom, "and when Dr. Yarbrough saw that pa was born in England in 1759 he got right excited. He reckoned right then that Pa must have fought in the Revolution, but we don't know yet just how he found out that he did and where he fought and all. Ma never told us nothin' about it."

But "how Dr. Yarbrough did it" is easily explained. After his visit with Mrs. Newsom and her sister, Dr. Yarbrough recounted the interview to his wife, who immediately began in investigation. Records in Washington proved that Henry Pool, of Warren county, Georgia, had fought through most of the Revolutionary War.

He saw service in many campaigns—the Battle of Kettle Creek, near Washington, Ga., and in Kings Mountain, Camden and Cowpens, in the South Carolina campaigns.

Mrs. Newsom's father was married first in England to Miss Susan Ratchlet. Two children were born to them. A short time later, Susan died. Pool then married Miss Mary Hutchinson, who also died a short time later. It was then that Pool wooed and won Mary's sister, Elender, who became the mother of "Aunt Mary."

All the children by the two previous marriages died so long ago that "Aunt Mary" remembered little about them.

At the close of the Revolution, Pool returned to Georgia. In 1827 he drew land in the Warren county land lottery.

He built a house, small but sturdy, and lived there with his third wife and his ten children. With the exception of "Aunt Mary" and her sister, the children died in the 20 years between 1830 and 1850.

In 1865, at the age of 15, "Aunt Mary" became the bride of Arch Newsom, a young Confederate soldier, who had a farm in Glascock county, about five miles from the Pool grant. Several years later, fire destroyed the old home.

One by one death took their kinfolk and only the two sisters were left on the Newsom land.

Referring to her girlhood, "Aunt Mary" said:

"There weren't no good times. Young folks were too busy workin' all week and walkin' to church on Sunday. Even the courtin' was done between times. But no frolickin'. Girls didn't even go buggy ridin' with boys unless the old folks went along, too.

"The old folks stayed with the couples that was sparkin', and courtin' was done in the open."

Of life generally in those far-off days, Mrs. Newsom shook her head and said:

"Life was mighty hard, that's what it was. When I was a little girl I had one doll, made out of rags. When I was a little older, I was set to spinning and weaving and knitting."

Of the days of the War Between the States, she said:

"We left our house and hid and when we got back we found the Yankees had ransacked the place and poured our last bushel of corn all over the floor. Afterwards, we couldn't get nothin' for a long time. I wouldn't like to live that over."

"Aunt Mary" was never fond of traveling. Probably the longest journey of her life—50 miles—was a trip once to Milledgeville. To her last day she spoke of ox carts and two-horse wagons, and she looked with disdain upon modern ways and modern inventions.

"I've got my Bible, a new one that ain't wore out, and I don't need nothin' else," she was fond of saying.

In June, 1932, through efforts of Mrs. J. L. Beeson, state historian of the Georgia D. A. R., the grave of Henry Pool was found in Warren county, and a marker was unveiled.

"Aunt Mary" and her sister were honor guests, and unveiled the marker, in the presence of more than 400 persons, many of them prominent in the state.

"Aunt Mary" recently was listed in the D. A. R. honor roll of "real" daughters, with Mrs. Caroline P. Randall, of Springfield, Vt., and Mrs. Annie K. Gregory, of Williamsport, Pa.

The funeral will be held tomorrow.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

VOL. LXXI. No. 245. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 12, 1939. M SECTION

Preview-Reception Set for Wednesday

The Fifth District of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. John D. Evans, president, opens the art season at a preview-reception Wednesday at 3 o'clock at the Biltmore hotel, according to Miss McLeord Beck, art chairman of the Fifth District and Atlanta Woman's Club.

The presidents of the fifth district clubs and the art chairman will preview the pictures of Frank Hartley Anderson and Martha Fort Anderson at the Biltmore. Immediately following a pilgrimage has been planned to the High Museum of Art to view the opening of the exhibit by T. Currie-Bell, portrait painter of Edinburgh and London.

Starting with the Anderson display there will be other exhibits under the auspices of the fifth district and the direct sponsorship of a club in the district. Other exhibitions will include those of the Atlanta Camera Club, paintings by Edward Shorter, vice president of the Southern States Art League, and displays to be announced later by Miss Beck. Both the exhibitions at the Biltmore and the High Museum will be on public display, free of charge, through February 28.

Frank Hartley Anderson has studied art at Harvard and in Chicago; Martha Fort Anderson, in Boston, Paris and New York. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have recently made their home in Atlanta on The Prado, having come here from Birmingham, Ala.

Several years before her marriage, Martha Fort Anderson founded the art department at the University of Alabama where she taught. Illustrating stories for Forum Magazine and Dodd, Mead & Company, she also has painted murals with her husband for the government.

Mr. Anderson, city planner, architect and print maker, originated the Southern Print Makers, whose exhibit of 1939 will be shown for the first time in this display. The New York Society of Etchers chose 100 prints to travel abroad and of these the Anderson pieces were sold to the Swedish government. Mr. Anderson will also show a number of interesting portraits, one of which is that of "Bishop H. J. Mikell."

At the reception the receiving line will include the following: Miss Minnia Beck, Mrs. John D. Evans, Mrs. Calvin Shelverton, Mrs. George Hinman, and representing the Atlanta Art Association: Mrs. Walter C. Hill and Mrs. Lewis P. Skidmore. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will be the honored guests.

Mrs. Alva Maxwell will pour coffee. Those serving will be members of the Atlanta Woman's Club fine arts committee, of which Mrs. Calvin Shelverton is chairman. Mesdames Warren Foster, Margaret Harrower Stillwell, H. G. Groves, A. Sewell and M. M. Padgett will complete the list of those serving.

Miss Briggs Weds Paul Robert Hayes.

NORTH AUGUSTA, S. C., Feb. 11.—Miss Theolu Briggs and Paul Robert Hayes, of Winston-Salem, N. C., were married Saturday at noon, at a ceremony solemnized in Sacred Heart church, Augusta, by Rev. John E. O'Donoghue.

Maid of honor was Miss Frances Weeks, of Augusta. Miss Madeline Hayes, of Winston-Salem; Miss Verla Lee Ackerman, of Savannah, and Miss Anna Eargle, of Augusta, were bridesmaids.

Joseph Rhyne, of Charlotte, was the groom's best man, and Herman Kennedy, of Atlanta; James Bonnyman, of Cincinnati and Augusta, and W. P. Crown, of Columbia, were ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, a princess model, fashioned with a train. Her tulle veil was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and bride roses.

For traveling the bride wore a gown of royal blue print, with a topcoat of beige wool, trimmed with fox.

Mrs. Hayes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Briggs. She received her education at the University of South Carolina, and is a member of Chi Omega sorority. The past year she taught English at an American school in Guatemala, Central America.

Mr. Hayes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Hayes, of Winston-Salem. He graduated from the University of North Carolina with a degree of engineering and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity.

He is associated with the Blue Diamond Coal Company, of Knoxville, with headquarters in Augusta.

Miss Stevens Weds Brannon Hancock.

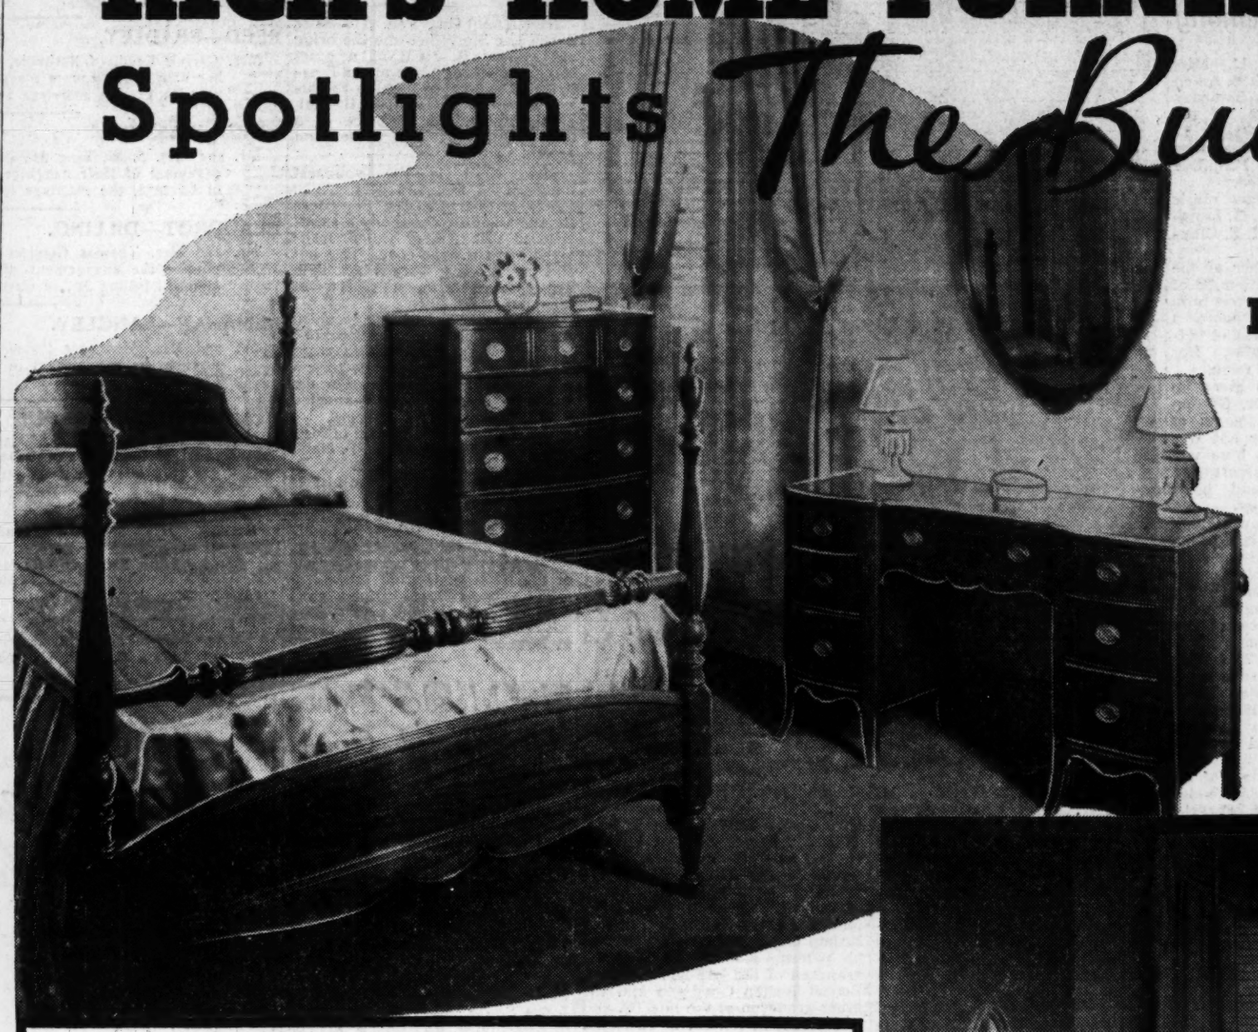

WINDER, Ga., Feb. 11.—The marriage of Miss Carol Elizabeth Stevens and Brannon Hancock was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's parents at Demorest Friday evening, January 10. The Rev. Allen Jones performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the couple. Miss Barbara Stevens, of Danielsville, only sister of the bride, was the only attendant.

With the invention of printing, in 1452, began a new era in human progress. For the first time, the learning of the ages and the new thoughts of the times became available to the common people.

But printing also brought new great demands on the eyes. Most of the laws of nature were violated. Eyes were brought indoors, used for exacting tasks, usually under poor man-made light. The result—widespread breakdown. 70% of all adult eyes of today are faulty. Are you sure about yours? "Guessing" may prove costly.

World War Comrades Reunited Through Story Told at Dinner

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Dr. and Mrs. Grady Poole entertained at dinner last week at their home in Druid Hills, among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cole and Mr. and Mrs. Cook Cromwell. During dinner the conversation veered from the happenings of the day to interesting experiences of the past.

Raymond mentioned his term of service with the Ninetieth Air Squadron of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, back in 1918. Whereupon Cook, who also served in the air force of the A. E. F., inquired if he had ever happened to be at the Second Aviation Instruction Center in Tours, France.

"Yes, I was in the observation school there," Raymond replied, "and one of the most harrowing experiences of my flying career happened there."

Then he told this story:

"One October afternoon I was instructed to go out on a half-hour observation mission, and was given the number of the plane I was to take. When I reached the ship, the pilot was already in the cockpit tuning up the motor. I climbed in and we took off.

"We flew north and when we neared Monai, a terrible thing happened. There was a terrific noise which sounded as if the entire motor was falling out, and a piece of metal flew over the ship. We were using a French Sopwith plane, and we later discovered that the rocker-arm of the valve on the outside of the cylinder had blown off and cut a hole in the cowl surrounding the rotary motor. Which explains the terrific noise.

"The result was that the motor went dead, and we were forced to land. I had a good pilot and he made a dead stick landing in a wheat field without a mishap. Of course, in those days we were sent up without even the comfort of a parachute, so you can imagine how hopeless it seemed when that motor went dead. I had never seen the pilot before and even now I do not remember his name, but what a relief it was when he glided to safety," Raymond concluded.

The dinner guests sat breathless while he finished his story, and the tension was broken only when Cook rose and grasped Raymond's hand. "I was your pilot on that day," he said.

The guests declare that they do not remember a more dramatic moment! First there was a dead silence while the realization of the coincidence bore in upon the consciousness of the two men. Then the conversation rose to a crescendo as each recalled further incidents that definitely identified that almost fatal meeting back in 1918.

Cook, it seems, was a staff pilot at the instruction center, and on that day he was assigned to take an observer up for a lesson. At the time he made his home in Henderson, Ky., and if he ever knew the name of his passenger, or where he was from, it did not register with him.

About 15 years ago he came to Atlanta for residence, and for several years has made his home in Brookwood Hills, just around the corner from the Raymond Coles. He referred to his diary when he returned home after the dinner party that evening, and there under the date of October 29, 1918, he found this simple entry:

"Had a forced landing in a wheat field near Monai today."

FOR THE second time Mrs. Anita Stewart Armstrong has been honored by having her name bestowed upon a member of her family. Soon after the arrival last Friday of Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds' daughter in Albany the baby was named Anita Stewart for her great aunt, Mrs. Armstrong. The little girl's mother is the former Anita Champion, of Albany, who is also a namesake of her Atlanta aunt, whom she frequently visited during her girlhood.

On her paternal side the baby is the granddaughter of James P. Champion, of Albany, and the late Mrs. Eloise Stewart Champion, who was a member of one of Atlanta's most prominent families. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Reynolds, of Albany, are the little girl's paternal grandparents.

Sally is informed that when Anita III and her mother return to their home from the Albany hospital that the former will be esconced in a beautifully decorated pink and white nursery which is furnished with the same furniture as that used in her mother's nursery. With hosts of other friends Sally adds her congratulations to the baby's parents, whose marriage was a brilliant event of June, 1937.

THE NAME, Alice, will play a prominent part in the wedding of Alice Armstrong and Dan Bowden, scheduled for March 14, as the bride-elect and both of her attendants are named Alice!

Alice Palmer, the bride-elect's cousin, whom she has often visited in Jacksonville, Fla., will be maid-of-honor in the wedding.

Alice Reynolds, of Waynesboro, another cousin of Miss Armstrong, will be the only bridesmaid in the ceremony.

It is Sally's opinion that if this three is a crowd, it certainly is a charming one!

Another note of sentiment in plans for the wedding is that Dan has chosen his father, J. D. Bowden Sr., of Orlando, Fla., to attend him as best man.

Mrs. Abe Siegel, now of Atlanta, is the former Miss Tillie Teles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Teles, of New Orleans, whose marriage was a recent event taking place in the Louisiana city.

Miss Mary Anne Joiner Marries Eugene Banks at Griffin Rites

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 11.—The marriage of Miss Mary Anne Joiner and Willis Eugene Banks was solemnized at a beautiful ceremony this afternoon at the First Baptist church. Dr. J. B. Turner performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

The historic church was beautifully decorated for this occasion with palms, ferns and other greenery interspersed with floor baskets of Easter lilies. Seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers were used on each side of the altar.

Miss Thelma Brisendine, organist, and Mrs. Porter Mason, soloist, gave a program of organ music before and during the ceremony. The gromsmen were Frank Castile, Joe David, Wilburn Wilson and John Lindsey, all of Griffin.

Miss Carolyn Joiner, of Macon, was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Kathryn Hunter, of Athens, and Miss Eleanor Banks. Miss Joiner wore dusty pink, Miss Hunter was wearing off gold and Miss Banks' dress was of aqua sheer. The dresses were fashioned alike and the attendants wore straw hats of blue with other blue accessories. They carried bouquets of talisman roses.

The bride entered the church with her father, B. D. Joiner, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, his father, Willis Banks, of Griffin. The bride, a beautiful blonde, wore a spring dress of blue made with inlays of blue lace at the neck and sleeves. Her hat was of straw with a veil and she wore white gloves and other accessories in blue. Her flowers were a cluster of white orchids.

Fulton County Council of Parents and Teachers met on Wednesday celebrating the birthday of the organization, known as "Founders' Day." Mrs. Charles Trowbridge, president, presented Mrs. Frank Bettis, director of extension activities in locals, and Mrs. Bettis presented the speaker, Mrs. Byron Mathews, president of the Girls' High P.-T. A.

Mrs. Mathews spoke on the messages to be found in the early letters of the founders, Mrs. Alice Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, as they sought means of furthering the interest of others in promoting child welfare. She left the inspirational challenge with the delegates that upon their small local groups, and their interest in the local community, rested the appreciation by the world of the real usefulness of the P.-T. A.

Several numbers by the girls of the North Fulton chorus under the direction of Robert Lowrance were given. Mrs. Russell Bridges, of Fairburn, brought news of the first meeting of the "well baby" clinic established to prevent childhood mortality and illness. In this project the Fairburn school has co-operated with the government health project and the county nurse, with Dr. Marion Benson Jr. as counselor. There were 23 babies examined at the first clinic, and each month these and other children under six will be examined.

Recreation, with Valentine Day approaching, will be one of the major activities of the locals in the county. Mrs. J. B. Smith, of Rico, presented an outstanding report. This rural school is endeavoring to make itself the community recreational center as an incentive to an education which shall, as far as possible, meet the complete needs of the people. A program of community plays and forums and fellowship dinners is planned.

A most interesting project launched as a memorial to the splendid and sustained P.-T. A. work of Miss Kathleen Mitchell was that of "The History of Parent-Teacher in Fulton County." Miss Mitchell organized the Fulton county council in 1920, and since that time she has continued active, either in the background or as an officer. The record of the work of the council will be printed as a sort of permanent general handbook for Parent-Teacher activity in Fulton county, copies to be retained in the Fulton county school library.

Clark Howell P.-T. A.

Tribute was paid to the P.-T. A. founders by Mrs. Robert Church Jr., a member of the school association, speaking on "Laying Foundations." Mrs. Church stressed the importance of developing the proper attitude towards life in children by teaching the value of quality, self-confidence, love, religion and tolerance, thus enabling them to think things through a wider horizon, and to safeguard these foundations by a better understanding between parent and child.

The devotional was given by Dr. Ruth Glass, character education chairman. New mothers were welcomed by Mrs. J. W. Armistead, president. Mrs. Philip Brewster, safety and juvenile protection chairman, displayed news items and pictures showing activities of the safety council, and introduced Phil Brewster Jr., captain of the Boys' Patrol, who spoke of the importance of parents and teachers setting good examples of safety habits for children. She paid tributes to Mrs. Harrold and Miss Lily Martin, who was president of Hawkinsville Chapter until her death. Mission Board Plans Membership Drive

Atlanta Methodist Board of City Missions which owns and operates the Wesley community house at 342 Richardson street, southwest, has launched a drive to secure 5,000 associate members this year. Men and women of all denominations are invited to become associate members by the payment of one dollar, and receive a membership card for 1939. The intensive campaign will last through March and all money received from this source will be used to purchase and equip a playground adjacent to the Wesley house property.

There is no city park or public playground within two miles of this thickly settled section of the city, therefore, the juvenile delinquency rate is very high. But in the past four years no girl or boy who has had direct contact with the Wesley house has been in the juvenile court.

The Wesley house property consists of a large two-story dwelling house and an activity hall which will accommodate 200 people. There are now three full-time, resident workers at the community house who supervise classes in cooking, sewing, home nursing, dramatics, handcrafts, art, music appreciation and wholesome recreation. The staff in addition to the three deaconesses, Misses Mary Lou Bond, Laura Mae Haynes and Rosamond Johnson, who are appointed by the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist church, includes a nursery school assistant, a piano teacher, two Smith-Hughes teachers, five WPA workers, and 30 volunteer workers.

There are 611 individuals from 3 to 65 years of age enrolled in the organized groups at Wesley house, and there was a total attendance of 21,401 at clubs and classes in 1938. No one is excluded because of age, nationality or faith. A Boy Scout troop and a Girl Reserve corps afford activities for their age groups. A library of 900 volumes is maintained for use by members of the community. $5,128.82 was contributed through the Board of City Missions in 1938 to operate the Wesley house.

Society Turns to Bowling As Favorite Indoor Sport

Society goes a-bowling these days and enjoys the sport which historians refer to as "tops" during the Stone Age. The ancient game has survived many of its successors in the realms of sports and was first enjoyed and played in this country during colonial days when it was called "9 pins." During recent years interest in the game has been revived and Atlantans may be glimpsed daily as they wait their turn at the base line in the crowded alleys. Constitution Staff Photographer Bill Wilson visited one of the Peachtree alleys recently and snapped Miss Mildred Ewing just as she released the ball while Miss Mimi Pappenheimer keeps her eyes glued on the duckpins and their fate at the hands of Miss Ewing. These two belles are ardent players and after their turn are admired spectators watching their competitors brush up on their scores. With the revival of the game, there has been an unusual and noticeable trend in sport clothes and belles glimpsed recently at the alleys vied in attractiveness in their colorful attires.

Miss Ewing is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Ewing and is spending this week end in Athens attending a series of social affairs. Miss Pappenheimer, who is a member of the senior class at North Fulton High school, is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pappenheimer. Miss Mallet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robinson. Miss Poole is the granddaughter of Mrs. T. O. Poole and resides with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde King Jr. Miss Hammond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hammond and attends North Fulton High.

Georgia Day Origin, Observance Interest State D. A. R. Chapters

By MRS. JAMES N. BRAWNER, of Atlanta, Editor Georgia D. A. R.

Mrs. T. J. Ripley, Atlanta, chairman of patriotic anniversaries for Georgia D. A. R., gives an interesting story of the founding of Georgia Day, February 12, today, and Mrs. Leola Selman Beeson, Milledgeville, gives an account of the marking of two historic spots on that day. Mrs. Ripley's account follows:

February 12 each year, schools and patriotic organizations throughout the state, pay tribute to the founders of Georgia, the great "Empire State of the South." The celebration has been a matter of legal statute since 1909, and it is interesting to note that the statute was enacted through the efforts of one of Atlanta's best known women educators, the late Miss Nina Hornady. Like most of the measures sponsored by the women in those days, it took a long time for the men to act upon it favorably. It required eight years in this instance.

Minutes of the Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., show that Georgia Day was presented to the state in embryo in 1901, when Miss Hornady suggested to the chapter that a day should be set aside to celebrate the founding of the state, honoring the brave men and women who carved a great commonwealth out of a savage wilderness, and promoted the pride of Georgians in the land of their birth.

Joseph Habersham Chapter immediately adopted the idea and appointed a committee consisting of Miss Hornady and the late Mrs. William Lawson Peel to arouse public interest and to present the matter to the legislature. The measure languished until 1909 when Hon. John M. Slaton, then a member of the legislature (later Governor) and the Hon. John Graham succeeded in getting the statute creating Georgia Day through both branches of the law-making body and the bill was signed by Governor Candler.

Plans have been completed for the D. A. R. luncheon at the old Governor's mansion, home of the regent, Mrs. Guy Wells, today, and after it, the unveilings of two historical markers at the sites of Fort Winston and Tom's Ford, one of which dates back to the presidency of General George Washington in 1793. Mrs. Harrison Hightower, state regent, Georgia D. A. R., will give the Georgia Day message, and Dr. C. C. Harrold, of Macon, president of the Archaeological Society of Georgia, is the orator of the day. Mrs. Beeson's account follows:

Due to a large map found by workers in the division of state parks, historic sites and monuments, in the Department of Natural Resources of the state of Georgia, results the fascinating story of two unveilings of markers at historic sites at Milledgeville today. The large map was found in Atlanta in the office of the secretary of state. It was copied and returned to Milledgeville as it was a map of Milledgeville and the town common, made in 1808, by Daniel Sturges, surveyor general, who designed the great seal of the state.

On this map, the town common consists of 3,290 acres, or 50 acres more than the law books declare, and Milledgeville's mayor, George C. Carpenter, and his aldermen, were quick to resurvey the town's far-flung boundaries. Tom's Ford, which appears on the map, had been sought for, for years. This fall, during the long drouth, the shoal across the Oconee could be plainly seen, as the water was low. Tom's Ford, on Old Tom's Path, was a continuation of Old Tom's Path with a ford across the Flint river near the Buzzard Roost. The Oconee ford was well known in 1793. During those troublous days in Georgia, when Edward Telfair was Governor, and James Seagrove was agent of Indian affairs, the Creek Indians, from the west bank of the Oconee, made continual depredations on the whites on the east bank. The whites generally were quick to respond, but many of them had to live in "forted houses."

The Governor held a council of war at the state house in Augusta, on August 8, 1793. He wrote to the secretary of war that present at this council were Major Generals Twiggs, Jackson and Clarke. The brigadier generals present were Glascock, Morrison, Clarke, Irwin and Gunn. The council considered a military expedition against the hostile towns of the Creek nation.

The most interesting site on the map is Fort Winston on the western bank of the Oconee. Already on the western bank have the D. A. R. marked Fort Advance and Fort Defiance in the trans-Oconee country—both being forts of General Elijah Clarke. As both General Clarke and General Winston fought together at the Battle of Kings Mountain, it was characteristic of General Clarke to name one of his forts for his North Carolina friend who lived in the Blue Ridge mountains. However, no Georgia historian, and no government official in Vols. I. and II of Indian Affairs in American State Papers, mentions Fort Winston by name.

When state and federal soldiers joined forces, and when his old Revolutionary friends, Generals Twiggs and Irwin, appeared against Elijah Clarke, and were assisted by Captain Jonas Fauche's dragoons, the old general lost heart. He was told "that if he would evacuate the post, himself and his men should be protected in their persons and property." He capitulated and burned all his forts and his town on the same day. On October 12, 1794, the Governor of Georgia wrote to the secretary of war "the posts are all burnt and destroyed and the whole business happily terminated without the loss of blood." The D. A. R. tablet will bear the date 1808, since no historian has named Fort Winston.

All D. A. R. chapters are requested to send the family Bible records collected this year to Mrs. Eli A. Thomas, state chairman, 39 Fourteenth street, N. E., Atlanta, Ga., before March 1, 1939. Type each Bible record on one side of paper 8 1-2 inches by 11 inches, leaving a margin of 1 1-2 inches on the left side. Send only original copies. Certify before a notary public that the copy is exactly like the original. Any explanatory information may be added as a footnote, but not included in the Bible record.

Mrs. Aspinwall Gives Account Of 2d District W.C.T.U. Meeting

By Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, Editor Georgia W. C. T. U.

Mrs. A. J. Aspinwall, president of second district W. C. T. U., sends an enthusiastic account of the recent district meeting held in Albany at the First Methodist church. The theme was "Fruitful." Mrs. C. C. Sapp led the opening devotions. Mrs. R. K. Hancock voiced the welcome to which Mrs. J. N. NeSmith, of Pelham, responded. Mrs. W. H. Sapp sang, and Rev. J. E. Fain spoke on "Christian Citizenship."

Miss Lily Grace Matheson, national lecturer and field secretary, spoke on "Organization," and said: "The national W. C. T. U. is stronger today than ever before. We added many members last year, including many young people. . . . Nothing will take the place of downright earnestness; you can do anything you want to do if you want to bad enough . . . The nation marches forward on the feet of the little children; we must organize Loyal Temperance Legions."

Mrs. Mary Scott Russell spoke of the duties and responsibilities resting at this critical time on the women of the land and especially on the women of the W. C. T. U., "the bravest, most valiant and undiscouraged women in the world."

Mrs. Robert Travelute, state recording secretary, told of the victories won recently in Colquitt county and Moultrie, county seat, as a result of which no alcoholic beverages will be sold in city or county after February 1.

Albany has invited the state convention to meet there in October. The treasurer's report showed that this is a "fruitful" district.

First district W. C. T. U. met last week at Glennville, Miss Martha Kelley, district president, presiding. It was distinguished by the prominent part taken by the young people and by the fine work of our national field worker, Miss Lily Grace Matheson, of Neenah, Wis. Mrs. C. L. Cowart, director of publicity for the first district, sends an interesting account of the meeting, from which the following is culled:

"Five members of the Reidsville Y. T. C. rendered a playlet which should open the eyes of women who, through lack of vision, are failing to enter whole-heartedly into the activities of the W. C. T. U. Members of the local L. T. L., under the leadership of Mrs. H. E. Easterling, Mrs. H. P. Kicklighter and Mrs. Floyd Spivey, gave a fine 15-minute program. Through the work of the W. C. T. U. vice presidents in the churches, temperance principles are becoming deeply rooted in the hearts of these children. Miss Matheson spoke to more than 200 students in our school. I never saw a more interested audience. Miss Kelley also arranged for her to speak at the big consolidated school at Tyson, six miles from Glennville."

Mrs. R. L. Miller, of Waynesboro, corresponding secretary of the Georgia W. C. T. U., is visiting Mrs. Marvin Williams in Decatur. She and Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president, attended the meeting of the Hygiene Association at an Atlanta hotel and also the meeting of the Consolidated Drys at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday. Mrs. J. W. Neel, a prominent White Ribboner from Forsyth, was also present.

Mrs. R. H. Black, president of the ninth district W. C. T. U., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles I. Kinsey on Peachtree drive. Mrs. Black was honor guest at the meeting of the Peachtree Road Union at the home of Mrs. W. L. Ballenger Tuesday. An account of which will appear in this column next Sunday.

Atlanta Music Notes

Paderewski Returns!

Paderewski, one of the greatest pianists the world has ever known, will appear in Atlanta in concert on Wednesday night, April 26, at the city auditorium.

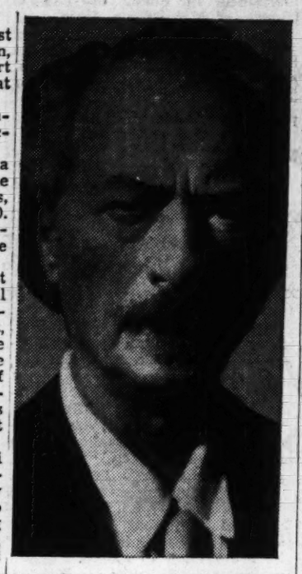

This sensational news was announced by Manager Marvin McDonald Saturday.

Paderewski returns to America for a concert tour of 20 of the largest cities of the United States, and Atlanta will be one of the 20. It will be Paderewski's only appearance in this section of the country.

Paderewski is one of the most interesting figures of the musical world, not only because of his incomparable genius as a pianist, but because of his eminence in the political development of his native Poland. There is a sort of halo of distinction and glory around Paderewski, and as long as he lives he will be reverenced as an artist and as a statesman.

For several years Paderewski has lived with his wife in retirement in Switzerlaind. A few months ago he was persuaded to come out of retirement long enough to make his first picture, "Moonlight Sonata," which has had sensational runs in America and in Europe.

Perhaps because of his work in the picture the yen for a return to concert life made him consent to another concert tour. At any rate, his admiring public will welcome an opportunity to hear the "grand old man of the keyboard" one more time.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the world's greatest pianst, who will be heard again in concert in Atlanta, at the city auditiorium, on Wednesday night, April 26. In his 78th year he will give 20 concerts in America, and Atlanta is the only southern city in which he will appear.

Rose Bampton to Sing.

Rose Bampton, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be presented in concert by the Atlanta Music Club on Tuesday night, February 21, at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium.

There are a few single admission tickets that may be obtained at the Music Club booth at 235 Peachtree street, N. E.

Edwin McArthur, who will be remembered as Madame Flagstad's incomparable accompanist, and who is a composer of note and a concert pianist as well, will be at the piano for Miss Bampton, and will play a group of piano solos.

Miss Bampton's program will open with "Tu lo sai," by Torelli; "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me," from Handel's "Semele;" and "Bester Jungling," from Mozart's "Der Schauspieldirektor; followed by the aria, "O Patria Mia," from Verdi's "Aida."

Mr. McArthur will play "Sarabande," Rameau-McDowell; "Nocturne in C major," Grieg, and "Caprice Espagnole," by Moszkowski.

The fourth part of the program will present Miss Bampton singing "Sapphische Ode," and "Moine Liebe ist grun," both by Brahms; "Ich grolle nicht," by Schumann, and the aria, "Dich, teure Halle," from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

The fifth group will offer "Chere Nuit," Bachelet; "Fantoches," Debussy; "Ah, Twine No Blossoms," Gliere, and the aria, "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino."

Her last group, an English group, will include "Do Not Go, My Love," Hageman; "Hey, Diddle, Diddle," from Herbert Hughes' "Nursery Rhymes;" "Yards and Yards of Sunlight," Pietro Cimara, and "Sea Moods," by Mildred Lund Tyson.

In Civic Series.

The Atlanta Music Club will present the program of the Sunday Civic Concert Series at the city auditorium next Sunday afternoon, February 19, at 3 o'clock. The program will be under the direction of Mrs. Charles Chalmers.

News From Shorter.

The Little Symphony of the University of Michigan, conducted by Thor Johnson, will give a program at Shorter College in Rome on Friday night. The concert is one of the series presented under the auspices of Shorter and the Rome Music Lovers Club.

The Little Symphony is composed of graduates of the School of Music of the University of Michigan. They have toured the middle west and the south for the past four years, and won a wide reputation.

They will present an interesting program at Shorter of works of Mehul, Haydn, Lekeu, Tansman, Glazounov, Liadov, Debussy, and Cesar Franck.

Virgil Fox, famed young American organist, will be presented in concert at Shorter on February 27.

The first graduate recital of the year was given last Monday night by Mildred Miller, pianist, presenting a brilliant program of works of Bach, Brahms, and Ravel. Miss Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Miller, of Carrollton, and the niece of George Lee Hamrick, prominent Atlanta organist.

New Music Group.

Jane Clary, of Athens, was elected president of Sigma Alpha,, a new music organization on the University of Georgia campus.

Other officers are Sara Rossee, Eatonton, vice president; Louise McKie, Atlanta, corresponding secretary; Miriam Dreizen, Butler, recording secretary; Mildred Harding, Decatur, treasurer; and Carrie Myrtice Estes, Gay, historian.

Sponsors of the society, which is petitioning Sigma Alpha Iota, national music sorority, are Mrs. Hugh Hodgson, Mrs. R. L. McWhorter, Mrs. Lamar Dodd, and Miss Louise Hammond.

Sigma Alpha was established through the efforts of Hugh Hodgson, head of the music department of the university; Mrs. Waldo Oettinger, Mrs. Howard C. Smith Jr., and Mrs. Louis Hirsch, of Atlanta.

Members of Sigma Alpha, all candidates for the B. F. A. degree at the University, are Edith Brawner, Greenville; Margaret Byers, Savannah; Mildred Campbell, Beaumont, Texas; Hilda Edwards, Woodbury; Elise O'Neal, Uvalda, and Frances Richardson, Montezuma.

Brilliant Program.

The February Morning Musicale of the Atlanta Music Club presented a brilliant program, starring Hazel Rood Weems, violinist; Frances Gilliland Stukes, contralto; Nell Thurman, pianist, and Isabel Mawha Bryan, accompanist.

Miss Thurman "pinch-hit for Irene Leftwich, who was programmed to play but was prevented because of illness. Miss Thurman won unlimited praise for the artistry and poise she exhibited in inspired interpretations of two movements of a Beethoven sonata and two Brahms intermezzi.

Mrs. Weems, who recently moved to Atlanta, was making her initial appearance before the club, and won an ovation for her capable technique and fine musicianship in her performance of works of Veracini, Boulanger, and de-Falla-Kresiler. Mrs. Bryan was acclaimed for the beautiful accompaniments she furnished, also at last-minute notice.

Mrs. Stukes' voice was never lovelier than it was that morning, rich in quality and beautifully legato in a group of songs by Brahms, Franz, Rubinstein, Clough-Leighter, and Rogers.

Thursday Club Program.

The Thursday Morning Music Club's evening musicales are always enjoyable affairs, but the one given last Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith was outstanding.

A musical program of high artistic content met with tremendous success and hearty endorsement by an appreciative audience. Margie Griffith and Anna Kothe gave several charming harp duets. Frances Stukes sang an appealing group of Louisiana spirituals, with Mrs. Griffith at the piano.

Alice Gray Harrison, pianist, and guest artist for the evening, won an ovation for her artistic interpretations of a Scarlatti Sonata, a Chopin waltz and nocturne, and a Spanish number by Albeniz. The program closed with an instrumental ensemble composed of Agnes Adams Stokes, violin; Senta Mueller, viola; Mildred Bourne, 'cello; and Ruby Head Lewis, piano, playing a group of attractive number.

Unique Concert.

One of the highlights of the season thus far was the unique and fascinating program of "Music of Two Hundred Years Ago" presented by the St. Cecelia Circle of St. Luke's Episcopal church at the Piedmont Driving Club recently.

Hugh Hodgson was the featured artist, and he was assisted by a group of artist students of the University of Georgia.

The ballroom of the club was filled to overflowing with an audience that seemed to appreciate every note of the finely chosen and exquisitely delivered program. Candlelight created the perfect setting for the music of long ago.

Mr. Hodgson was never better than in the crystal-clear performance of four Scarlatti Sonatas, and never played with more appealing tone than in a group of Bach, two of which were chorales.

An ensemble comprised of Miss Edwards, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Hodgson, and Mildred Campbell, 'cellist, placed a brilliant close on a perfect evening with three numbers by Corelli and Frescobaldi.

Birthday Celebration.

The College Park Music Club celebrated its 17th birthday with a gala banquet and musical program Wednesday night at the College Park Woman's Club. A large assemblage of club members and honor guests enjoyed this brilliant affair.

Mrs. Eva Thornton was toastmaster. Dixie Stevens is president of the club. Mrs. E. E. Mulvaney, general program chairman, introduced Mrs. T. J. Peniston, who was chairman of the program for the evening.

Mrs. Peniston carried the assemblage on an imaginary trip to "Gay Vienna." Artists who provided the program of Viennese music that was delightfully charming and artistically executed were Bernice Johnson, soprano; Dorothy Solomon, dramatic reader; Betty Spiker, Mynelle Grove, and Ruby Laney, dancers; Waldo Sowell, violinist, and a vocal quartet from the Emory Glee Club, composed of John Bumstead, Fritz McDuffie, Powers McLeod and Jack Boozer. Marcus Bartlett was at the piano.

Fifth District Festival.

Decatur will be hostess for the two-day music festival of the fifth district on March 17 and 18. On Friday, March 17, one month before the state music festival at Milledgeville, the 33 high schools of the fifth district will appear in concerts displaying their musical achievements with orchestras, choral clubs, and soloists.

On Saturday, March 18, at the Girls' High school auditorium, the 124 elementary schools will participate in gala programs. For the first time the fifth district is sponsoring a festival of elementary music under the direction of Mrs. Ruby White Brown and her committee.

All bands will have their festival on April 21, that particular division of the festival being sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution, with prizes given for winning bands in several fields of competition. The city auditorium and Grant field will be the scenes of the band festival.

Concert of Jewish Alliance.

A concert by Sidor Belarsky and Leah Deganith, accompanied by Sylvia Marshall, will be the 26th annual concert to be sponsored by the Jewish National Workers' Alliance.

The concert will be given at the Alliance hall, 318 Capitol avenue, on Thursday night, February 23, at 8:30 o'clock.

F. Dreeker is chairman of the concert; Mrs. Max Butler, chairman of the ticket committee; and A. Cenker is chairman of publicity.

How the Clark Howell Homes Project Will Appear Upon Its Completion

This is an architect's drawing of one of 59 groups of homes for persons in low-income brackets, to be constructed on 30 acres of land adjacent to Techwood Homes by the Atlanta Housing Authority. A total of 602 dwelling units will be built, with 2,475 rooms. The development will be known as Clark Howell Homes, in recognition of work done by the late editor of The Constitution in helping to make possible Techwood Homes, and the movement now under way to provide decent, modern homes for low-income families. A seven-and-one-half-acre recreation park for use of residents of Techwood and the new Clark Howell Homes will be provided. The plans call for individual two-story homes, with front and back yards.

OSCAR NEWTON SERIOUSLY ILL AT HOME HERE

Oscar Newton, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, was seriously ill at his home, 3260 Peachtree road, last night after suffering a severe heart attack at noon Friday. Doctors in attendance reported his condition as "serious."

At his bedside were his wife, his youngest son, Jerry, and his daughter, Mrs. Louise McDonald. The other son, Oscar Jr., was said to be flying to Atlanta from his home in Omaha, Neb.

The attack Friday followed a heavy cold, contracted earlier in the week, his son announced last night. Mr. Newton had previously been in good health.

Dr. Edwin Byrd and Dr. Ben H. Clifton, of Atlanta, and several nurses were in attendance.

The cold had not been believed important, and Mr. Newton was not confined to bed until the heart attack.

SMALL BUSINESSES WAR ON GROSS TAX

appropriations committee and representatives of the economy group will confer at Speaker Roy Harris' offices in the Henry Grady hotel. They are to discuss principally the best methods of sounding the sentiment of the assemblymen on appropriations and means of paying them.

Observers commented that these early efforts on the part of administration leaders to "get their teeth into the meat" of the tax situation indicated strongly they are expecting bitter opposition to whatever broader basis of taxation is advanced.

Speaker Harris, in Augusta yesterday, told newspapermen he was confident that the legislature will finance the school needs and other parts of the program when they are convinced that all economies possible have been or will be effected. He said the appropriations bill will probably be ready for the house next week.

Waycross Protests.

The automobile dealers of the eighth district declared at Waycross that they are opposed to any more taxes while the Waycross Chamber of Commerce members went on record against "any more taxes of any kind whatsoever," expressing the opinion that present state revenues are sufficient to finance the program if administered economically and efficiently.

The mercantile and automobile dealers' associations yesterday issued a joint statement against the tax. This statement follows in full:

In Indiana, according to figures from Dun & Bradstreet, during 1937, after the gross receipts tax had been in operation in that state for several years, liabilities involved in retail failures were more than one-tenth of the nation's totals, while Indiana merchants did only one-fortieth of the nation's retail volume. Before the gross receipts tax went into effect in that state, liabilities involved in retail failures were only 4.3 per cent of the nation's total. It is reported also that an Indiana legislator stated on the floor of the house recently that more than 6,000 retailers were delinquent in the payment of their gross receipts taxes. It is small wonder that the retailers of Georgia, who constitute the very backbone of their respective communities, are springing into action to wage a vigorous, militant fight against the ruinous gross income or gross receipts tax that is being sponsored in Georgia by the administration.

So that there may be no misunderstanding of what the Georgia bill is, may we say that the name, "gross income," is misleading. It is a gross receipts tax that would levy an additional tax on the gross receipts or gross sales of all business in Georgia; on real estate sales—on rentals; on public utilities; on the railroads; on service establishments; on doctors, dentists, lawyers and other professional men; on salaries and wages of everybody earning in excess of $100 per month—in fact, a ruthless, additional tax on almost everything and everybody in Georgia. It would be on top of and in addition to all other taxes that are now being paid, with the exception of some minor eliminations.

MISLEADING PROMISE.

Let no one be misled by the promise of eliminating 4½ mills of the state's ad valorem taxes. It is well known that some of the county commissioners requested the administration to take off the state ad valorem taxes so they could add that amount to the county rate to make up losses on homestead exemptions. Indeed, a bill is pending in the house right now, providing for counties to put on whatever the state takes off. Everybody knows, who has studied the situation, that the only way to provide real relief from ad valorem taxes is to have the voters adopt a constitutional amendment, definitely limiting the ad valorem millage for all purposes—state, city, county and school districts. A constitutional amendment was submitted to the voters of Georgia a few years ago, which had it passed, would have limited ad valorem taxes for all purposes to 15 mills—less than one-half the present rate. And yet, the very people who are loudest in their denunciation just now of the ad valorem tax, and who, at that time, could have had much influence on the voters of Georgia, did not raise a finger to secure the adoption of the amendment.

And when the people of Georgia were told that the adoption of that amendment would result in a sales tax, a gross receipts tax, or some other equally drastic tax, they vtoed it down by more than 2 to 1. Furthermore, when the net income tax was passed in Georgia it carried a clause providing that any excess revenue realized under that act should be used to reduce the ad valorem tax rate in Georgia. Yet, when the present administration took office, one of its first acts was to abolish that clause and raise the state ad valorem tax rate from 3 mills to 5 mills. Assuming for the sake of argument that the ad valorem tax of 5 mills would be abolished, and that the counties would not increase their rates, relief would not be given to the poor as stated, but would be given to the large office buildings, large downtown properties, public utilities, railroads and to absentee property owners who have large holdings in city properties and in farm properties. The records at the comptroller general's office prove this statement.

Sheerest Folly.

The argument that the gross receipts tax would not hurt the businessman is the sheerest folly. There are 30,000 retailers in Georgia, thousands of whom do a small volume, and barely earn a living from their business. This 1% gross receipts tax would require the little merchant, doing a volume of $50,000 per year, to pay an additional tax of $500 per year, whether he made a profit or a loss—exactly the same tax that, under this bill, would be paid by a man receiving a salary of $50,000 per year. And you can't laugh that one off by saying that the salaried man would also pay a net income tax. The merchant would also pay a net income tax for his business, and both a net income and gross receipts tax on his own salary, in addition to numerous other taxes.

How ridiculous it is to imply that if a business cannot live under this law it should get out and leave the field to the efficient business; and to say that if the businessman realizes he had an additional item of legitimate expense which he must pay, he will investigate the affairs of his business in order that he may determine whether the payment of such expense will probably result in a profit or a loss, and adjust his operations accordingly. How does the administration recommend that he adjust his affairs—cut wages and salaries, and lay off employes, or how? "Consistency, thou art a jewel!" Why not apply the same line of reasoning to the affairs of the state, and eliminate all need for additional taxes?

The economy committee of the house is demonstrating that there has been gross waste and extravagance in our state affairs. The statement of the state auditor shows that the school teachers could have been paid in full. The records show that Georgia's tax bill for the year ending June 30, 1938, was $41,190,981.30 in comparison with $30,044,440.20 in 1936; that total state revenue receipts for 1938 were $39,592,196.33, in comparison with $39,520,914.36 in 1936; that the state paid for personal services for the year ending June 30, 1938, $12,184,877.58, in comparison with $7,549,783.56 in 1936; that travel expenses cost the state $1,057,867.14 for the 1938 period, in comparison with $561,341.72 for 1936; that the number of employes in the highway department in 1938 was practically double the number employed in 1936, and so on. Testimony before the economy committee indicates that numerous departments of the state government are now operating on 55% of appropriations, through failure of revenue to equal appropriations, and that the employes are receiving their salaries in full.

A Third of Profits.

A 1 per cent gross receipts tax is exactly the same as an additional net income tax of 33 1-3 per cent on successful merchants. Why? Because the retailer who makes a net profit of 3 per cent on his sales is doing exceptionally well. Therefore, 1 per cent tax on his gross receipts is the same as an additional income tax of 33 1-3 per cent on his net income. If the merchant nets only 1 per cent on his gross sales, the tax would take all of his net profit. If he operates at a loss, the tax would add to the loss. The businessman is burdened to death with taxes now. In addition to all other taxes, he is paying a tax of 4 per cent on his pay roll for old age benefits, and unemployment insurance, and soon this will go to 6 per cent. It is utter nonsense to argue that the gross receipts tax won't hurt the working man, because $100 per month is exempt. The working man's wage comes out of the gross receipts of a business, and what the tax gatherer takes in gross receipts taxes, can't be paid in wages. But the administration says, in substance, that the business which can't operate under the gross receipts tax should close up shop. What would happen then to the workers in that business? We can't answer that one!

Proposals of House Legislators Seeking To Effect State Economy

By The Associated Press.

Definite savings recommended to the house—$762,790.

Suggestions for means to tighten up tax collections and "overlapping" teacher services—estimated $1,000,000.

Jobs named for outright abolition—25 (including two $4,000-a-year men). Note: Several other jobs would be cut out by implication in the committee's proposals, but they were not listed.

Number of days spent "probing"—14.

Recommendations that have received final favorable action by the assembly—none so far—bills are being prepared or are in process of passage on several suggestions.

Recommendations given unfavorable action—one. (Extension of tag deadline, which committee said would save about $500,000 a year if practice discontinued. Still is possibility of move to prevent further extensions.)

Department Reduced.

Latest and most inclusive proposal of the committee touched the Department of Education. It touched fairly heavily, would eliminate two of the setup's ten divisions and drop 11 office employes, including two executives, cut the salaries of others. The committee said this would save $269,091 a year.

After further inquiry into information concerning teachers in the school systems who either did no teaching or did "useless" teaching, the committee revised its estimate of savings that could be effected through a close checkup on all pay rolls. It dropped its figure from "about a million dollars" to $200,000.

The committee said the state could pick up another $200,000 by authorizing the revenue commission to audit county tax collectors' books on state funds they had. It suggested here was considerable money "lying idle" in collectors' tills.

Another plan which the committee said would definitely put $171,000 in state coffers would be to cut the "kick back" which the state allows motor fuel distributors for collecting taxes from motorists from 1 per cent to 1-10 of one per cent.

Salary Slashes.

While it did not believe there would be any quick saving in it, the committee suggested a law requiring all state employes have their salaries cut when budget whacks are necessary. Under present methods, only school teachers get cuts; other departments arrange to cut on services instead, the committee stated.

Other suggestions included:

Revamping buildings and grounds staff (ousting the capitol hostess and custodian) to save $7,460.

Abolish contractors' licensing board (the house has passed such a bill) and save $11,835.

Limit tag division of revenue department to 34 regular employes; cut off three oil inspectors (saving $14,945); simplify license tag classification for motor vehicles; use only one tag on each vehicle (save $30,000).

Revise tag and weight inspection service in conjunction with state highway patrol ($88,477).

Cut off three insurance tax inspectors and make firms responsible for paying tax ($10,260).

Several state agencies have been under scrutiny of the committee, but no reports have yet been made on them.

OKAY $3,300,000 FOR SLUM PROJECT

The dwellings will face each other across the landscaped centers of the blocks, with the rear of the buildings overlooking the streets. Frontage of the lots run from 38 to 50 feet. No garages will be provided.

The houses are designed for families not on relief, with an income of $500 a year or more, and will attempt the solution of the problem of some of the 27,000 Atlanta families now living in substandard houses. Three similar projects are planned for the immediate future, two for colored families, and another for whites.

The homes will provide the maximum in living quarters for a minimum cost. They have been especially designed from the standpoints of sanitation, economy, safety and decency, and along with Techwood and University Homes, mark a great forward step in Atlanta's attempt to help solve the problem of her underprivileged and ill-housed.

Less Than $900 a Room.

To be feasible, and to rent to families who have the greatest need of such housing, such projects must be built for less than $900 a room, housing officials said.

The average monthly rent in Clark Howell Homes, has been set at $3 per room, well within the reach of the type of family for which they are designed. Lights, heat, water and refrigeration will cost the tenants approximately $1.30 per month per room.

No family can live in the new houses whose monthly income is more than five times the monthly rent.

The average monthly rent at Techwood is $5.52 per room, and the utilities there cost apprximately $1.81 per room per month.

Other Size Units.

In addition to the two and six and a half room units planned, the new development will offer three and a half, four, four and a half and five-room homes. An additional 60 units may be built later on Luckie street, it was said.

The 348 families living in the substandard homes now on the property will be given preference when the new development is completed, sponsors stated when they announced the project.

Options have been taken, or condemnation proceedings begun against all the property in the area. The land will cost approximately $582,000. Lawyers will begin checking the titles today. It will take about a year to complete the project once construction has started.

Pass Resolution.

In naming the new project, officials of the housing authority passed the following resolution.

"Whereas, the loyal and active support of Honorable Clark Howell Sr. did much to make possible Techwood Homes and thus begin the great movement now underway in Atlanta to provide decent, safe and sanitary dwellings for families of low incomes, and

"Whereas, it is the desire of the Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta, Georgia, in memory of this fellow citizen to make grateful acknowledgment of his service to mankind,

"Now therefore, be it resolved that the extension of Techwood Homes be and the same shall hereafter be known as 'Clark Howell Homes.' "

Letter to Publisher.

In a letter to Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, and son of the late Clark Howell, C. F. Palmer, chairman of the Atlanta Housing Authority, said:

"Enclosed is a resolution adopted by the authority at its meeting on February 3.

"No idea ever became a movement, no movement ever became a cause without the impetus of an original mind, a great heart and a dynamic will. Not so long ago, decent, safe and sanitary houses was just an idea. It now is a movement. Soon it will be a cause.

"Our action in naming Techwood extension 'Clark Howell Homes,' is in grateful recognition of the significant part taken by your father in promoting an idea and fostering a movement which has taken on far reaching and beneficent proportions."

Nathan Strauss, United States Housing Administrator, will arrive in Atlanta Wednesday for an inspection of the city's slums and the work the Atlanta Housing Authority is doing. Strauss will be in Savannah tomorrow, in Augusta Tuesday, and will leave Thursday afternoon for Columbus.

Solons To Hear Strauss.

He will address both houses of the general assembly in joint session at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, and will be honored at a luncheon by business executives Thursday afternoon. Strauss will make a radio address here at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

SERIOUS BATTLE FACED BY AMLIE

Fight on Allred Also Looms; Senators Seek Information on Kalodner Charges.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—A week's controversy over President Roosevelt's appointments to important positions left it obvious today that one nominee faces a really serious battle for confirmation and that challenges may develop in two or three more cases.

Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin Progressive, named to the Interstate Commerce Commission, frankly admitted before a senate subcommittee that his economic ideas would lead to "collectivism." Republicans and conservative Democrats are preparing to oppose his confirmation.

In addition, Senator King, Democrat, Utah, already has announced his opposition to confirmation of James V. Allred, appointed federal judge for the southern district of Texas, because Allred is not a resident of that judicial district.

A senate judiciary subcommittee is seeking information on the connection of Harry Kalodner—appointed to the bench of the eastern Pennsylvania district—with charges of "purchased" legislation.

And the group of senators who fought and killed Mr. Roosevelt's supreme court enlargement bill two years ago is oloking askance at the nomination of Charles E. Clark to the second circuit court of appeals. Clark, dean of the Yale Law School, was a supporter of the court bill.

As for other important nominations, almost general praise was heard for three appointments to the circuit courts sent to the senate by the White House on Thursday. They were: Robert P. Patterson to the second circuit, Francis Biddle to the third and Herschel W. Arant to the sixth.

SOW YOUR SEED IN YOUR OWN FIELD

Southerners send millions of dollars to other sections of the country for products and merchandise that could be produced at home. Every year Southerners send away from home $310,000,000 in life insurance premiums . . . and additional millions in interest on money borrowed. If a greater portion of the money spent by the people of the South for farm products, merchandise and LIFE INSURANCE were kept at home, think how much it would help citizens of the South by creating more and greater home pay rolls—more local jobs—greater wealth and prosperity.

We do not advocate buying exclusively from Southern companies. Other companies serve the South well and deserve their share. But, no matter what we buy, shouldn't we who live in the South always ask ourselves: "Wouldn't it be better to sow our seed in our own fields?"

THE report of the National Emergency Council says, "The paradox of the South is that while it is blessed by nature with immense wealth, its people as a whole are the poorest in the country!" Without attempting to analyze the extent of the condition pointed out in the Council's report, we should ask ourselves this question: Was this situation brought about because the South for many years has not been sowing its seed in its own fields?

If you are interested in the South's future read the inspiring booklet, "A Pattern for Southern Progress," recently written by President Julian Price. Now in its fourth printing, a copy of this booklet may be secured from any Jefferson Standard Agent, or by writing to the Home Office in Greensboro.

12-Puppy Litter Record Broken by Georgia Dog

CANTON, Ga., Feb. 11—Jack Kemp, 21, of near Canton, just grunted disdainfully when he read a story in Friday's Constitution, telling of a litter of 12 puppies born to a dachshund in Connecticut. And rightfully so, for Kemp reports his dog, a bloodhound, gave birth to a litter of 17 (count 'em, 17) pups Thursday. Mother and pups are doing nicely.

BOMB PLOT PERILS 1,000 ABOARD SHIP

New London Outrages Laid to Irish Terrorists; Steamer Fires Quenched.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(UP)—New bomb outrages, one involving a ship carriyng 1,000 passengers, prompted increased police precautions tonight against terrorism attributed to Irish Republican army extremists.

Three smoking incendiary bombs and a number of fire balloons endangered the steamship St. David, carrying 1,000 persons from Ireland to England. A series of small fires on the ship were extinguished.

Seven men were detained in connection with the St. David fire and Sir Philip Game, metropolitan police commissioner, ordered compilation of a complete register of all Irishmen living in London, including a notation on their political activities.

More than 3,000 Irishmen came to England for the England-Ireland rugby match and extra police were drafted at Twickenham to guard against disturbances during the match. Thousands out of about 60,000 spectators were obliged to open bags and suitcases before entering the rugby grounds and all program sellers and others working inside were required to present credentials.

The three bombs found on the St. David started a fire but it was extinguished before much damage was done. The fire balloons found were in envelopes containing magnesium flash powder and nitric acid which set off a flash as soon as the acid ate through the rubber.

Passengers said that a bomb which did not explode was found in the steamer's saloon while the ship was en route from Cork to Fishguard. Police closely watched the passengers leave the vessel at Fishguard where each underwent special examination.

AFL WILL BATTLE RADICAL ALLIANCE

Plans To Revive Pan-American Body After Hearing of Rival Faction.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor set out today to revive the dominant Pan-American Federation of Labor after being informed that radical leadership was championing a new rival federation in Mexico and South America.

President William Green announced that the Pan-American executive committee, which he heads, would meet in Washington next May to consider calling a convention of North and South American affiliates to meet the challenge of the recently organized Latin-American Federation of Labor.

Matthew Woll, an AFL vice president and council member, joining Green at a press conference, said he found on a tour of Mexico last fall that the wing of Mexico's labor movement known as the C. T. M. was a "wholly political movement and extremely radical in character. The C. T. M., headed by Vicente Lombardo Toledano, he asserted, organized the new Latin-American Federation of Labor.

John L. Lewis, the CIO leader, attended as a "fraternal delegate," Woll added, but he did not know to what extent CIO was involved in the new movement.

"Toledano is considered the mouthpiece of the Stalinites in Mexico," Woll declared. "His influence is considerable because of favors extended to him by the Cardenas government."

Organization drives planned by both Mexican and Argentine leaders of the new movement, he added, "contemplate a division of continental labor.

"It may lead," he said, "to a cleavage of labor with the United States and Canada on the one hand and Mexico and South America on the other hand."

CIO CARRIES WAGNER ACT FIGHT TO AFL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The CIO announced today it would carry to the rank and file of the American Federation of Labor its fight against AFL-sponsored amendments to the Wagner labor relations act.

In a statement, the CIO asserted the amendments introduced by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, at the request of President William Green, of the AFL, "go far beyond anything authorized or favored by the Houston convention of the AFL."

The CIO, the statement said, will conduct a nation-wide campaign to defeat the proposed amendments and will make "special efforts to reach AFL unions many of which are far from agreeing with the proposed amendments."

POLICE QUELL RIOT OF UAW WORKERS

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Police were called out late today to quell fighting in a meeting of the faction-torn United Automobile Workers Union, and afterwards Assistant Prosecutor Sherman Bean requested a warrant charging Richard T. Frankensteen, a leader of one of the UAW factions, with assault.

Fighting broke out in a crowd of 4,500 at a meeting called by the CIO-supported faction of the UAW. Police said there were approximately 100 fist fights after Burt Harris, an organizer and supporter of Homer Martin, elected president of the UAW, led about one-third of the crowd out of the hall.

Bean said William Kupres, 20, an auto worker, told of Frankensteen "pulling a gun on him" after the meeting.

The assistant prosecutor said Kupres was standing near a partly-opened door when Frankensteen approached, drew "a small steel-blue pistol" and said "'If you open that door I'll shoot you.'"

GENERAL STRIKE PERIL FACED IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11.—(UP) The Confederation of Mexican Workers threatened today to paralyze capital industries by a general strike on February 26 unless the city's bakery owners sign a new wage agreement with workers by that date.

Officials of the powerful CTM announced a scheduled walkout of all bakery workers on February 25 would be followed a day later by a strike of all unions except a few engaged in essential public services.

WHEAT SENTENCED TO ELECTROCUTION IN CHAIR MARCH 2

Slayer of Aged Austell Grocer Awaits Transfer to Prison.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Feb. 11.—Sam J. Wheat, 20-year-old Douglas county high school youth, was awaiting transfer to Tattnall prison and a death cell tonight after being re-sentenced by Judge J. H. Hawkins, of Cobb superior court, to die in the electric chair March 2 for the murder of an aged Austell grocer in January, 1938.

The stoical student showed no emotion when the jurist intoned the sentence—the second time he has heard it pronounced on him since he was found guilty last spring by a Cobb jury. He was visibly shaken, however, when his mother broke into sobs and later when officers permitted a girl friend to bid him farewell in his cell.

Defense attorneys did not indicate whether or not an appeal for clemency will be made to the Governor.

Original date for Wheat's execution was nullified when an appeal was made to the state supreme court. This appeal was denied, necessitating the resentencing procedure.

CONGRESSMEN FLAY PRESENT FARM LAW

'Wallace Has Us Just Where Hoover Left Us,' Senate Committee Told.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The senate agriculture committee today heard two members of the house call the present farm law a failure which has increased the economic difficulties of the farmer.

Representative Lemke, Republican, North Dakota, contended that "after being lost in the dismal swamps for six years," Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had "come out of the same hole he went in—just where Mr. Hoover left us."

Representative Massingale, Democrat, Oklahoma, warned the committee that "if we keep on trying this thing for another year or two we won't have anything to try it on."

Both house members advocated the so-called cost of production measure as a substitute for the crop control law.

Under the substitute, on which hearings are expected to be finished next week, farmers could produce all they wished and would receive a guaranteed price for the portion of their crop domestically consumed. It is sponsored by 17 senators.

The measure was criticized by Senator Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, tonight in a broadcast address on the American Farm Bureau Federation program.

Freezing Winds, 25-Degree Low Forecast Today

Cold winds whistling in from the ice-bound north and west will send Atlanta thermometers tumbling to 25 degrees by this morning, the United States Weather Bureau forecast yesterday.

Delayed for several days, the cold will definitely be here today, weather bureau officials said, apologizing to those cautious ones who have been walking around town with their overcoats over one arm, sweltering under a hot February sun. Yesterday's high and low readings were 51 and 42 degrees.

Atlanta's cold will be a kickback of the storms that spread yesterday from the Rocky Mountains to the St. Lawrence valley. Attended by gales, snow, sleet, rain, dust and electric storms, the weather disrupted transportation communications and caused at least 15 deaths.

The bitter weather sent the mercury to 25 degrees below zero in some sections. Heavy snow covered the upper middlewestern and most of the western plain states.

Cobb Will Honor Native Resident Who Founded P.-T. A. Forerunner

Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney, Former Marietta Kindergarten Teacher, Now Dead, Was Author of Congress of Mothers, Established 42 Years Ago.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Feb. 11.—Twelve parent-teacher associations in Cobb county will attach more than the usual significance to the national celebration next Friday of Founder's Day, because Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney, founder of the national group, was a native of Marietta and Cobb county.

Mrs. W. H. Perkinson, past state officer, has termed Mrs. Birney "one of the most illustrious citizens of Marietta and Cobb county."

Native of Marietta.

"Allie" McLellan was born in Marietta in 1859, a daughter of L. C. McLellan. She was educated in the city schools and later attended college at Mount Holyoke, Mass. She returned here following her graduation, and was married to Alonzo White. From this union came one child, Alonzita. The family lived on Church street at the house which is now the Episcopal rectory.

Some years after the death of her first husband, Mrs. White married Theodore Birney, an Atlanta attorney, and to this union two other daughters were born. After her second marriage, Mrs. Birney moved first to Atlanta and later to Washington, D. C. She died December 20, 1907.

It was while "Allie" McLellan was a kindergarten teacher in a little one-room schoolhouse near the present site of Marietta's Haynes Street Grammar school, that the idea of a closer co-operation between parents and teachers came to her, but it was not until years later, when, on February 17, 1897, in Washington, D. C., she established the first "Mothers' Congress." It soon became apparent that a national organization of mothers would be doubly effective if teachers were added to the group, and fathers as well. In 1908, therefore, shortly after the death of Mrs. Birney, the present National Parent-Teacher Association was formed from the Congress of Mothers.

National President.

In her native Cobb county, the first formal Parent-Teacher organization was effected in Marietta in 1917.

Of the national association today, Mrs. Perkinson says: "On its 42d anniversary, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, with a membership of more than 2,500,000, is recognized everywhere as the largest group of volunteer workers in the world devoted exclusively to child welfare in the home, the school, the church and the community."

There are Parent-Teacher associations in Cobb county today at the following schools: Acworth, Smyrna, Blackwells, Elizabeth, Fitzhugh Lee, Mableton, R. L. Osborne, Riverside, McEachern, Powder Springs and Marietta High and Grammar schools.

Most of the groups plan special ceremonies Friday night in commemoration of Mrs. Birney's establishment of the National Congress of Mothers.

She was Mrs. Annie Lou Jenkins, 28, who was doing a bit of advance spring cleaning in her home at 505 Rock Springs road. Mrs. Jenkins tossed contents of a dust pan into the open fireplace.

COMPLAINTS MADE BY FARM TENANTS IN TWO COUNTIES

Renters Not Getting Proper Share From Landlords, Inquiry Reveals.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 11.—(UP)—Failure of landlords to give their tenant farmers a share of government subsidies was under federal investigation tonight in Georgia.

Homer S. Durden, state head of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said his office was investigating complaints from tenants in Warren and Hancock counties.

Under AAA regulations, tenants and sharecroppers are entitled to share in government benefit payments to the farms on which they work in the same proportion that they share in returns from the major cash crops, such as cotton and tobacco.

Durden, describing his inquiry as "routine," said the Warren county investigation has revealed that "ignorance on the part of landlords of the AAA regulations governing division of payments was the chief reason for complaint."

"Wherever possible," he said, "we are closing the cases by permitting the landlords to pay to the tenants any balance due them.

"We have, however, discovered a few cases in which preliminary evidence indicates a deliberate effort to keep from paying tenants and sharecroppers their correct portions of the government checks. We are referring cases of this nature to the Washington office for such action as officials there may deem necessary."

Durden said the investigation would be extended into other counties upon receipt for further complaints.

MURDER IS CHARGED TO MINISTER'S SON

MACON, Ga., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A coroner's jury, after hearing witnesses to the fatal shooting yesterday of Edgar E. Norris, today ordered Guy Ezell, 24-year-old son of a minister, held on a murder charge.

Ezell, witnesses testified, shot four bullets into Norris' body as the 29-year-old manager of a local company's shoe department crouched under a counter. Ezell had recently been discharged as a clerk in the shoe department.

A. J. Goolsby, hired to replace Ezell, told the jury that Mrs. Norris, in the store at the time, struggled with Ezell and pleaded with him to shoot her instead of her husband.

AUNT OF TALLEY'S CHILD IS AMAZED

Charges Previous Attempt To Gain Custody.

MAMARONECK, N. Nelson, who kept the child for two years in her comfortable home overlooking Long Island sound.

Mrs. Nelson related what she said was a previous attempt by Miss Talley on February 2 to take the child, whose existence became publicly known only yesterday.

Mrs. Nelson is a sister of the child's father, Adolph Eckstrom. Miss Talley's estranged husband and her former singing teacher.

Susan's existence came to light in supreme court yesterday when Miss Talley began an action to gain custody of the child. Her petition said she had not seen Susan, a bright, blonde tot, since December of 1935.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MOUNT BERRY, Feb. 11.—The son of a Georgia country minister, who had never lived in a town of more than a thousand population, and who now is pastor of Southern Methodism's largest church in the national capital, Dr. John W. Rustin, of Mount Vernon Place M. E. church, Washington, addressed the 1,000 students of Berry College and Schools here last night.

Dr. Rustin described the hardships for a country minister, and decried the tendency of many people to think being religious and going to church were the same thing.

Crosses Mark Fatal Auto Accidents

Atlanta Motor Club Offers Grim Reminders to All Counties To Warn Thoughtless Drivers.

White crosses bearing the grim inscription, "One Killed," are being placed along Georgia highways to mark locations where lives have been lost in traffic accidents.

The work of marking the most dangerous spots on the state's highways has been started by the Dixie Motor Club, of Atlanta, with sanction of the Georgia State Highway Department.

"I believe they will prove to be a dramatic deterrent to motorists who are inclined to drive recklessly," said W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Department.

The crosses will be shipped without cost to county officials in any section of the state, according to George T. Dickson, of the motor club.

"One of the first lots of crosses placed in this section went up recently at Kennesaw on United States Highway No. 41, between Marietta and Cartersville," said Dickson. "Ten crosses were placed at a curve there, marking the spot where not only persons were killed, but where more than 200 serious traffic crashes occurred.

"Other danger spots, in Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties, are being marked, and scores of crosses have been erected in several south Georgia counties.

"Just the other day, we received requests for 20 additional crosses for Bibb county. We have already sent 25 crosses to Macon, and officials there have asked for 20 more."

The marking idea has been tried sucessfully in several western states, Dickson added.

Nine white crosses are silent reminders that nine persons have lost their lives in auto accidents at this curve near Kennesaw on U. S. Highway 41, between Marietta and Cartersville.

NO GRAND OPERA HERE THIS SEASON

Committee Reports Guarantee Could Be Raised, But Fears Lack of Audience.

Atlanta will have no Metropolitan Opera season this year, a committee of three prominent Atlantans, appointed to investigate the possibility of bringing the New York company here for three performances, reported to Mayor Hartsfield yesterday.

The committee, composed of Jesse Draper, Victor Lamar Smith and Preston S. Arkwright, announced that public interest was not great enough to make the performances financially feasable. They had been tentatively scheduled for April 10, 11 and 12.

It would be necessary to raise a guarantee fund of $57,000 for the three performances, the committee said. And while the fund could be raised, it was decided that public attendance would not be large enough to repay the backers.

The last time the Metropolitan Opera appeared in Atlanta was in 1931.

Two of these private classes are for negro waiters and waitresses. He stated that the special need at this time is for more restaurants to assist in the co-operative plan for untrained girls. 816 Killed and 25,560 Are Injured On Georgia Highways in One Year

Lon Sullivan Reports $36,726,000 Lost in Automobile Accidents—But Record Is a Better Showing Than in 1937!

By LON SULLIVAN,
Director of Education, State Department of Public Safety.

Motor vehicle accidents took 816 lives, injured 28,560 people and cost $36,720,000 in 1938, according to complete and revised figures of the Department of Public Safety.

The figures, released immediately after all accident reports for December had been tabulated, show 128 less deaths, 4,480 less injuries and $3,760,000 less economic loss than in 1937. Twenty-three of the 128 lives "saved" were school children going to and from school. Eighty such deaths were reported during 1938 as compared with 103 during 1937.

Estimates of the economic loss were figured according to National Safety Council's methods and include doctor bills, hospital bills, funeral expense, maintenance for crippled and wage losses for injured as well as repairs.

Two Fatal Months.

September and October were the "deadliest" months along Georgia's streets and highways with 89 deaths and over 3,000 injuries being recorded for each of these months.

"Safest" month was July, with 45 deaths, 1,575 injuries. February was second in this group with 51 deaths, 1,785 injuries, and June was third with 55 deaths, 1,925 injuries.

The largest monthly decrease was in December when 37 fewer lives were lost than the 102 killed in December, 1937. Largest monthly increase was September, when 19 more were killed than during September of the previous year.

One hundred and twenty-eight of the dead were of school age, but only 80 were actually en route to or from school. None of these deaths were recorded at any school protected by schoolboy patrolmen. Schools showing decreases from previous years had active school patrols installed during the 1938 school season.

Backing Patrols.

The department is formulating plans to intensify the drive for establishment of schoolboy patrols in all Georgia schools. Nearly 1,000 have been set up, including over 5,000 uniformed and commissioned boys.

This year 20 schoolboy patrolmen who win in a contest to establish the "outstanding" high school and grammar school patrolmen in the state patrol districts will get a free trip to the New York World's Fair. The trip is being donated by Wiley L. Moore, prominent civic and business leader.

Details of the contest and trip will be announced within the next few weeks.

Announcement will also be forthcoming shortly of the number killed on Georgia's main highways, the number in each county and causes of deaths and accidents as determined from analysis of the 1938 records by state troopers.

IMPROVED F. D. R. LOOKS TO CRUISE

President Expected To Leave Thursday for Voyage to War Games.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt made progress today in throwing off a mild attack of the grippe and looked forward eagerly to the start of his southern sea voyage to witness the fleet's war games.

Reporting his patient better, Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, said the chief executive probably would be able to leave on the two-week trip as early as Monday night, if he desired.

Unless the tentative schedule is altered, however, Mr. Roosevelt will depart some time Thursday to board the cruiser Houston, probably at Miami or Key West, Florida.

From the closest approach to a grandstand seat that the circumstances afford, he expects to follow the spectacular mimic warfare of the most powerful American sea force ever assembled in the Atlantic. The war games will test the eastern defenses of the Panama canal at a time when congress is considering measures to reinforce the protection of the canal and the entire hemisphere.

To Have Code Key.

Although Mr. Rosevelt was much better, he remained abed for the second day and cancelled his scheduled participation tomorrow, Lincoln's birthday, in annual ceremonies at the Lincoln Memorial. Dr. McIntire said the chief executive's temperature had declined to 99.2 degrees.

At the naval maneuvers, only the President and the fleet's commander-in-chief, Admiral Claude C. Bloch, and their staffs, will be able to keep up with the progress of the simulated war between an attacking "white fleet" and a defending "black" force, officials said.

They alone will have the key to secret radio codes and thus will be able to decipher messages flashing the progress of the mock campaign.

Fleet at Cuba.

The fleet, an armada of 140 ships, 600 planes and upwards of 55,000 officers, blue-jackets and marines, was concentrated today at its Guantanamo, Cuba, base. It will divide Monday into the rival forces. The active phase of the war games will continue for three weeks.

Though he has followed naval affairs closely since his war-time service as assistant secretary of the navy, the chief executive's projected voyage will be his first close-range view of the fleet in actual war games, officials said. In 1918, however, he saw American and British warcraft under actual war conditions in British waters.

SCRAP IRON SALES TO JAPAN ASSAILED

Americans in China Wire Roosevelt of Wholesale Slaughter.

CHUNGKING, Feb. 11.—(UP) American residents of this temporary capital of China cabled the United States government today urging an immediate prohibition on the sale of American gasoline and scrap iron to Japan.

The telegram called attention to "appalling destruction and suffering at Kweiyang and Wanhsien, where hundreds of innocent civilians were burned to death by incendiary bombs and women and children were machine gunned, making us a virtual partner of Japan in crimes against China."

The telegram was addressed to President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Senator Key Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and Representative Sam D. McReynolds, Democrat, Tennessee, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee.

CHIANG WARNS U. S. OF JAPANESE AIM

CHUNGKING, Feb. 11.—(UP)—The occupation of Hainan island off the coast of Indio-China by Japan was described by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight as the "beginning of Japanese naval dominance of the Pacific.

"It cuts the connection of the Americas and Hawaii with British Singapore," he said. "I don't see how those countries can watch with unconcern this dangerous development. Japan, obviously, is running the risk of sowing seeds for war in the Pacific.

"Chinese land forces are doing their utmost to prevent the enemy from occupying the entire island. We have taken precautionary measures to offer strong resistance if Japan attacks Pakhoi. The landing will have little effect on the war. The occupation of the island is inconsequential."

FRENCH PROTEST SEIZURE OF ISLAND

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The French government, in close cooperation with Britain, demanded today that Japan explain her seizure of the Chinese island of Hainan flanking French and British Empire lifelines.

French sources declared the occupation of Hainan was a violation of repeated promises made by Japan to the two democracies.

Diplomats said Britain probably would present a separate but identical demand as a result of conversations between French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and British Ambassador Sir Eric Phipps.

The occupation began Friday, Oriental time—Thursday, European time—and diplomatic sources contended it was too timely to be a coincidence, coming as Britain and France were trying to prevent Germany and Italy from gaining too strong a foothold in Spain.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO STRESS DEFENSE

Addresses, Radio Programs Will Emphasize Preparedness This Week.

Atlanta reserve officers will join this week in a national program seeking adequate preparedness as a means of preserving peace.

Lieutenant Colonel Fonville McWhorter, World War veteran, will direct the 10-day observance of National Defense Week, February 12-22, which is sponsored annually by the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States.

Arrangements have been completed for a series of addresses before civic clubs and in schools, radio talks and special programs at veterans' organization meetings, Colonel McWhorter said.

Education of People.

Explaining that reserve officers are working for the preservation of peace, he said they feel that peace can best be maintained through an adequate army, navy and air force for defense.

"We are not so much concerned with forcing national policies for defense as we are in educating the people of this nation to the necessity of having a definite policy," he said. "The members of congress are being advised as to the defense needs by the experts of the army and navy, and we hope they will be guided by that advice."

Reserve officers and regular army officers will appear in the programs over radio and before civic organizations. Groups before whom Defense Week addresses have not been scheduled and who are willing to join in the observance will be furnished speakers upon request. Colonel Franklin S. Chalmers and Captain Stephen Malone are in charge of the speakers' bureau.

School Observance.

Other committeemen appointed for the week include Lieutenant Colonel C. M. Boyer and Captain R. L. Watkins, civic clubs; Major Willis Everett, radio; Major P. S. Woodward, Captain O. L. Amsler and Captain L. L. Deck, schools; Colonel A. G. Conoley, Lieutenant Colonel Chester E. Martin and Captain C. T. Conyers, advisory.

Students at Joe E. Brown Junior High school will hear speakers from the American Legion during National Defense Week, Commander Henry D. Hanclock, of Post No. 147, sponsors of the addresses, announced yesterday.

Speakers will include Major Ben T. Huiet, A. G. Matthews, Captain R. E. Endicott, Captain W. M. Marr, Captain Jack Malcom, B. B. Lassiter and Father Dan McCarthy. A. G. Martin, principal of the school, has invited the public to attend.

N. Y. FAIR TO HONOR GEORGIA ON JUNE 14

Special Trains Will Be Run for Event.

Jere Moore, of Milledgeville, chairman of a special committee in charge of arranging Georgia's exhibit at the World's Fair in New York, announced yesterday the fair would observe June 14 as "Georgia Day."

Moore said railroads running between Georgia and New York planned several special trains for the event, and added Governor Rivers and his staff probably would attend.

The Georgia exhibit, planned to cost approximately $25,000, is to advertise Georgia as a vacation and recreational area, as well as a state of industrial opportunities, Moore said. The exhibit is being sponsored by private contributions throughout the state.

BIRTHDAY GREETING SENT FAROUK BY F.D.R.

CURRIE-BELL SHOW TO OPEN AT HIGH

52 Paintings of Great Beauty on View Beginning Wednesday.

By ST. JOHN BARNWELL.

An exhibition of 52 paintings by the noted T. Currie-Bell will begin at the High Museum of Art Wednesday and extend through February 28, open to the public free of charge.

T. Currie-Bell has made a distinguished name in the art world both in Europe and America. He has had studios in Edinburgh, his native Scotland; in London, Paris and New York; exhibits of his paintings have been held throughout the world. The Russian government bought one of the Currie-Bell canvases from his display in Munich, and now it hangs in the national collection.

Many prizes have been won by this eminent artist who studied in Paris under Julian and Deacluse. Later he was a pupil of John Sargent. He has studied at the Royal Scottish Academy, Edinburgh, and the Royal College of Art, London. As a member of the Society of Scottish Artists, T. Currie-Bell has painted prominent people in both continents and his clear graphic portraits have numbered 400!

Careful Collection.

Of the glorious collection shown at the High Museum there will be 12 portraits, 21 landscapes of the United States, 15 scenes of France with its colorful seacoast, and three of his native Scotland. The pieces are typical of his rugged strength and delicate interpretation of detail.

Seen in the Auditorium Gallery of the High Museum from 9 to 5 on week days and 2 to 5 on Sundays, the Currie-Bell exhibit promises to be of great interest here.

The paintings by Edmund Archer, associate curator of the Whitney Museum, New York city, will be on display in Gallery 3 through the 18th. The etchings of Charleston and Japan by Elizabeth O'Neil Verner, leading woman etcher of America, will be seen in the Left Wing through the 15th. Ending on the 14th will be the display of 71 canvases from the Arthur U. Newton Galleries of New York.

By LILLIE MAY ROBINSON.

Young people in the Atlanta area with movie ambitions they have despaired of realizing, are offered today an opportunity to crash the barricaded Hollywood portals without even so much as leaving home.

It all comes in an announcement from Jesse L. Lasky, film producer, that he is about to conduct a nation-wide talent search under aegis "Gateway to Hollywood."

The entire cost to participants is a 3-cent stamp and transportation to Atlanta—if non-residents—where regional examinations will be held for those whose applications stimulate the desire for a personal interview with talent scouts.

Entry forms may be obtained by calling in person or writing to the Fox theater. These should be completed and returned, with three unretouched photographs showing both full and profile views, to the Screen Test Editor of The Constitution.

Personal Interviews.

Jesse Lasky and a committee of casting directors, talent scouts, directors and stars will make the original selections from this date. Those chosen will be notified to appear at a time and place to be named later at a luncheon to be given in their honor.

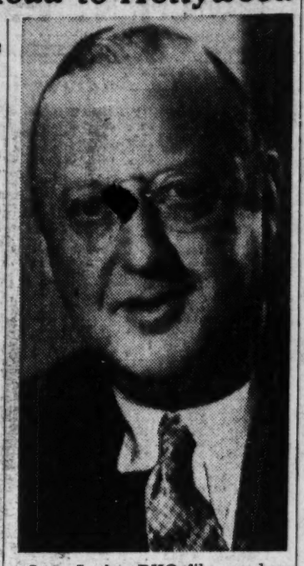

Bryant Washburn, long-time movie star, manager of the field forces in the east, will speak at the luncheon and will be available to the candidates for advice and suggestions.

A board of local judges, to be appointed by the manager of the Fox, together with the head of R.-K.-O., Radio's Hollywood Casting Bureau, and the chief casting director will give each a personal interview and hear them repeat assigned lines, as one of the factors in determining winners. Then the entire group will be present on the stage of the Fox, where the two local nominees will be introduced.

All this data will be forwarded to the "Gateway to Hollywood Committee" as a basis for its selection of nine girls and nine young men to be brought to the west coast for appearance on a radio program over a period of three months.

The applicants brought to Hollywood will also receive an intensive course of training free of charge, be escorted over studio sets and through radio studios during broadcasts. In addition, they will receive $25 a week spending money for the period of their stay.

The two finally selected, will be awarded R-K.-O. Radio contracts at $125 per week for 20 out of 26 weeks, and will begin work as ingenue leading women and juvenile man in Robert Sisk's production of "Career."

Jesse Lasky, RKO film producer, in his search for new faces, is offering to young people in and around Atlanta a chance to participate in his nation-wide screen and voice test.

W. C. T. U. TO OBSERVE 'F. E. WILLARD WEEK'

Atlanta units of the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union will observe "Frances E. Willard Week" beginning Friday, February 17, with a series of programs on the solution of social problems through research and education on the effects of narcotics.

Mrs. Mary S. Russell, of Atlanta, president of the State W. C. T. U., announced yesterday that the Georgia organization has raised its quota of $14,000 toward a national $1,000,000 temperance education fund to be used in research work concerning narcotics. A reduction in the use of marijuana by young people is the current object of the National W. C. T. U.

COTTON PRICES DIP DURING PAST WEEK

10-Market Average of 8.47 Is 9 Points Lower, Bureau Reports.

Cotton prices declined moderately during the week and the 10-market average of 8.47 cents for middling ⅞-inch on Friday, February 10, was nine points lower than a week earlier, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Sales of 42,000 bales reported in the 10 designated markets compared with 38,000 in the preceding week and 114,000 bales in the same week a year ago. The Commodity Credit Corporation received reports through February 9 on a total of 4,228,000 bales from the 1938 crop pledged on government loans, of which 56,000 bales were reported during the week compared with 64,000 bales in the preceding week. Repayments for about 17,000 bales were reported through February 9, and total government loan stocks are now about 11,200,000 bales.

Prices for middling ⅞-inch cotton in the 10 markets averaged 8.51 for the week ended February 10, the same as for the preceding week and compared with 8.77 a year ago. Grade and staple differences were unchanged from the previous week.

Prices of spot cotton continued high in relation to prices of futures contracts, but the basis weakened a little. The 10-market average price for middling ⅞-inch on February 10 was seven points higher than the price of New York March futures compared with 14 points a week earlier. A year ago it was 11 points higher and two years ago 24 points higher. Liverpool prices for American cotton declined slightly more than those for Indian cotton.

Exports totaled 79,000 bales compared with 67,000 in the previous week and 79,000 and 131,000 bales respectively, in the corresponding week a year ago and two years ago. Of this week's exports 13,500 bales went to Spain and was the largest shipment of American cotton to that country in about two years. Total exports for the season August 1 to February 9 were 2,305,000 bales compared with 4,012,000 in the same period last season and 3,683,000 bales two years ago.

Pacific Mutual NEWS

By Emory L. Jenks, CLU

This is the second of a series of articles the Atlanta agency of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company will present on this page each Sunday on the Human Side of Insurance. Don't miss these articles. They will explain in an interesting manner the various types of insurance contracts.

Everything has a beginning, so, bearing in mind your interest in life insurance as shown by the Good Housekeeping Magazine survey mentioned last Sunday, it seems likely that you'd be interested in a short-short history of life insurance. That history goes back much further than you'd probably think.

Joseph, in Biblical times, had the germ of insurance in his mind clear back in the days of the Pharaohs. He stored grain for seven years to insure that the people of Egypt would be able to eat in the seven lean years he knew would follow. Since that time the idea of insurance has been expressed in many ways.

Back in 1717 a group of Presbyterian ministers first introduced the idea of insurance into America. At least they put it on a formal basis when they organized the first American company—The Fund for Pious Purposes, they called it—"for the purpose of giving relief to our widows and children."

This company is still in existence, operating today under the name of the Presbyterian Ministers' Fund.

From this meager beginning the idea of insurance has grown until now 64,000,000 people in the United States own more than $110,300,000,000 worth of life insurance protection. Including beneficiaries, more than 100,000,000 Americans are better off because of life insurance.

There are now more than 300 life insurance companies, and they write a wide variety of policies. You probably own one or more. If there is any particular phase of your insurance you wish discussed in this column or by letter, write the Pacific Mutual office, 1317 First National Bank Building, or advise one of our local representatives.

AVERAGE PRICE.
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 3 points lower at 8.44 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 market days was 8.50 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The cotton futures market wrenched away from a recent narrow trading range as a barrage of last-hour selling left final prices 1 to 8 points lower today.

Especially hard hit were new crop deliveries. October and December contracts crumbled under Wall Street and foreign selling.

Trade houses bought March and May early while covering by ring professionals and a little mill price-fixing supplied modest support to later months when the outside selling developed. Southern spot houses also had hedge selling orders in October and December.

Today's decline, which left prices 3 to 16 points below a week ago, reflected increasing hedge pressure in new crop months from foreign and domestic sources. Professional liquidation was also attracted, cotton brokers said, to the haze of uncertainty surrounding legislative action in Washington.

The big question mark hanging over the market, analysts declared, was the disposal of government loan stocks. Traders agreed the problem had many knotty angles.

Attracting a good deal of attention in today's session was a private estimate putting the Indian crop at 5,558,000 bales of 400 pounds each, exclusive of lint grown in Burma and for home use in India. This was 864,000 bales less than last year's crop.

Exports today 12,814 bales; season so far 2,443,285. Port receipts 2,385; port stocks 2,697,763.

Market Outlook

By MAX L. BROWN,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Uncertainty over foreign developments held the stock market in a rut this week.

Prices backed and filled in the dullest trading in five months and on the strength of a rally of fractions to more than a point today cut down the final losses for the week to minor fractions in the averages. The utility group rose against the trend on the Commonwealth & Southern-TVA settlement.

Public anticipation in the market was at a minimum, few traders being disposed to operate pending a settlement of the Spanish situation. The professionals, meanwhile, also cut down their operations on belief that a "showdown" may develop between the totalitarian states and the democracies with the close of the Spanish conflict.

Business news and corporate reports generally were favorable, but were overshadowed by the uneasiness created by the foreign situation.

Strength in the utility shares traced to the belief that the arrangement for sale of the Tennessee Electric Power Company, Commonwealth & Southern subsidiary, to the TVA, at a price which will leave some equity for the common stock represented a real effort by the government to appease the utility industry and set off an expansion program estimated around $1,000,000,000 annually over the next few years.

Aircraft shares were firm, also, with Glenn Martin the feature. The motor leaders managed to close the week on small gains and the prominent steel issues also closed slightly above last Saturday's levels.

Sales were the smallest since the September 10 week, aggregating 3,535,908 shares, against 4,220,740 in the preceding week.

Money Market.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—A fresh dip in the Netherlands guilder in terms of the dollar was balanced by an advance in the Belgian belga in today's foreign exchange dealings.

Weakness in the Dutch money was again laid by money analysts to a renewal of the recent withdrawal of foreign-held capital out of Amsterdam. The belga, on the other hand, benefited from rumors that internal cabinet difficulties were being smoothed out. The guilder closed .02 of a cent down and the belga up .01½ of a cent.

The British pound and French franc were unchanged while the Swiss franc fell back narrowly.

A total of $765,000 in gold was engaged in England as of some previous date for shipment here, the Federal Reserve bank reported.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Light pre-holiday evening-up buying held wheat prices fairly steady today and at times fractions higher. The close was unchanged to 1-4 up.

Aided by a good demand for cash wheat, the market overcame a lower opening, weakness in other world markets, lack of export demand and weather reports that generally were construed as being more favorable to the domestic winter wheat crop. There was some fear, however, that damage has been caused by the recent variable weather, but traders pointed out that until the growing season arrives the extent, if any, will not be known.

Weather was expected to be fair and warmer tomorrow over much of the belt and one or two precipitations late next week were forecast as likely.

Other domestic markets reflected the lower opening here, but kept pace and at the close Kansas City wheat was 1-8 to 1-4 higher; Minneapolis unchanged to 1-8 up. Winnipeg was unchanged to 1-8 off.

Corn followed wheat, starting about steady, sagging and rising in the closing minutes. There was very little trade and only small buying was necessary to hold prices up. May corn again was bought against sales of July contracts at about 1 1-4 cent difference. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to 1-4 lower.

Liverpool wheat, due unchanged to 1-4 lower, closed 1-4 to 3-8 off, pressed by moderate selling that reflected little inquiry for cash wheat and prospects of large shipments this week. Rotterdam closed 1 1-4 to 2 cents lower.

Export interest in North American grains was disappointing overnight. There was little if any buying credited to mills on the board of trade today, but local shippers reported sales of about 80,000 bushels of wheat. Oats were fractions lower in a light trade.

Forest To Honor War Heroes

State Legion Auxiliary Signs Agreement With U. S. Board for 30-Acre Tract of Pine Trees.

A memorial forest dedicated to Georgia World War participants will result from a co-operative agreement signed yesterday by the Georgia department, American Legion Auxiliary, and the United States Forest Service.

The agreement, signed by Mrs. W. S. Davison, auxiliary head, and Regional Forester Joseph C. Kircher, of the forest service, calls for immediate planting of 30 acres of young pines in the Chattahoochee National Forest in north Georgia as the first unit of the memorial forest. The auxiliary will pay for the cost of the seedlings and planting the area, while the forest service furnishes land, supervises planting and protects the area from fire.

Mrs. R. S. Innes, reforestation chairman of the auxiliary, declared planting of the memorial forest served a double purpose, honoring heroes and protecting and developing natural resources.

March 6 is the date set for the dedication.

Dr. Louie Newton Acting as Treasurer of Move To Help Wheat Street Church Complete Auditorium in Time for World Congress.

The white Baptists of Atlanta and the public generally are invited to join with the negro congregation of the Wheat Street Baptist church in special offerings today towards the completion of the auditorium of the Wheat Street church this spring so that it may be available in connection with the meeting of the Sixth World Congress of Baptists in Atlanta July 22.

This movement of co-operation had its origin in a meeting several months ago at the Wheat Street church when Dr. George W. Truett, president of the Baptist World Alliance, while on a visit to Atlanta, asked the privilege of making the first contribution from the white Baptists to finish the building before the alliance meeting.

Dr. Louie D. Newton was named treasurer of the fund, and during the fall raised a large sum from individuals which was applied on the work.

The contractor has estimated that at least $25,000 will be required to complete the auditorium, With this last phase completed, the building will provide an adequate and attractive meeting place for several of the important sectional meetings of the alliance, it was pointed out.

Located at Auburn and Yonge streets, the building will become one of the commanding church sites of downtown Atlanta. The congregation already has raised more than $150,000. There is no indebtedness on the property at this time. The late Dr. Prince J. Bryant served the Wheat Street church more than 40 years and from the church mission stations were established in a number of northern cities. Dr. W. H. Borders is the present pastor.

Commenting on the special offering today in the white Baptist churches and from friends generally, Dr. Newton said:

"We are afforded Sunday a fine opportunity to extend a helping hand to our neighbor race at a time when it will not only express the interest and pleasure which the white race always has in the progress of the negro race, but our help just now will enable the Wheat Street church to accomplish a task which will be of immeasurable value to the entire city.

Checks should be made to Louie D. Newton, treasurer. He will transmit all gifts to the trustees of the Wheat Street church, indicating names of churches and individuals with amounts contributed.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

From the facile pen of the late Pleasant Alexander Stovall, for many years editor of the Savannah Evening Press and minister to Switzerland during the turbulent days of the World War, comes a vivid and striking memoir entitled "Switzerland and the World War."

Crowded with that charming, gentlemanly quality which was Pleasant A. Stovall, the man, the book is an impartial, quiet reflection of the kaleidoscopic scenes which marched forcefully and ruthlessly over the European stage in those hectic days of fast-moving events.

The work is published by Mason, Inc. In its frontispiece is a familiar portrait of the author, and an introductory note tells briefly of Stovall's life and the characteristics which recommended him so favorably to so many and which made it possible from a casual note book to write so vivid a portrayal of war-time Europe.

Tells of Peace.

A preamble written in Berne just prior to the assisination of the Archduke gives the impression of peace and quiet from which Europe was shaken to its very vitals by the strident notes of war.

Passing in review in interesting sketches are diplomats, statesmen and heads of nations. A final chapter is devoted to the League of Nations and Switzerland. The book deals with the commonplace and with the booming guns of war. It carries the reader from the quietude of peace into the hell which was the most titanic struggle yet recorded by history. It is graphic in its descriptions and yet is written from the standpoint of a calm, experienced observer.

A chapter devoted to a horse show at Lucerne further emphasises the simple social life prior to the merciless suddenness of war and its attendant ruin.

Switzerland's Part Told.

Ensuing chapters relate the devastating developments and the part Switzerland played as a neutral. Pathetic efforts of the Swiss to care for wounded, to act as a clearing house for the exchange of prisoners and to give succor to those needing aid are chronicled accurately.

The sensational scandal revolving about Arthur Hoffman, national councillor, and Deputy Robert Grimm, which "shook Switzerland from center to circumference" is written simply and forcefully.

The work of the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross, the benevolent activities of Americans in Berne and other agencies is faithfully chronicled.

All in all, the book is one of which those who knew Stovall know he would be proud to claim. It is simple, yet direct. It is forceful, yet unostentatious. In charming language, Stovall, characteristically tells a great story.

PWA CONSIDERS FUND FOR ATLANTA

$10,000,000 for Improvements Sought by Senate.

The $10,000,000 for municipal improvements for Atlanta and vicinity, which failed at a bond election last fall, were among pending PWA applications requested by the senate for consideration, Regional Director H. T. Cole said yesterday.

"Whether any of the applications listed could receive an allotment if further appropriation for public works is made depends on terms of the legislation," Cole said.

The 21 projects were for Atlanta improvements which never reached eligibility after a combined city-county bond election failed to bring out the constitutional majority of voters necessary. Other projects were for a $2,000,000 water works for DeKalb county, and a school at Flat Rock in Fulton county.

by Jack Troy

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—The wide strip of hard-packed sand hard by the rolling Atlantic which has made this city famous, stretches bright and serene under a shimmering sun. It serves only as a scenic drive for visitors now.

But Daytona's beach, greatest in the world, has known glory, death and destruction in the realm of sports. It was on this curving 12-mile beach that Sir Malcolm Campbell averaged 276 miles per hour and several times attained the one-way speed of 300 m. p. h. or five miles a minute.

The English had great success driving high-powered juggernauts to super-speed marks. Sir Henry Seagrave was the first of the Englishmen to come. He piloted the Golden Arrow in excess of 200 m. p. h.

Campbell followed in the streamlined Bluebird and set the all-time high for the beach course. His mark for super-speed remained until another Englishman, Captain Eyston, last year smashed it to bits on a Salt Lake course.

It seems strange, looking back, that the Englishman Seagrave, uninjured as a race driver, should go to his death behind the wheel of a speedboat. The very name suggested tragedy.

There was only one Englishman who failed here. That was Kaye Don. He had a queer-looking machine called the Silver Bullet and it made its best speed when being towed up and down the beach by a wrecker.

The English represent the glory of the famed beach which was discovered as a speedway by Barney Oldfield. Campbell was satisfied that he had traveled as fast as the course would permit when he shifted his base of operations to the Salt Lake course.

There is an inlet at the south end of the course here—Ponce de Leon inlet—and speeds in excess of 300 miles per hour would hardly allow the stopping of a car before driver and all would be plunged into the water. After traveling the measured mile going south, there is only five miles in which to stop a racing machine streaking at three miles a minute or more.

And so the beach basks in the glory of the English super-speed aces and tries to forget the tragedy . . .

LOCKHART AND BIBLE.

It so happens that your correspondent has witnessed both sides of man's efforts to become the king of super-speed. I saw the intrepid English and recall that on certain days when fog rolled across the beach, city officials had to step in and refuse to allow the impetuous Campbell to risk his life.

When Campbell made up his mind to run it did not matter that visibility extended little farther than the sloping nose of the Bluebird. I saw Campbell reach the heights.

But I also saw efforts that resulted in the death of two drivers—Frank Lockhart and Lee Bible. Lockhart was an idol of the racegoers. He drove a tiny machine called the Stutz Blackhawk. It was deemed too small for super-speed marks, but Lockhart never thought so.

He flashed through the measured mile at 200 m. p. h. before near tragedy befell him. That was the time he left the course and drove into the ocean. He was barely saved from drowning. The Blackhawk was repaired and Lockhart tried again.

In full view of the grandstand, the tiny Blackhawk whined at tremendous speed toward the timing wire and then blew a tire. The car sickenly turned end over end and Lockhart was thrown clear. There was no life in his body when attendants reached him.

Mrs. Lockhart was parked in a car by the timing tower and the tragedy happened right in front of her. The entire race world mourned the death of Lockhart, who had an engaging personality and an absorbing desire to keep the record for super-speed in America.

The greatest tragedy was the untimely end of Lee Bible, the home town boy who was inexperienced. He drove the Triplex, seven tons of racing machine on wire wheels. Both Bible and a newsreel cameraman went to their death.

Lee Bible had completed the run south and, coming north, the Triplex was belching black smoke which writers later recalled as suggesting a funeral pyre. He roared past the grandstand and was nearing the timing wire when the huge machine swerved.

In the path, near the sand dunes, the camera man cranked. It all happened in the twinkling of an eye. The camera man leaped as the Triplex swerved free of his camera. Fate had impelled him to leap to destruction and a second later there was only flying sand, stunned people, the twisted wreckage of the machine and the torn bodies of driver and camera man as mute testimony of the beach's greatest tragedy.

FILMS WERE DEVELOPED.

The camera and tripod stood untouched and the films later were developed and shown on the screen. There was an element of horror about them. They showed the belching Triplex bearing down and then all was blank. The camera man had stood his ground until a split second before the Triplex hit him and then bored into the overhanging dunes.

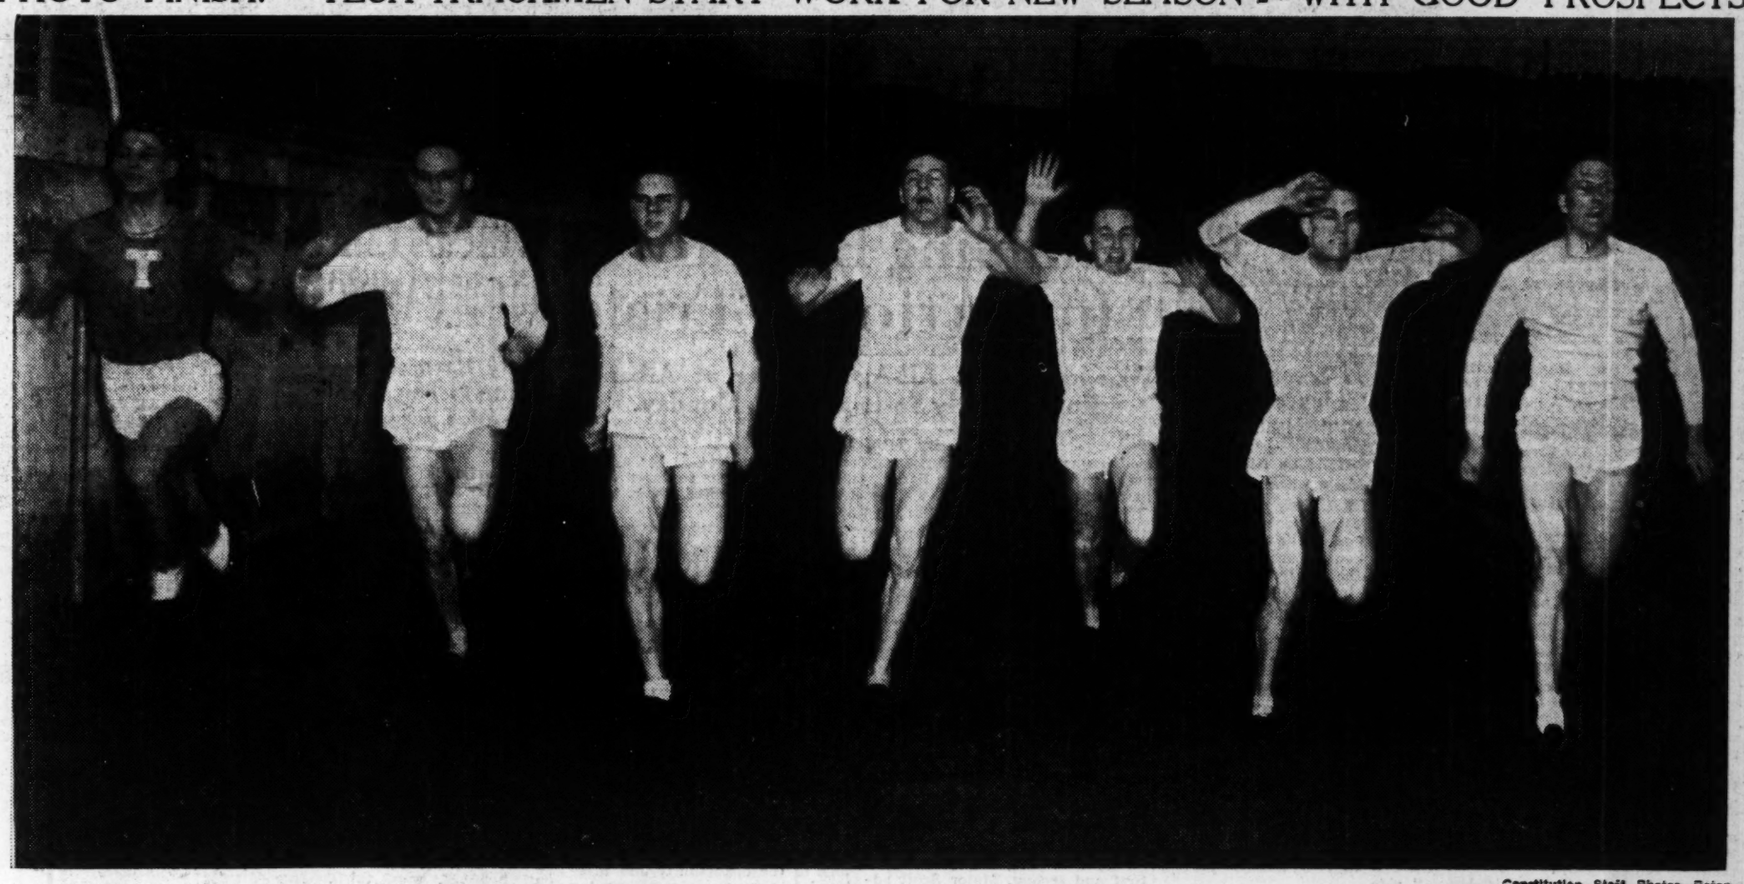

How wholesale tragedy was averted no one will ever know. The dunes were crowded with spectators. And on the very lip of the dunes where Bible crashed, people peered over and were unharmed by flying wreckage.

Stricter regulations were put into effect thereafter. The crowd was held back at safer points of vantage.

The era of super-speed has passed for the curving ribbon of sand now. There is a speed limit of 20 miles per hour in the bathing zone and speeding in any other parts is strictly forbidden.

The beach does not necessarily have to bask in the reflected glory of super-speed achievements, however. It remains the greatest of all bathing beaches and a scenic drive unsurpassed anywhere.

KENTUCKY FIVE ROUTS ALABAMA

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 11.—(AP) The Rupp Rough Riders of Kentucky carved out a 45-27 victory over Alabama in a rough basketball game here tonight.

It was a wild and woolly tilt with Referee Frank Lane and Umpire Bowser Chest calling 34 personal fouls.

The half ended with Kentucky on top 23-13. Alabama scored but three field goals in the first half and five in the second.

High scorer for the evening was Homer (Tub) Thompson, senior Wildcat center, who did not enter the game until near the end of the first half, with four field goals and five free throws.

Alex Must Replace Center and Guards

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Replacement of several vital line stars and development of substitute ends will be the big problems of Coach W. A. Alexander during the six weeks of spring football training which starts Monday at 4 o'clock.

About 70 candidates are expected to report.

Coach Alex expects the center and guard positions to give him the most trouble. He lost an all-Southeastern performer at the pivot spot with the graduation of Jack Chivington and will have to replace four of the greatest guards ever assembled on one team, Junior Anderson, Allen Wilcox, J. L. Brooks and Mack Furlow.

These five men plus such stars as George Smith, Gay Thrash, Tom Allen, ends; Glenn Cushing and Walter Rimmer, tackles, combined to give the Techs one of the strongest lines in history and naturally replacements will be hard to find.

RESERVES TO HELP.

However, with the return of several reserves and the help of sophomores, the Jacket line is again expected to be able to hold its own with the best.

Oddly, the backfield has been the main problem of Tech coaches for the last few years. But this year the scene is reversed with all big headaches coming from the line. None of the Jacket backs graduated and only one, Juno Page, won't be back. Page is ineligible because of scholastic difficulties.

In addition, several sophomores are expected to give the Jacket backfield the zip and speed it needed last year. Johnny Bosch, fiery tailback; Lloyd Boor, Hal Lamb, Bobby Pair, Ralph Plaster and Sanders are all given good chances to make the varsity.

Then there are the old dependables, Billy Gibson, Howard Ector, Buck Murphy, Earl Wheby, Bobby Beers and Joe Bartlett, who will form an excellent nucleus.

NOT SWITCHED.

Incidentally, Bartlett will not be switched to end as was reported at the close of last season, Coach Alex said yesterday.

Bob Ison and Paul Sprayberry are the only ends returning, but Sophomores George Webb and Arthur, plus a couple of reserves, including Charlie Burroughs, will strengthen the position.

The tackle problem is not so serious with Charlie Wood, Butch Aderholt, Eston Lackey and Louis Perkerson returning. Carlton Lee, big sophomore, may make the grade this year.

A complete new set of guards must be found. Only Jim Hart and Bo-Bo Richards have experience and they worked part time on the red devils last year. Tipton and Hood appear best of the new-comers.

WRIGHT GOOD.

Jim Wright, sensational freshman last year, is expected to give veterans Roane Beard and Bob Nowell a real fight for the first string berth. He appears to be the sophomore most likely to make the grade.

The status of Hawk Cavette, star punter, is still in doubt. He played part time in the backfield last year and part time at tackle. However, it is expected he will be back at tackle, to be called from the line to punt.

Grover Wilkins is another jack-of-all-trades who doesn't know what he'll play. He started out as a center, was switched to blocking back and then to tackle last year.

Chick Team Will Hustle, Brazill Says

New Memphis Manager Admits Team Looks Good on Paper.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 11.—(AP) Win, lose or draw, Memphis Chicks this year will have to "go out and hustle."

So says Frank Brazill, ex-Chick who "came home" today as the new manager of the Memphis baseball club. Brazill arrived for conferences with club officials before meeting the squad at the DeLand (Fla.) training camp on March 13.

Fans who remembered his colorful and fiery performances here from 1929 through 1934 granted it was a natural policy for Brazill to advance.

"I will say there's going to be hustle on this ball club. I like fire and I believe we can win ball games with it," he said.

Brazill indicated he expected big things from two newcomers on the squad, Outfielder Oscar Eckhardt and Pitcher Allyn Stout.

Of himself, he said he believed he would confine his main activities to coaching and serving them up during batting practice.

TECH TRACKMEN MEET SIX FOES

George Griffin's Tech track squad will meet six teams and enter three meets this season, according to the schedule released yesterday by the athletic association.

Eighty men reported for the first practice Friday afternoon but Griffin expects about 115 out Monday.

Much of the success of this year's squad depends on the way in which Tommy Beals, star soph, performs. He is one of the best broad jumpers in the conference and also an excellent sprint man.

BEALS, BELCHER.

Beals won the Southeastern A. A. U. meet last year with a jump of 24 feet, one-quarter inch, a jump which will win points in any meet. He also will strengthen Tech in the quarter-mile. With Charlie Belcher also entered the Jackets should win plenty of points in this event.

Beals will also run the 100-yard dash along with Tom Jones.

Coach Griffin expects the Jackets to be weak in the weight events where Joe Bartlett and Roane Beard will do the most work.

Strength of the Jackets lies in Charlie Belcher's specialties, the the two-mile for the Jackets. Both Conoley and Manley have done around 10:8, which is good enough to win points.

Ivey and Weeks will high jump, and Weeks, Peoples and Murko

Commodores Beat Jacket Team, 49-42

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's hopes for going into second place in the Southeastern Conference cage race were blasted tonight when Vanderbilt's basketeers negotiated a 49-to-42 victory in a hard-fought game.

After trailing, 8 to 22, after little more than 12 minutes had elapsed in the first half, the Engineers unleashed a spurt that narrowed the Commodore's half-time lead to 24 to 21.

Ross Hanna and Pinky Lipscomb, Commodore forwards, regained their eyes in the second period and pushed Vanderbilt into a lead which wasn't relinquished after the first seven minutes of furious action.

It was Vandy's fourth league victory in eight games and Tech's third loss against four triumphs.

LOW CEILING.

Tech experienced marked difficulty getting accustomed to the low-ceilinged court—a roller skating rink on other nights—while Hanna and Ed Hunter found the range without loss of time.

Open Champ Challenges English Pro

Ralph Guldahl.

The former Dallas amateur who made himself golf's No. 1 man by winning the open two years in succession, sprawled in the shade as he finished his second round in the $5,000 Texas open here and snapped:

"I'd jump at the chance to play this Cotton. I've only seen him hit two or three shots, but I know he must be a grand shotmaker. I'd like him at 72 holes—just anywhere he cares to play. It might be that we could fix up a 'home and home' match if I go to the British open this year, as I plan."

Recent reports that Cotton was negotiating for an American appearance—for a light $18,500 guarantee—stirred up the Guldahl-Cotton possibility.

"Right now I feel as if I could beat Cotton and win the open for the third time," said Guldahl. "My shots are just as good as ever today. I drew the line at one thing, however—cold weather. I'm not much when its cold."

Guldahl was one of three players mentioned in the temporary golfing capital of the United States here tonight as a Cotton opponent. Dapper Paul Runyan, National P. G. A. champion, also got in his word and said he would drop everything for a shot at Cotton. Slammin' Sam Snead also was mentioned as a foe for Cotton if he made a six-week appearance in the United States.

Grant, Mako Defeated By Mulloy and Sabin

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Ore., defeated top-seeded Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, 4-6, 1-6, 11-9, 6-0, 6-0, in the semi-final of the Everglades tennis tournament here today.

Mako, doubles partner of Don Budge in the Davis Cup matches last summer and runner-up in the Nationals at Forest Hills, tired perceptably after the third set. He suffered an attack of ptomaine poisoning earlier this week.

Gardnar Mulloy, lanky University of Miami star, defeated Bryan M. ("Bitsy") Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., in a bitterly contested match. The score was 6-1, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Grant, seeded second in the meet, bowed before the hard service and soft drop shots of the Miami ace, ranked fourth.

BITTER RIVALS OUT TO DECIDE HARDWOOD TIE

Pre-Tourney Games Occupy Other Clubs' Interest This Week.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High and G. M. A., Atlanta's football co-champions, have set Wednesday afternoon, February 22, as the date on which the city prep basketball championship will be decided. A postponed game from January 24 will decide the issue since G. M. A. upset the undefeated Tech High five, 33 to 18, Friday night in the final round of the city league, and left the race all tied up.

Another bargain double-header for basketball fans is set for Tuesday night, February 21, on the Henry Grady court when Commercial battles Boys' High and Marist plays G. M. A. in a postponed round of February 3.

Meanwhile, members of both the city prep and the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference will play a number of pre-tournament games this week and next.

PLAY 2 GAMES.

Decatur and Druid Hills, two bitter members of the N. G. I. C., will play a double-header Tuesday night on the Decatur court. A girls' game will open the program at 7:30 o'clock.

Commercial and Russell will play a double-header Tuesday night on the East Point court. It's the first N. G. I. C. game for Commercial and will give some sort of comparison on the relative strength of the two teams in the N. G. I. C. tourney.

Russell is the defending champion and has led the way in the independent schedules. Russell will follow with a double-header with Marietta Friday night on the East Point court.

North Fulton has no games scheduled for the week but negotiations are under way for a couple of practice games.

PURPLES TRAVEL.

In the absence of city league games, Boys' High will take a trip to South Carolina, Friday and Saturday, playing Clemson's Freshmen and Spartanburg.

G. M. A. also will be busy during the week, playing Darlington Tuesday afternoon at College Park and following with a game at Canton on Friday night and the Auburn Freshmen Saturday night at College Park.

It's the first time in the history of G. M. A. athletics that an Auburn Freshman basketball team has made a trip to the College Park campus. G. M. A. lost to the Tiger Cubs early in the season at Auburn.

Chief interest centers about that Tech High-G. M. A. game Wednesday week. It should be the highlight of the prep season, in that the championship will be at stake.

G. M. A. and Tech High have been bitter prep enemies for many years but the fire was rekindled last fall with plenty of material when G. M. A. gave Tech High its only defeat of the season in the annual football game at Ponce de Leon park.

More action followed Friday night in the roughest prep basketball game of the year. Both teams began to growl long before game time and once the referee's whistle blew, it was a signal for a general alarm for action on the court.

Wednesday week should see a climax to the bitter feud with the city prep basketball title as a reward for the winner. A bargain in basketball, if there ever was one.

SEEKS SECOND STRAIGHT VICTORY IN U. S. TRIALS THIS WEEK

SEABISCUIT 5-2 IN SANTA ANITA

Kayak II Second Choice at 8-1; Ligaroti, Assabaw Quoted at 15-1.

By THOMAS H. NOONE,
United Press Racing Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit was a 5-2 favorite to win the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap next month, in today's revised quotations in the winter book of James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner.

The 1938 handicap king, who was nosed out in the past two renewals of the world's richest horse race, has remained favorite in the list of 107 nominations issued early last month. His opening price was 5-1.

AT SANTA ANITA.

Seabiscuit, now quartered at Santa Anita park, scene of the March 4 classic, is scheduled to carry topweight of 134 pounds. It is reported Ralph Neeves, a 20-year-old San Francisco jockey, will ride.

South American steeds are receiving a modicum of attention in Carroll's book. Kayak II, which Howard purchased in the Argentine, is second choice to his illustrious stablemate at 8-1. Bing Crosby's Ligaroti, another Argentine importation which was beaten by Seabiscuit in a match race at Del Mar park last season; A. A. Baroni's speedy sprinter Specify; L. B. Mayer's Ossabaw, a converted jumper; A. G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly, which dead-heated with Seabiscuit in Maryland last year, and Mrs. E. Friendly's Jacola, 1937 filly champion, are equal third choices at 15-1.

Next in line at 20-1 are: T. B. Martin's Cravat; W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite, winner of the Belmont Futurity in world record time—1:14 2-5—Nelson A. Howard's Gosum; Main Man, another L. B. Mayer candidate, and Mrs. B. Franzheim's Xalapa Clown, unbeaten in three starts last year.

ARGENTINE STEED.

Sorteado, another Argentine steed for which Charles Howard paid $40,000; Millsdale Stable's Sir Raleigh; Tom Taggart's Marica; W. J. Zeigler's Esposa, conqueror of Seabiscuit in Maryland last year; John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, and Mrs. E. Denemark's War Minstrel, which led War Admiral a merry chase until he bolted in the stretch in a handicap in Maryland last season, are grouped at 30-1 each.

H. Maxwell Howard's Stagehand, which is being pointed for the $50,000 Widener challenge cup in Florida to be run on the same day as the handicap is still being quoted at 40-1. Others in that bracket are Horace Luro's Vino Puro; Galsu, a stablemate of Porter's Mite, and Tom Taggart's Yale O'Nine.

Rambling Buckaroo In National Trials

By TOM McRAE.

Ichauway Rambling Buckaroo, fresh from a victory in the all-age event and a second in the derby stakes at the famous southern amateur field trials last week, will be entered in the United States field trials at Holly Springs, Miss., beginning tomorrow.

After this his next appearance will be in the amateur championships of America, to be held the 20th at Holly Springs. In this event he will be handled by Major Trammell Scott. The skill and direction of Major Scott was responsible in no small measure for the Buckaroo's great showing at Albany. The Buckaroo will be entered in the all-age stakes in the amateur championships.

SCOTT PLEASED.

Major Scott is highly pleased so far with the "education" of Ichauway Rambling Buckaroo and expects even greater performances by the young dog in the future.

Much as he enjoyed seeing Ichauway Rambling Buckaroo win a first and second, Major Scott admits his biggest kick came when Little Mike won second in the all-age. The Buckaroo and Little Mike both are of the Ichauway plantation kennels and owned by Robert W. Woodruff.

Little Mike's shoulder was injured and Woodruff considered not entering him. Major Scott knew Little Mike's sire and dam and knew a shoulder injury wouldn't have stopped them. He told Woodruff, "Little Mike with a broken leg could give a performance better than most of these dogs."

That day at Albany was hot and Little Mike went out in midday. The dog seemed to realize his injury handicapped his appearance and it made him try all the harder. Little Mike found a covey and the style in which he handled it left nothing to be desired.

M'MATH VICTOR IN BLIND BOGEY

Atlanta's golfers took advantage of another fine afternoon and unusually large February crowds were reported on every course. The professionals also took advantage of the opportunity and three blind bogeys were run, paying high dividends to the winners.

More than 100 players trekked over the Druid Hills course and L. D. McMath was alone in winning the blind bogey. The score was 72. Second place was shared between H. H. Ellison, Dowse Donaldson, Forrest Ewing, Leonard Crawford, Dr. J. J. Clarke and C. Bishop.

Others in the prize list at East Lake were: L. A. Farmer, Al Staton, V. B. Prater, W. S. Smith, Jules Soulie, F. O. Sallee, W. D. P. McDowell, E. D. Key, R. O. Estes, F. W. Rade, G. Adams, P. G. Lombard, J. H. Irwin, Roger Martin, Dr. F. G. Hodgson, P. D. McCarley, A. M. Perkerson, and A. P. McElroy.

J. H. Erwin won the booby prize.

Three players, Tom Allen, Billy Wardlaw Jr. and Tate Earnest shared the top prize on the Capital City course with 74's.

J. G. Bradberry, E. B. Adams, C. J. Currie and Dol Ballard were close enough to win second place.

Entries for East Lake's regular weekly dogfite must be in the golf shop by noon today. Play will start at 12:45 o'clock on the No. 2 course.

HE SHOULD DO.

IMPOUND TAKES $10,000 HANDICAP

Highly Favored Porter's Mite Is Third; Our Mat Second.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Cal., Feb. 11.—(UP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Impound, moving up in the closing yards after a brilliant stretch run, today defeated a good field of three-year-olds in the $10,000 San Vincente handicap, a seven-furlong preview of serious contenders for the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby.

Our Mat was second and Porter's Mite third.

Impound paid $19.80, $6 and $3.60. Our Mat paid $5.20 and $3.80; Porter's Mite paid $3.

Farr off the pace at the half and in third position heading into the stretch turn, Impound, the bay son of Sun Beau, came swiftly in the run home, won by a head over William Zeigler's surprise colt, Our Mat.

Porter's Mite, winner of the Belmont Futurity and holder of the world's record for six and a half furlongs, was third, five lengths off the wire.

Norman Church's Sweet Nancy came in fourth.

Impound carried only 112 pounds, against the top load of 126 handled by the Mite. The Sun Beau colt was in close quarters in the early going, while Morning Breeze and C. S. Howard's Hy Camp showed the early foot.

At the half he was sixth and at the three-quarters fifth, when Our Mat took to the front.

Down the stretch, it was Impound and Our Mat in a driving finish, with Porter's Mite dropping from fourth to fifth before going back to race gamely at the end.

Baseball Managers Meet Monday Night

There will be a meeting of the Georgia, Dixie and Commercial league baseball team managers at 97 Pryor street Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. This marks the first meeting of the season for the managers and a large attendance is expected. Most of the clubs affiliated with the leagues last year have stated that they will return and will be represented at this meeting so that plans can be mapped for an early start this year.

Playing fees will be practically the same as last year with the exception of a reduction in the franchise fees. New teams are especially invited to either of the leagues.

HARRISON TIES JIMMY THOMSON WITH 134 TOTAL

Byron Nelson Crowds Leaders With 136; Byrd Has 137.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 11. (UP)—Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., and E. J. Harrison, of Oak Park, Ill., were tied for the lead in the $5,000 Texas open golf tournament at the end of the second day's play today.

Thomson turned in a 70, which, added to his brilliant 64 of Friday, gave him his 134. Harrison posted a 66—five under par—making his two-day total 68-66—134.

Byron Nelson, of Reading, Pa., crowded the leaders with a card of 67-69—136. Sam Byrd, of Philadelphia had a 69-68—137.

Frank Walsh, of Rumson, N. Y., and Lloyd Mangrum shared the 138 groove; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., turned in a 66 today for a total of 139.

Clayton Heafner, of Greensboro, N. C., and John Barnum, of Edinburg, Texas, also had 139's.

Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, turned in a 69 today, which added to his 72 of yesterday, gave him 141.

Auburn Basketeers Beat B'ham-South'n

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Auburn's basketeers put on a whirlwind finish here tonight to lick Birmingham-Southern, 52-35. The score was tied, 19-19, at halftime, but Auburn's offensive began to function in the second half, with Malvern Morgan and Crawford Holmes leading the way.

Blakeney To Pilot Cotton States Nine

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 11.—(UP)—Oliver (Buster) Blakeney, shortstop for the Memphis Chicks, of the Southern league, will be manager of the Helena, Ark., club of the Cotton States league next season, it was announced tonight.

VANDY DEFEATS JACKETS, 49 TO 42

tion, Vandy held an 18-to-6 margin.

Lipscomb, sophomore star who has paced Vandy's offensive maneuvers so far this season, sent the Commodores' total to 22 while Jim Hughes chucked in a lone fielder before Tech took time out.

That marked the starting point for a series of brilliant pivot and pass combinations that netted Tech 13 points while Vandy was held to two.

HUGHES-HAYMANS.

Seconds after the last half began, the Hughes-Hymans combination saw to it that Tech remained in the game, the former getting a charity toss and the latter a fielder to tie the score at 24-all.

Hayman's free throw gave the visitors a one-point lead which Lipscomb wiped out with a fielder, followed by Hanna adding five points. With Vandy on the top side of a 31-to-25 count, Tech started again and Burroughs added three points, Smith one and Hughes two to knot the count at 31.

Then, Vanderbilt unleashed a furious passing attack that pulled it ahead, 40 to 35. During the remaining five minutes of play, Hanna and Lipscomb continued to register sufficiently to hold Tech safe.

In The DOG HOUSE

Among those attending from here are Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Adams, 1744 Ponce de Leon; Mrs. E. W. Holtzendorf, 2806 Atwood road; I. J. Osbun, 619 Peachtree street; Mrs. Pam Johnston Patterson, 231 Peachtree Battle avenue, and Mrs. Wallace Pflueger, North Decatur road. They will exhibit boxers, Boston terriers and long-haired dachshunds and smooth dachshunds. Idlewood Kennels will enter a Boston terrier.

Dorothy Allen Foster, of Austell, will enter a shetland sheepdog, and Mr. and Mrs. U. Lathrop Hopkins, of the Whitehall plantation in Savannah, an English springer spaniel.

There will be more than 3,000 entries, the approximate benching capacity of the Garden. Seven breeds which were not exhibited in Westminster rings last year will be represented. They are clumber spaniels, Scottish deerhounds, harriers, otterhounds, Alaskan malamutes, rottweilers and giant schnauzers. This year there will be sled-dog competition. The competitors will be judged in the ring as well as for their pulling power.

No other show in America has so many different breeds on exhibition at one time as does Westminster, the Kentucky Derby of the dog shows.

Best known of all the Westminster entries is the famous poodle Pillicoe Rumpelstilskin. He won the best dog in America award in 1937 and was chosen best non-sporting dog in 1938. Some say he is the greatest poodle that ever lived.

When shortening a name it is customary to take in as much as possible without going beyond the first syllable, but if this were done in the case of Rumpelstilskin it may offend good taste, so it was decided to use the last syllable. Rumpelstilskin thus becomes Skin. Probably the most amazing fact about Skin is that he has been washed only twice in his life. The last time he was washed it took three days for his heavy coat to dry.

His teeth are brushed once a day. Two hours are spent each day brushing him.

Just as any other celebrity, he has made personal appearance tours and has been on the radio. To quiet the cynics, his trainer explains seriously:

"He tells stories. His face changes expression as well as the tone of his bark as he goes along."

BEATING THE BISCUIT.

LOS ANGELES.—The next $100,000 show at Santa Anita is now three weeks away, but there is one query for which no one seems to have an answer. This query is, "Who is going to beat Seabiscuit?"

Rosemont did in 1937 and Stagehand did in 1938. But in each case they beat him by a photo finish after the Biscuit had drawn all the worst of racing luck.

When the 'Biscuit returned here from South Carolina there was a rumor around that he wasn't right. He was 40 pounds overweight. But with all this gossip flying around they put him at 6 to 1 in the winter books.

A few days ago they woke him up. Half stifling a yawn he moved out of his stall and ran the fastest three-eighths the track has seen this season. That was enough. His winter book price dropped to 3 to 1 the next day.

"The old man is in just as good condition now as he was against War Admiral," Charles Howard, his owner, said. "We'll give him at least one good race before the $100,000 show and this time I think he will make it. Just about two inches of space cost him $200,000 the last two years, but if he has any racing luck at all this time I don't believe they will need that motion picture machine to give us the answer."

Some Challengers.

Ligaroti at this spot is given the next best chance. They ran head and head at Del Mar last summer in close to record time. Dauber is another with a chance. So is Specify. Ossabaw might be a surprise. The same goes for Heelfly and Gosum and a few others.

But there is still the 'Biscuit. Getting a little old? Well, there is still a horse named Malicious around here which is winning two-mile races. And Malicious happens to be 12 years old.

We used to think Exterminator was all right when he was winning as an 8 or 9-year-old. And carrying 138 pounds. To keep on winning after you have passed the 12-year mark is something else. A 12-year-old horse would about correspond to a 50-year-old human. Maybe 55 or 60.

No. Seabiscuit isn't too old. He is one of the few thoroughbreds which has stood up through long campaigns. Man o' War had to quit as a 3-year-old. Seabiscuit didn't get warmed up until he was 3.

Bad racing luck—to be knocked down, to be pocketed, to be badly ridden—can beat any horse. It beat Man o' War once. But the dope around Santa Anita is that all these things can't keep happening to Seabiscuit. He proved against War Admiral what he could do without interference. He certainly has one break coming his way.

A Record That Stands.

It isn't often that you find a record-holder up in a tree and have to call him down for an interview.

This happened to us yesterday, involving Tarzan Johnny Weissmuller, who was practising swings with the 205-pound chimp who has been his chum for the last few years. We started talking about Tarzan Johnny's swimming records.

"The funny thing," he said, "is that I still hold the record for the 100-yard free-style. You know what they have been doing to swimming records these last few years. Tearing them all to pieces. But that 51-second record for the 100 is still there. And that's something I can't understand, as I made it nearly 12 years ago. Just a year or two ago I got back into swimming condition and broke my own record twice at 50 flat. I should think by now it would be down to 49 anyway."

Weissmuller holds one of the bizarre records of sport. It is something that stands alone. In his first competition he set a new world's record for the 100. He broke this record in his second start. He broke it again in this third. There may be someone else who can match this performance, but I can't recall the name just at this moment.

City Basketball

ATLANTA LEAGUE.

The Y Triangles and Ahepa teams of the Atlanta League are in a tie for first place with one game lost and five won in the second half. Both of them will have comparatively easy games in the final series which will be played on February 22, and this means that a playoff will be needed to see which one will play the Aces, winners of the first half. Sons of Pericles and Piggly-Wiggly will be the two teams that will try to unhorse them in the last series.

There will be no games in the Atlanta League this week on account of tournaments.

The Independents have been moving at a fast pace the last few weeks and are expected to defeat the league-leading R. I. C. team. The leading scorers of the league, Sloan, of R. I. C., and Effel, of the Independents, should provide plenty of fireworks for the fans.

Tse second game of the day will find F. O. P. meeting the Cardozians in another girls' game. The last game between the two teams was won by F. O. P. in the last 30 seconds of play 12-11 and this game should also be a thriller.

Ace Pitcher Would Help Crackers---Fans

(Editor's Note: Another reporter goes Gallup-ing out to poll Atlanta fans on the coming Southern league race. It was a clear and sunshiny day. The alert reader will discover the clear and sunshiny day has little to do with the story.)

By TOM McRAE.

Unless civic pride has blinded Cracker fans' judgment, there is no need to play out the Southern League schedule. Just give the championship to Paul Richards' team and let them at the Texas League winners.

Customers at Ponce de Leon of all ages and occupations have confidence in this year's club, though they all readily admit a good pitcher or maybe two could be used and they are not sure about third base.

JEAN SHIRLEY

MRS. L. W. MONTGOMERY

J. C. DEADY

J. C. Deady, wholesale coal salesman, pointed out the near impossibility of a pitcher approaching Tom Sunkel's record last year. "We'd have to get some one out of the big league to pitch as Tom did," he said.

He was one of those dubious about a capable replacement for Johnny Hill at third. The Crackers will miss Buster Chatham, a fine team man, Mr. Deady believes.

If the Crackers bog down, the management will make the changes necessary for a first division club, he predicts. "They won't let Cracker fans down."

Between ticket sales to a colossal screen production and eight big acts of vodvil, Miss Jean Shirley, of 742 Frederica street, said she thought the Crackers would have a good team, but admitted she shouldn't be regarded as the last word on the subject of baseball.

PRAISES RICHARDS.

"Manager Richards must be an inspiring leader, as the team plays at top speed, all through the game. It is hard to beat a team which does that," she said.

Harvey Cheek, of 303 Madison avenue, in Decatur, is eleven years and not greatly concerned about the Crackers. When the grave question of how'd he think the Crackers will do this year was put to him, he replied with an air and sophistication that would do credit to one twenty years his senior, "They'll win."

It is not a good way to win friends and influence people to ask in a brusque tone, "Why?" when people make statements which they think obvious. For a moment it seemed that Harvey was about to answer, "just because," but he didn't. He said simply: "The Crackers won last year."

LIKED CHATHAM.

"I liked to see Buster Chatham play. He was my favorite. I am sorry he won't be back this year."

Mrs. L. W. Montgomery, of 934 Stewart avenue, almost plagiarized Blondy Ryan's "They can't beat us." The way she said "They can't beat the Crackers," it sounded as if she coined the phrase.

Mrs. Montgomery said she was unable to see many games, but followed the team through the papers. "My son is a great fan and sees most of the games. He thinks they'll win. I see in a poll of the writers the Crackers received the most votes."

Jacket, Bulldog Quintets Resume Rivalry Here Saturday

GEORGIA FACES FLORIDA TWICE; TECH PLAYS TIDE

Second Meeting Finds Bulldogs and Jackets at Equal Strength

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Tech and Georgia's giant-killing basketball teams will meet for the last time this season, unless fate pairs them in the Southeastern tournament, Saturday night at the Tech gym.

The game promises to be a slam-bang affair with neither team rating the favorite's role. It will bring together the Jackets, upset winners over L. S. U., and the Bulldogs, surprise victors over Alabama earlier in the season. And the outcome probably won't be decided until the last three or four minutes.

SOPH STARS.

It will bring together two teams largely made up of sophomores. For Tech there are Jim Hughes, Jim Williams and Charlie Burroughs. On the Georgia side are Dan Kirkland, Joe Killian and Roy Chatham.

These first year men are well flanked by veterans. Georgia has a pair of junior veterans, Cecil Kelly and Alex McCaskill, while the Techs depend on two seniors, Junior Anderson and George Smith, to act as a steadying influence

The Bulldogs won the first game of the season between the two bitter rivals, 32 to 26, but can't be listed as favorites because the second game will be played on Tech' court—which means a lot in basketball. Eight points, according to the Jacket Coach Roy Mundorff.

BIG CROWD.

Undoubtedly the largest crowd of the season will pack the new Tech auditorium to watch the game in which past performances don't amount to the space it takes to print them.

Georgia has two other games before the Jacket battle. Elmer Lampe's five will entertain Florida in a pair of return battles at Athens Monday and Tuesday. Previously this year the two teams split two games at Gainesville, but Georgia will be odd-on favorites in both Athens games.

Tech has only one engagement before Saturday night. They will go to Tuscaloosa Wednesday night to meet Hank Crisp's powerful Crimson Tide, of Alabama.

Both teams are well into the last half of their schedules as each has only five more games to play before tournament time.

STILL CLOSED.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Officials of Gulfstream Park reported to the State Racing Commission today that plans to reopen the race track at Hollywood, which closed last Saturday after four days of operation, had not progressed sufficiently to make an announcement.

S. I. C. GOLFERS VIE AT ATHENS ON APRIL 13, 14

L. S. U. Reigns as Team Favorite; Expensive Prizes Are Offered.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The fifth annual southern intercollegiate golf tournament, sponsored by the University of Georgia, will be held April 13, 14 and 15, it was announced here today by H. J. Stegeman and Johnny Broadnax, jointly in charge of this year's show.

The tournament comes a week earlier than usual.

"We are going to give six expensive watches in addition to the usual list of prizes this year," Stegeman said, "and I believe the prize list we are offering is as attractive as any now."

Watches will go to the medalist, winner of the tournament, and each member of the winning four-man team.

As usual, Louisiana State University will reign as favorite to capture the team title and in addition will bring one of the strongest bidders for individual honors in young Henry Castillo, long-driving star from Florida.

For the first time since the tournament was inaugurated there will be no former champion competing. Paul Leslie, winner the first year when a freshman at Louisiana State, played in all four previous meets but graduation removed him from the L. S. U. squad last June.

After Leslie captured the inaugural meet, Freddie Haas, also of L. S. U. and one of the nation's finest amateur golfers, took the title in 1936 and Georgia's Rosser Little won in 1937.

More than a hundred golfers representing at least 15 schools are expected to compete.

Selticks, Big Shots Clash at Dahlonega

DAHLONEGA, Ga., Feb. 11.—Basketball enthusiasts of north Georgia are developing high blood pressures over the forthcoming cage-cotillion to be held here Thursday night, February 17, in the gymnasium of the North Georgia College.

Meeting each other in cautious combat will be the scrapping, slithering Selticks and the bouncing, bodacious Big Shots.

Prominent in the starting lineup will be J. C. ("Courageous Clark") Rogers, president of North Georgia College; V. H. ("Vim - and - Vigor - Vernon") Smith, R. M. ("Beau Brummel-Bob") Moore and former Representative F. C. ("Ferocious Fred") Jones for the Big Shots. Bucking them for the sanguine Selticks will be such stars as J. E. ("Just-Call-Me-Jim") Matthews, major, U. S. A.; W. V. ("Battling Bill") Zimmer, Carl ("Bustling Bus") Schultz, and J. H. ("Jot-'Em-Down-Joe") Phillips.

Ex-Smithie To Pitch at Houston

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

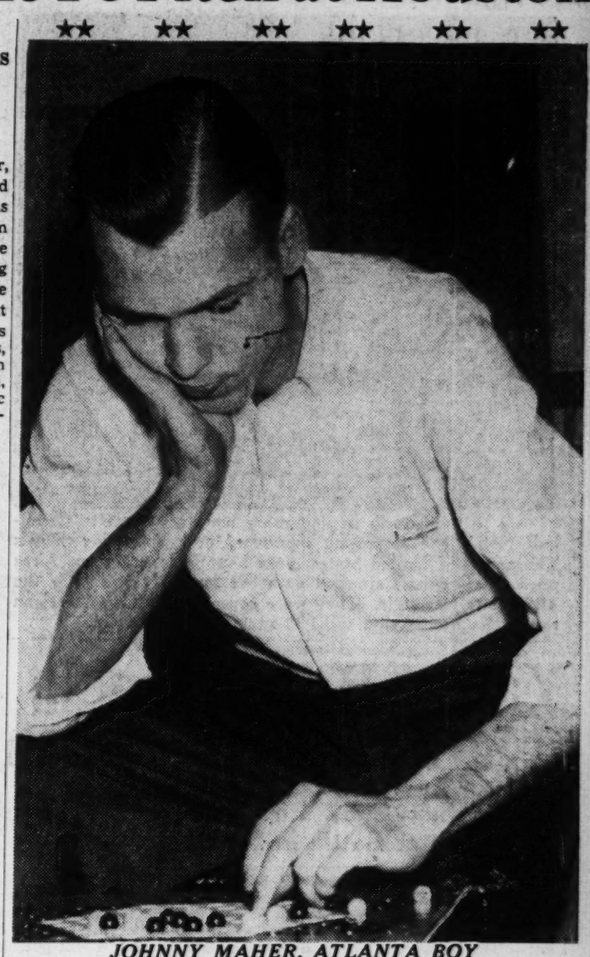

Elongated, blond Johnny Maher, the ex-Tech High right handed hurler whom Boys' High was never able to beat even with Jim Bagby Jr. serving them up for the Purples, will be throwing his jug handled curve at Texas league would-be hitters this summer. At the end of last season he was bought by the Houston Buffaloes, St. Louis Cardinal farm club, from the pennant winning Portsmouth, Ohio, nine of the Middle-Atlantic circuit where he compiled an enviable record.

Benny Borgmann, ex-Celtic basketball magician and Johnny's manager at Portsmouth, considered his prize right hander's curve ball the best in the Mid-Atlantic, and thinks he is headed toward eventual big league stardom. He was Portsmouth's hero in the seventh and final play-off game of the 1938 season when he went into the game with Akron needing but one run to tie. With a runner on third base and one out Johnny fanned Sylvanic, Akron's cleanup hitter who was selected as the league's most valuable player, and forced White, the next hitter, to pop weakly to first, giving Portsmouth the coveted play-off crown.

Mather should feel at home on the Texas club, as one old Cracker and one ex-Smokie player are slated to be his teammates. Old Nick Cullop, one of the most popular players ever to don a Cracker monkey suit, was bought recently by the Houston club. Nick, who hit 30 home runs here one year, was still blasting the fences in the Pacific Coast league last season. Jim Asbell, whom the Knoxville nine traded to the Cubs, with whom he served a spell in a utility capacity, has also been purchased by the Texas league entry. Maher is delighted over the prospects of teaming with Cullop in particular, who was a boyhood hero of Johnny's when he was still in grammar school here.

The Buffaloes start training March 13 at Houston, and the Atlanta curve baller is anxious and ready to take Horace Greeley's famous advice, "Go west, young man; go west!" He has been keeping fit during the winter months here by frequenting the bowling alleys, and by playing a bit of basketball now and then.

Atlantans will be pulling for John, unless he starts throwing his curve at Paul Richards' Crackers in the next Dixie Series.

JOHNNY MAHER, ATLANTA BOY

Wrestling Tourney Set Here Saturday

The Georgia state open wrestling championship tournament will be held Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. Intercollegiate wrestling rules shall govern all contests and any amateur may enter.

Gold and silver medals will be awarded the winners and runners-up in each of the weight classes. The weight classes to be contested are 118, 126, 135, 145, 155, 165, 175 and heavyweight.

The boys must weigh in Saturday morning at 9 a. m., and preliminaries will be held at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. with the finals being held at 8 p. m.

Golf Association Meets Wednesday

Atlanta's Municipal Golf Links Association will hold its annual meeting at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the city hall.

Wednesday's meeting follows Atlanta Municipal Golf Organization Week, in which every municipal club in the city organized permanently.

Dave Mitchell, president of the city association, will be in charge of the meeting until the new officers are elected.

Morris Brown and Clark In Title Game Monday

Morris Brown College and Clark University, traditional rivals, will fight it out on the Sunset casino court at 8 o'clock Monday night to decide the city championship of Atlanta on the hardwoods. Three major institutions here have seen plenty of action this winter with Morehouse being practically eliminated from the city championship by virtue of two defeats by Clark and one by Morris Brown. The game Monday night will decide just which team in Atlanta is the best.

Thomas and Beckman Sign With Mackmen

Beckman was drafted from the Atlanta Crackers at the end of the 1938 season. Thomas went up from the Southern league club at the end of the 1936 campaign.

Crackers' Schoolboys Head for Greenwood

Pitchers Numerous; Fritz Oetting Writes He'll Report to Savannah March 5.

By ROY WHITE.

A fine looking group of eager young baseball players rode out of Atlanta at noon Saturday to Greenwood, Miss., and three weeks of preliminary spring practice in the Cracker's baseball school.

Paul Sanford was the first to leave with a half dozen hopefuls. Dick Niehaus, Cracker trainer; Al Rubeling and Nig Lipscomb left last night with another group, and Manager Paul Richards and the third group of youngsters will leave early this morning.

Manager Richards, one of Atlanta's newest papas, was not so eager to leave as the younger group and desired another day and night at home before departing today.

FOR FUTURE USE.

Pitchers, just what the Crackers apparently need the most right now, and shortstops, well, they can be placed conveniently for future use, monopolized the vanguard.

Roy Marion, another of the Marion brothers who starred at Tech High; John Ector, Willie (Bubber) Scoggins, Marietta, and Alf Anderson, the former University of Georgia star, are the shortstop aspirants, though Anderson is slated to be given all the chance possible at second base.

Charles Brewster, who some time ago wrote President Earl Mann that the Crackers need not spend any more time looking for a second baseman, and that he will more than fill the gap, wired that he already has started working out and will be on hand at Greenwood Monday to show the boys how baseball should be played.

40 IN ATTENDANCE.

Mann and Richards said Saturday that there will be more than 40 in attendance at the school, for applications have been received from various points in Mississippi, New Orleans and several eastern cities. Those boys will report direct to the camp.

Mann Saturday received a letter from Fritz Oetting and was very much encouraged. "Fritz says he will be here and ready to report at Savannah on March 5 and will be ready to go when the season opens," Mann said.

Business was picking up considerably at the ball park Saturday morning and early callers were forced to wait their turn to get in a word edgeways with President Mann, who was busy completing the school details.

A crew was busy remodeling the playing field, despite muddy conditions, and some dozen youngsters were getting all the information possible on the Cracker school which opens Monday in Mississippi.

DOES YOUR FOOD CONTRIBUTE TO BREEDING SUCCESS?

Naturally—we don't claim that TI-O-GA Dog and Puppy Foods can produce increased litters from poor stock. But, condition certainly does have a lot to do with success in breeding and health of offspring. At no other period in the life cycle is a deficiency in a food so apparent as during pregnancy. We are satisfied that some costly "misses" are really caused by such deficiencies in nutrition. At the kennels where TI-O-GA Food is tested we have a bitch named "Mary" that has, to date, delivered 80 puppies in five litters! Experience like that proves the completeness and high nutritional value of TI-O-GA Food.

Up to their necks in swimming laurels, Jeannette Campbell (left), the Argentine swimmer, and Katherine Rawls Thompson of United States, pose happily in a Buenos Aires pool where Miss Campbell defeated Mrs. Thompson in the 100-meter free-style. They were competing in Pan-American races. Katherine won the 100 meters breast stroke.

What he preaches he practices, this agile Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, basketball wizard at Lawrence, Kan. In his 28 years of coaching, Dr. Allen (center) has had teams win 322 games and lose 70. He's demonstrating a throw under the watchful eyes of his son, Bob, a University of Kansas ball star in his own right, and Howard Engleman (left).

As one Budge to another, Lloyd (right), congratulates his younger brother, Don, after being defeated in a one-match set, 6-1, for the family championship. The two met in singles combat at Miami, Fla., and Don claims that the Budge family championship is the most important he's ever won. Lloyd is credited wtih having taught Don his tennis game.

Baseball fame pursued Johnny Allen (right) as far south as St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Cleveland Indian pitching ace—wearing the gay new style Hawaiian swim trunks—is at ease until the training season starts. Allen is autographing miniature baseball bats as gifts for young admirers, watched by Johnny Nee, the baseball scout who discovered him.

Yanks Rated Cinch; National Race Open

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Wherever the baseball clans gather these anxious days (anxious to get to the Florida, Louisiana, Texas and California sunshine), the overtone of all the conversation is the same—"The Yanks can't be beat but the National league will put on another humdinger of a pennant race."

For three years the Yanks have been supreme, but they've always had their scoffers, a few who figured their luck would run out on them, that Gehrig, DiMaggio or Ruffing would break a leg or that prosperity would ruin their morale. But as the clubs prepare to head for their spring training camps, even Clark Griffith, most rabid of Yankee haters, shakes his head in doubt when someone inquires if the Yankee empire is about to topple.

FOUR IN ROW.

Joe McCarthy, feted and hailed during the winter for his feat of becoming the first manager to win three successive world's championships, seems to be in the envious position of a man likely to get an opportunity to make it four in a row.

Stand pat hasn't been the policy of the Yanks despite their triumphs. Ed Barrow, shrewd boss of the front office, has made every effort to build the Yanks into an even more invincible club in answer to the hue and cry that the Yanks were ruining baseball.

So much for the Yanks. To hear a National leaguer talk anybody except the Phillies can win the pennant. That seems to be exaggerating a bit but the pre-season prospects are studded with so many ifs that at least five clubs—the Cubs, Pirates, Giants, Reds and Cardinals—seem to have pennant possibilities of varying degrees. It's difficult to build the Bees or the Dodgers into pennant contenders on paper, but Brooklyn, with laughing Larry MacPhail around, is certain to stir up considerable fun.

Spring training already has started for the Washington Senators. Their first squad of pitchers has been in training two weeks at Orlando, Fla. The Brooklyn batterymen will head for Hot Springs next week, reporting February 15. The Giants' pitchers and catchers will check in at the Arkansas spa February 21. The general exodus to the southern camps will be in full swing two weeks hence.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

CUBS—2-1. Given preference. Counting heavily on Hank Leiber add badly needed punch. If Dizzy Dean can team up with Bill Lee and Clay Bryant will be tough to beat.

PIRATES—2½-1. Folded last out. Major change in addition of Catcher Ray Mueller from Bees. Need spirit badly.

REDS—3-1. One to fear. Potentially best pitching staff of Grissom, Derringer, Vander Meer, Walters and Moore. Weak around second. Smart pilot.

GIANTS—4-1. May wake up. Team's fate depends on physical condition of Hubbell, Schumacher, Melton, Castleman and Whitehead. Bonura adds punch and Jurges tightens infield.

BEES—40-1. Speed at times. Striving to add punch. Important additions are Hassett, Simmons, Todd and Outlaw.

DODGERS—50-1. Likely improve. Everything depends on pitching. New pilot in Leo Durocher.

CARDINALS—50-1. Dark horse. Looking for shortstop and pitching. Can make big improvement. New pilot with blinkers, Ray Blades.

Foul Ball Injury Costs Bugs $284

A jury awarded the amount to Joseph Godwin, 32, for injuries received when he was struck on the ear at a Pirate game in Forbes field July 10, 1937. Godwin's attorney, Jason Richardson, argued his client's view was obstructed by a crowded aisle.

RETURN FIGHTS.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Feb. 11.—The Alabama boxers are preparing for a return engagement with the Mississippi State fighters at the Capstone Thursday night after taking a 7-to-1 beating from the Maroons in Starkville last Thursday night.

Shamrocks Meet Lautermen Today

Pros Bring Great Team to Warren Areana; Reserve Game To Start at 2:30.

The New York Shamrocks, professional basketball team, claim to be as good as the Celtics. Atlantans have marveled at the Celtics' dazzling play for 14 years and have never seen the Shamrocks. Therefore, they are inclined to doubt the claim of the New Yorkers. However, local fans have a chance to see the Shamrocks this afternoon at Warren arena and then may form their own conclusions.

The pros, boasting a galaxy of stars who are said to be highly skilled in the art of handling a basketball and shooting it through the baskets, will meet a Warren team which is right now at its peak. This will be Warren's last appearance before the state tournament which opens Tuesday night at the rena.

The Shamrocks come to Georgia with a record of 60 wins in as many starts this season and one of their wins was over the Flint, Mich., quintet which broke even with the Celtics in two games. The Shamrocks also have beaten Harlem Globe Trotters, Olson's Terrible Swedes and the Victoria Dominoes, in addition to Arkansas State and the great Minot North Dakota Teachers' College. They will play 135 games this season and travel 27,000 miles over the United States and Canada.

Most colorful of the Shamrocks is Chief Rankin, full-blooded Sioux Indian of Creighton College fame. Other famous athletes with the visitors are Herb Fash, ex-St. Louis U. luminary; Joe Hraba, George Washington U. product; Del Wade, the Oklahoma terror and Bud Shipper, giant center.

Today's main attraction will begin at 3:30. A preliminary between Warren's strong reserves and Bethel Athletic Club is set for 2:30.

RENTAL SUGGESTED FOR CENSUS BUREAU

National Realtors Ask Decentralized Office Space.

In regard to the proposed new $3,500,000 structure to be erected in Washington, D. C., to house the Census Bureau, this suggestion has been sent to the senate committee on appropriations by the National Association of Real Estate Boards: That consideration be given to the feasibility of so decentralizing the bureau's work that it would be possible to find the additional needed space in buildings now existing in cities over the country.

Cities throughout the nation have vacant office space which the government can lease at modest rentals, it is pointed out. The work of such a bureau as the Census Bureau must much of it in any event be carried on in the various regions of the country.

Billion Dollars Written by FHA In a Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11. Marking the first anniversary of the liberalized national housing act, Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald today cited a billion dollars of business written on the FHA's books in a year as evidence of the success of the new program.

More than 100,000 individual homes have been built or started, all of them approved by the FHA before construction, since passage of the amendments on February 3, 1938, Mr. McDonald said. In addition, more than 400,000 home owners, farmers and small businessmen have modernized or altered their properties during the 12-month period through the restored property improvement credit plan. Approximately 12,000 family units have been provided in large scale rental housing projects put into operation or under construction during the same period.

The FHA is handling nearly three times as much business at the present time as a year ago, the administrator said. During January construction was started on new dwelling quarters for more than 10,000 families, financed with FHA insured mortgages. This figure included over 7,000 new single family homes commenced under FHA inspection and more than 3,000 family units in rental housing apartments for which ground was broken. This did not include new homes, yet to be approved by the FHA, which will be bought with insured loans.

"It appears at this time," Mr. McDonald said, "that the FHA's mortgage insurance business in 1939 will exceed last year by a considerable margin. And last year, as a result of amendments to the national housing act, was by far the largest year in the FHA's history. From all over the country we are receiving optimistic reports as to the volume of residential construction expected this year."

WILL HOLD COURSE FOR APPRAISERS

Year Just Passed the Second Largest Since Before the Depression.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—A total of $797,996,000 was borrowed from savings, building and loan associations in 1938, the United States Building and Loan League reports, making the year just past the second largest since before the depression.

December loans by the associations surpassed the like month of the year before by 6.3 per cent, the first time during 1938 that a month had shown more activity than its parallel month of the preceding year. Loans which provided people with money to build new houses, a conspicuous feature of the savings and loan activity during the latter months of 1938, mounted higher in December than they had been in November, by 2 per cent, and they were a fourth greater than December a year ago.

Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the league, points out that these construction loans, so important in the re-employment of men in the building trades, played as conspicuous part in the 1938 total lending volume as they did in 1937, when things looked rosier on the whole. The $220,450,000 borrowed for this purpose constituted 27.87 per cent of the total disbursement. Beginning with August of last year each month's construction loans were greater than those for the same month of 1937, thus showing the part which savings and loan associations had in financing an expanding volume of home building noted during the latter half of the year.

Savings and loan financing for the year was distributed according to purpose about the same as it had been the preceding year, with loans for the purchase of homes accounting for the largest single sum, and those for the building of new homes running second.

'UNCLE SAM' NOW HAS REALTY BOARD

By executive order of the President, a federal real estate board has been set up in Washington to supervise the real estate activity of the United States government. It consists of one representative each from the procurement division of the Treasury Department, the departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, Justice, Navy and War, the TVA and the bureau of the budget.

About 20 per cent of all the land in the United States is owned by the federal government.

Taxpayer Secures One Place Out of 10 on Tax Commission

A tax commission, one of whose principal duties would be to study means for minimizing double taxation by coordinating federal, state, and local taxing methods, would be brought into being by a joint resolution now before congress, introduced by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, writes Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president, National Association of Real Estate boards. The commission would make recommendations for action.

Study of our chaotic tax conditions is long overdue, but was never more needed. And it would appear that only the federal government can effectively initiate action which would clear the confusion in our tax structure, which, devised for the simpler economy of a century ago, is breaking down in many places under present strains. Tax delinquencies have reached the point where a third or more of the land of state after state has gone to the government for taxes. It is clear that the obsolete general property tax is one axle to our wheels that will no longer bear the weight it has so long been carrying. As an essential measure for laying the foundations of national economic health the proposed commission should be set up, and it should have ample appropriation with which to do a good job.

The bill as it stands provides a commission to consist of ten members: two from the senate, two from the house and six to be appointed by the President. Of the six to be appointed by the President, the bill states that one shall represent agriculture; one, business and industry; one, tax lawyers and consultants; one, tax economists; and one shall represent the individual taxpayers and consumers.

It seems a little ironical that the taxpayer gets only one place out of ten. With due allowance for the need of technical men it may be suggested that technicians where needed may be employed as such by the commission. Citizen point of view, rather than legal technique or accountancy technique, is what we should have on the policy-forming commission. That citizen point of view should surely include urban home owners and other real estate owners as well as farm owners. This group pays well over half of all our taxes of any kind.

It may be hoped that an amendment to this effect may be made in what is otherwise an excellent measure.

'New York Calling' For Commission Pay

The Atlanta Real Estate Board office had rather an unusual telephone call a few days ago. Early one morning the phone rang, and the operator stated it was long distance, New York calling.

A voice on the other end of the wire then informed Mrs. Louise Peacock, executive secretary, that he was a member of the New York Realty Board, and that he would like to know what Atlanta's commission charge was on a five-year lease. He wrote down the information as it was read to him, and then thanked the secretary very much when she offered to mail him one of the rates, rules and customs books of the board.

Usually such requests come by letter, and a telephone call from that distance is quite a novelty to the board office.

DECLINE IN PRICE OF LUMBER SHOWN

National Association Declares Drop of 6 Per Cent for 1938 Over 1937.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11. Building materials, which represent approximately 55 per cent of a structure's final cost, are still priced far below costs for the so-called "normal" year of 1926, and last year's figures showed a decline of 6 per cent from the preceding year's costs, a study of United States Department of Labor statistics reveals.

Making public these figures, the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, national organization of the country's 23,000 lumber and building material dealers, pointed to the advantages of prospective home owners who plan to build on today's market.

The cost index figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for 1938, just made public, show that building materials as a group stood at 90.3 for the year, on the basis of the 1926 average of 100. This is a decline of approximately 6 per cent from the 1937 average cost figures.

The significance of this decline on the total cost of a dwelling was stressed by Frank Carnahan, national secretary of the dealers' organization. In the field of low cost housing, in which the association anticipates greatest activity during 1939, such a drop represents an important factor, he asserted.

"In the face of propaganda intimating that building costs are on the rise," Mr. Carnahan declared, "these federal statistics speak for themselves. They show that the cost of building materials is still far below normal, and that the trend over the past two years has been downward."

MUST ACT QUICKLY OR RETARD BUILDING

If the very hopeful present volume of new home building is not to be unnecessarily retarded or endangered, action by congress at an early date is imperative on bills now before it to extend FHA provisions so that mortgage insurance may continue to be open to existing homes, the National Association of Real Estate Boards points out in telegrams addressed to committees of the congress.

"Reports coming to us from many parts of the country show hesitation in proceeding with spring building plans until congress acts on these bills, which would eliminate the present provision by which, after July 1, 1939, FHA mortgage loans would be available only on new construction," E. L. Ostendorf, Cleveland, president of the association, states. "At the recent meeting of our directing board and other executive committees at Dallas, Texas, the urgency of action was reported by state real estate associations and local real estate boards from every section of the country."

A typical report: "In our community there can be no extensive building program without a healthy market for present houses. If FHA financing is not available for existing construction sales will lag and recovery will be postponed indefinitely."

Identical bills introduced in senate and house by Senator Bankhead, of Alabama (S 1097), and Representative Steagall, of Alabama (H. R 3232) incorporate amendments to the national housing act (creating FHA) which were urged as sound national policy by the association in resolutions adopted at its most recent annual convention, held in Milwaukee in November.

DISEASE IN GEORGIA COSTS 155 MILLION

Director T. F. Abercrombie, of the State Department of Public Health, estimating the economic cost of disease in Georgia at $155,302,764 annually, said yesterday at least 105 counties are lacking minimum public health facilities.

To provide this minimum, he said, twice as many qualified medical, nursing and sanitary workers as are now engaged in local health activities would be required.

These counties, in which he estimated 40 per cent of the state's population reside, have no health protection other than what the state department can provide by its staff members, itinerant nurses and district sanitarians, he said.

The size of the group to be helped and the area to be covered, he said, makes it impossible for the present personnel to do an adequate job.

Dr. Abercrombie recommended, because of the many small counties in Georgia, the establishment of health districts embracing two to four counties as one means of improving health standards efficiently and economically.

A coroner's jury held the accident was caused by Miss Jones' "reckless and careless operation" of the car.

YOUR SUCCESS DEPENDS ON THE BREEDING BACK OF THE CHICKS YOU GET

BREEDING is vitally important. Good chicks can only come from good flocks properly bred, properly cared for and properly fed. When you buy Blue Ribbon chicks you can bank on getting high quality and genuine value. Each flock that supplies the eggs we hatch is composed of pure-bred fowls, selected for size, color, productive ability, health and vigor.

BLUE RIBBON Champion chicks are Georgia-U. S. Approved, pullorum tested. This work is done under official supervision and you take no chances on the breeding and pullorum testing.

CHICKS (UNSEXED) SIX CENTS UP WHEN you choose Blue Ribbon chicks you get full value for every penny invested. Proof of this is the fact that the most successful broiler and poultry raisers, those who know and depend on quality, buy Blue Ribbon Champion chicks. COME in and see for yourself what fine chicks we are producing. Or, if you cannot come, write for circular and our low prices, but come if you can, for we are always glad to see you.

'New York World's Fair' Is Subject Of Speech by Mrs. Harvie Jordan

By MRS. HARVIE JORDAN.

When accepting my appointment as member of the advisory committee on Women's Participation in the New York World's Fair, made through the chairman for Georgia, Mrs. John K. Ottley, I wrote to the powers that be and asked that, as chairman of press and publicity in Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, I be put on the mailing list for all material concerning the fair that was sent to the states.

Since October I have had generous and informative material in regard to every aspect of the fair to date, and as everyubody is going, it is fine to know all one can in advance. From the beginning, women's participation has been considered as vital to the success of the entire undertaking. There will be no specified women's section, but women's judgment and women's influence will be manifest in every one of the divisions.

Mrs. Vincent Astor is chairman of national advisory committee on women's participation; Miss Monica Barry Walsh is director of women's participation; Mrs. Courtlandt D. Barnes is chairman of state committees activities; Mrs. Henry James is member of Mrs. Barnes' committee who is regional director for the states that include Georgia, and Mrs. John K. Ottley is Georgia's chairman. Serving with Mrs. Ottley, as vice chairman, is Miss Virginia Campbell, of Atlanta.

Women are thoroughly organized and the first regional meeting was held at Richmond, Va., in December, to choose art exhibits from the Atlantic seaboard group of states. Several of Georgia's artists were recognized at this selecting exhibit, and paintings chosen for exhibition include works by Lamar Dodd, of LaGrange and Athens; Julian Harris, Marjorie Bush-Brown, George Ramey and Hale Woodruff, of Atlanta, and Edward S. Shorter, of Columbus.

Gigantic Undertaking.

When organizers of this gigantic undertaking conceived their dream which has come true, it was with the same idea as that expressed by the Apostle Paul when he said: 'Looking not at the things that are seen, but at the things that are unseen.' They looked beyond the scene which was an ash dump and swamp to the unseen; beyond the symbol to the reality. Modern science and invention have obliaterated the ash heap and swamp and transformed 1,216 1-2 acres into a place of beauty which approaches a miracle.

A ready-made site would not have been in keeping with the idea of the chosen theme: 'Building the World of Tomorrow;' there had to be a future for the area in which the sum $155,000,000 has been invested. So looking into the unseen, these men of vision saw those reclaimed acreas transformed into a munnicipal park after the fair period.

On April 30, the date commemorating the 150th anniversary of the inauguration in New York of George Washington as the first President of the United States, the eight entrances of the fair will be thrown open, and amid an unrivalled setting of color and music, festive to a degree hitherto unapproached, visitors will gaze upon an international exposition that deserves the appellation, a wonder city, in Flushing Meadow, Long Island.

More than 60 nations are participating and exhibitors now total 1,400. There are 98 concessions in the amusement area. The opportunity is unique for promoting the good neighbor policy in all parts of the world, and if the New York World's Fair can lay a permanent foundation of good will, then it will have fulfilled its purpose: 'Building the world of tomorow.' The promoters agreed that the theme should be: 'A happier way of American living through a recognition of the interdependence of man and the building of a better world of tomorrow with the tools of today.'

To its anticipated 60 million visitors, the fair will say, here are the new materials, ideas, and forces at work in the world. These are the tools with which the world of tomorrow can be made, or can be wrecked. With these instruments can be achieved a happier, richer way of living. The designers and engineers started out in 1936 with nothing but a series of unknown quantities; they looked not at the things that were seen, but at the things what were unseen, and with several weeks still to go, a report this week states that less than 10 per cent of the exposition remains to be completed.

Roads and walks have been laid; 14 bridges have been built; and elaborate lighting installation advanced. Planting of 10,000 grown trees and 2,000,000 shrubs, flowers and bulbs is about completed. The ten buildings in the Court of States, where most of the state exhibits will be housed, will be completed this month. Starting with the lavish ceremonies marking the opening on April 30, when President Roosevelt is to deliver the major address, the exposition presents six months of continuous celebration of some event or occasion. Each state of the Union, with Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands, will have separate days; June 1 being Georgia day, appropriately chosen as the birth date of James Edward Oglethorpe.

The Theme Center.

A huge ball, the Perisphere, and a slender spire or pyramid, the Trylon form the odd-shaped structure that dominates the fair site and can be seen for miles around. The Perisphere is an immense football connected with the 700-foot Trylon by a ramp called the Helicline, 65 feet above the ground. The Perisphere contains the theme exhibit of the fair, the City of Tomorrow, which is really the key to the message the fair conveys.

Entering the ball beneath the Trylon, you will be whisked away up into the interior of the Perisphere close to the inner wall, and view the mammoth diorama which portrays the City of Tomorrow. On the domed walls there will be a faithful reproduction of the heavens, with stars and planets shown exactly as they appear in 1939. This city will be shown to 8,000 people an hour for the period of the fair.

The Trylon is a symbol of the fair's lofty purpose and will be used for broadcasting. These forms of architecture have never been used before and in this manner they point to the "World of Tomorrow." The three names—Trylon, Perisphere and Helicline—were coined to fit the innovations, and these structures have become an integral part of endless patterns, ranging from jewelry to toys. The fair is providing inspiration for "Dawn of a New Day" parties seeking to instill in minds the thought that all will be fine in '39.

The fair colors of orange and blue, and its symbols, the Trylon, and Perisphere, are used on menus, table decorations, souvenirs, novelties and favors. The fair theme melody, "Dawn of a New Day," was one of the latest pieces George Gershwin ever wrote, and was found in manuscript after his death. The fair is divided into 14 major sections, each one significant to modern life. These zones radiate from the theme center and are, government, productions, transportation, communication, distribution, shelter, clothing, health and public welfare, education, recreation, arts and religion. The zone arrangement is on the Avenue of the Rainbow, and the buildings repeat the spectrum colors in the order which they occur in the rainbow.

Culture and Fine Arts.

The fair considers art as a living thing and a part of every-day enjoyment. The outside murals, fine sculpture and expressive architecture will be a demonstration of the part which the arts can play in the common life of communities. It is planned to trace the periods which produced living art that became masterpieces and part of the world's cultural heritage. Prominent American collectors have loaned pieces for exhibition, and several museums have offered resources.

The music program includes opera, symphony, choral and religious music. From May 3 to 17 there will be a series of grand opera productions. There will be many dramatic productions and there will be a Shakespearean theater where abbreviated versions of popular plays of Shakespeare will be presented. Motion pictures will be extensively employed as an educational factor and an important phase of the fair's exhibit technique. A thousand things to do, 10,000 sights to see—that is the meaning of the fair and New York will be the thrill capital for the year, with "fair enough for everybody."

Mrs. Mary Jane Crayton, of LaGrange, is vice president of LaGrange Woman's Club and sponsor of the junior division of the club. With her junior members, Mrs. Crayton will have active participation in the entertainment of the state convention which meets in LaGrange March 22 to 25, inclusive. She is the niece of Mrs. Albert M. Hill, president of Georgia Federation, who will visit Mrs. Crayton during the March conclave.

'Fine Arts in Daily Living' Featured At Manchester Club Meeting

"Fine Arts in Daily Living" was the interesting topic presented at recent meeting of Manchester Woman's Club. The fine arts department presented Emory Barton, of Atlanta, who lectured on "Silver, Old and New," traced the use and development of silver from man's earliest day down to the present. Mr. Barton exhibited many pieces of old English silver, some of which were collectors' items.

Miss Emmy Durham talked on "Romance of Quilts" and displayed an afghan which was a copy of the one used by Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Mrs. L. M. Bradford, chairman of student aid for the fourth district, gave an interesting talk on her work; and Miss Blythe Barnett, of Atlanta, who was a visitor at the meeting, told of the great good done by student aid to her personally in enabling her to finish her college education. Members voted to contribute to Ella F. White, Student Aid and Penny Art fund. Hostesses were Mesdames George Powers, I. Joselove, W. T. Harris and H. B. Tewhouse. Mrs. W. L. Oliver was leader and introduced Miss Mary Lois Hitch, who rendered piano solos, preceding each with a short talk on composers and themes of the compositions. Hosts were Mesdames F. E. Howald, E. L. Meadows, L. B. Godbee, L. H. Young, F. M. Rabun, Hugh Thompson, M. J. Rattray, Fred Powers, C. F. Steward, G. M. Sapp, H. S. Carter, J. C. Hewett and Perry Dozier.

At the February meeting of the club, Mrs. Fred S. Vandiver, chairman of American citizenship, presented as guest speaker a member of the Georgia highway patrol, who graphically told of the need of all citizens to observe the safety rules of the highway, emphasizing that in the last analysis speed was the greatest factor in causing deaths on the highway. Eunice Copeland and Helen Haynes, winners in the essay contest conducted in the high school, were introduced and read their essays.

Mrs. Lew Kent rendered the musical program and Mrs. W. B. Griffin presided over the meeting when plans were made for the husbands' dinner to be given in March.

Chairman of the school kitchen, Mrs. John D. Harris, told of work being done by her committee and thanked the members who responded by bringing gifts of canned fruits, vegetables and dishes to the meeting. Hostesses were Mesdames L. S. Berry, C. R. Croome, W. P. Coulter, L. F. Lewis and L. M. Bradford.

Fitzgerald Members Hear Mr. Grier

Fitzgerald Woman's Club presented an inspiring program at the February meeting, which was the result of the untiring efforts of Mrs. Harold Parrott, chairman of the department of education, in co-operation with Fred Ayers, superintendent of the schools of Fitzgerald. The speaker was B. M. Grier, of Athens, who enjoys an enviable reputation in the educational world, having accomplished much during the time of service as superintendent of Elberton schools, president of Georgia Education Society, and now superintendent of the schools in Athens. He ably covered his subject, "The New Day in Character Education."

Teachers of the city and the High School Glee Club were special guests. With the president, Mrs. C. A. Holtzendorf, calling the meeting to order, prayer was offered by Lawrence Wynn, member of the high school faculty. The Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Waits, with Miss Dorothea Lupo at the piano, rendered a group of numbers, which was followed by an informal reception for Mr. and Mrs. Grier. Pages were Mesdames Neal Peavy, E. G. Scott and Owen Seagraves. Decoration committee: Mesdames G. W. Turner, S. E. Burns and W. J. Morris. Hostess committee: Mesdames Ralph McKenna, Abe Kruger, A. W. Knight, George Kirkley, W. H. Lasseter, Harry Lerner, W. J. Lewis, R. I. Maffett, F. M. Malcolm, Everett Martin, P. H. Mathews, W. T. Mashburn, J. M. Massey, Mark Mathis, J. E. Mathis, W. J. Morris, John Moyer, Jack Mayes, C. A. Miller, John Mann, B. H. Mullen, S. P. Murry, J. L. McCarty, Johnnie Lewis, Alex Kruger and Miss Dorothea Lupo.

Vidalia Clubwomen Celebrate Drama Week

National Drama Week was celebrated at February meeting of Vidalia Woman's Club, and guest artists were three dramatic art students from Wesleyan College, who presented a one-act play. Mary Grace Price, talented daughter of D. B. Price, of Vidalia, starred in the play, and was supported by Elizabeth Glass, of Macon, and Miriam Stovall, of Vienna. Miss Alfred Merle Dorman, of Statesboro, directed the play.

Mrs. J. B. Brown, president, presided over the business session, which was held in the community

Child Welfare Features Program

Since Waverly Hall Woman's Club was federated in June, 1938, there has been an increase in members, interest and understanding. Twenty-two members were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. L. O. Storey, with Mrs. H. H. Armstrong as assisting hostess. As president, Mrs. Armstrong opened exercises with prayer led by Mrs. Wiley Galloway, a new year message, and the report of the secretary, Mrs. L. W. Slaughter.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. E. F. Hall, financial statements were made by Mrs. Curtis Ingram. A nice sum was collected for Tallulah Falls school. Mrs. J. J. Sizemore, assisted by Mrs. Walker Harris and Mrs. Frank Storey, directed the program on "Child Welfare." Helpful booklets were presented by Mrs. Storey.

Mesdames Ludie Wilson, Ray Burnette and Miss Lora Storey were welcomed as visitors. The club sponsors as music director in the school Mrs. Randolph McCulloh, who attended, with the teachers, Misses Nell Johnson, A. McDougall and Nell Burgin. In the contests enjoyed during the social hour awards were made to Mesdames Henry Wallace, L. W. Slaughter and James McGehee. Assisting the hosts were Mrs. Edwin O'Neal and Mrs. Joe Storey.

Mr. Lee Speaks At Winder Club

Winder Woman's Club opened its recent meeting with regulation ritualistic ceremony and a business session at which the president, Mrs. W. J. Burch, presided. American citizenship committee was in charge of the program and Mrs. R. H. Kimball reported the committee's activities and introduced as speaker Robert Lee, of Gainesville, member of safety education division of state highway patrol.

Mr. Lee, who represented Hon. Lon Sullivan, gave a helpful and informative talk on work being done, plans and aims of the highway troopers, and of the encouragement and success experienced since the organization over a year ago.

Reports included sending a ton of coal to the recreation school, sponsoring a cooking school, and plans for the benefit to be given under auspices of the Tallulah Falls school, Student Aid and Ella P. White committees.

Members participated in birthday balls and other celebrations for the infantile paralysis fund, the committee in charge being Mesdames W. J. Burch, H. A. Carithers, H. M. Herrin, Cleo Roberts, Brunell Smith, C. S. Williams, John Robinson and Johnie Lou Smith. Violin solo was played by Bill Barron, with Mrs. E. C. Strange at the piano. Mrs. W. H. Jennings and the members of her committee had charge of the social period.

Travelogue Given At Valdosta Club.

"Gardens of Old England," travelogue presented recently by Wymodausis Club of Valdosta, delighted the hearers. The speaker, Rev. John Everington, was introduced by Mrs. Ted Harris, president of the club, and he carried his audience on a tour through historic England. Colored slides were used to show the winding lanes, lordly castles, humble cottages and attractive gardens. Every home boasts a garden, usually at the rear of the house.

Mr. Everington, born and reared in England, has a store of first-hand information on the country and its customs, and being a fluent speaker, imparted this information to his audience in a charming manner. Mrs. Everington ran off the slides and accompanied Mr. Everington at the piano for the closing "Meditation."

American Home Program Featured At Columbus Federation Meeting

"Our national home is a reflection of our personal homes," said Mrs. Frank Gaines, chairman of American Home Department of the Columbus Federation of Women's Clubs, in introducing the program for the recent meeting held at the woman's club. Mrs. J. M. Murrah, the president of the Federation, presented Mrs. Gaines, who introduced those participating in the program: Mesdames Elmer Massey, Carroll Colley, W. J. Matthews, Cliff McLendon, W. J. Long and Miss Julia Traylor.

Mrs. Massey spoke on "Family Relationships." She urged the necessity of the family gathering together in making a budget; that the mother should not be a slave; that each individual should contribute to the family life, and each member take time for a hobby—enjoying them collectively or singly. She urged that each member have some private place if not an entire room for the parents as well as the children to study and plan wisely, so that homes could be made "a little bit of heaven" rather than just a place in which to open cans and to sleep.

Miss Traylor stated that two of the most important phases of insurance were those against lack of education and lack of health. She in turn presented Mr. Roddenberry, who is organizing plans for group hospitalization in Columbus. "This is to be a Columbus affair," said Mr. Roddenberry, "which has the endorsement of the city commission and of the hospital board. The idea is to have a board, composed of public spirited citizens to head the organization and work out details. Money paid into the fund by individuals, is good only for hospitalization and does not include medical fees, medicine, nurses, etc.

Mrs. Colley introduced her topic by stating that some of the most outstanding interior decorators were from the south, and mentioned several from Georgia. "This is due to the fact," said Mrs. Colley, "that southern people live so much in their homes, and entertain in their homes. Lovely gardens, wide open spaces, etc., are conducive to landscaping, attractive architecture and interior decorations.

"Be your own decorator," continued Mrs. Cooley. "Choose some theme around which to build your room, a painting, or some treasured art object are good examples. Make your room exemplify your own individuality, and by choosing the right things create charm and beauty, as well as demonstrate individuality."

"Type, background, color, style, as well as individuality, are to be considered when decorating or furnishing a room," the speaker said. She told of the well-known types of architecture, such as Colonial or Georgian; English, Regency, Spanish, French and gave explicit directions for furnishing each type.

Mrs. Colley illustrated her talk by examples of Victorian furniture, for a living room with proper lamps, draperies and curtains, rugs, emphasizing harmony in each. She showed a group in the Williamsburg manner, when the fruit design was so popular, and Duncan Phyfe, Heppelwhite, Stanfordshire china were the vogue. Early American was also illustrated, with examples of color, type, period, materials, all well harmonized.

"Home, Sweet Home" was sung by Mrs. Cliff McLendon, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. J. Long, and Mrs. W. J. Matthews made a colored drawing illustrating the theme of the song. Each guest was asked to write a verse to supplement those of the original "Home, Sweet Home." Mrs. Albert Trulock won the prize, a basket of fruits and eggs, donated by the president.

Mesdames Rex Lavender, W. J. Banks and Robert Poole, the judges, were presented by Mrs. Murrah with jars of home made preserves. Mrs. Murrah called attention to the handsome paintings hanging in the public library, which were donated to the city by the Columbus Federation of Women's Clubs. These paintings were purchased from the various exhibits sponsored by the federation.

February 22 is the date for the next meeting to feature "American Citizenship." Each department will present a program, including American Home, American Citizenship, Education, Fine Arts, Legislation, Juniors, International Relations, Press and Publicity, Public Welfare, one to be given each month. The chairman will be assisted by the chairman from each of the clubs composing the federation.

Under the Cherokee Rose

By Rose Marie

J. G. Meadows, of the Porterfield Gardens, near Macon, addressed the garden section of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning at a recent meeting which was one of the most delightful of the year. Fifty members assembled in the ladies' lounge of the Officers' Club heard Mr. Meadows talk on the practical side of rose culture.

Welcome from Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs is extended the following clubs in the fifth district which have recently enrolled: the Hawthorn Garden Club, Mrs. E. L. Gifford, president; National Federation of Post Office Clerks, Mrs. W. H. Blair, president; Roxboro Garden Club, Mrs. J. U. Horne, president; Sylvan Hills Garden Club, Mrs. M. B. McKeithen, president.

In the passing of Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton, on February 2, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs lost a valuable member of long standing. Mrs. Judd served in varied offices in the state, district and local clubs, and she will be greatly missed in the many activities in which she engaged. Mrs. Judd organized the Dalton Woman's Club in 1921, and was its only president.

"The Functioning of the Juvenile Court" was the subject discussed by Judge W. T. Tuggle at recent meeting of the citizenship section of LaGrange Woman's Club. At the meeting of the fine arts section, A. T. Coleman, city editor of LaGrange Daily News, discussed the major news stories of the month, and Barrington King Jr. was presented in musical selections. Miss Elizabeth Reeves was program chairman.

Mrs. W. Ewing Griffin, president of Vienna Woman's Club, boasts of the club column appearing each week in the Dooly County Citizen. Officers and chairmen are contributing in turn, each presenting her particular interest. Column featuring Tallulah Falls school was followed up with a cake sale for the school. There will always be space given on the official club page for items from the Vienna Club columns.

Over 300 women had a grand time recently at a benefit party given at the Richmond hotel by the Augusta Woman's Club, which is jubilant over the proceeds made to help pay off the club's $2,000 scholarship at Tallulah Falls school. There were door and table prizes and a preview showing of early spring styles, modeled by a group of young matrons. Mrs. D. L. Perry, winner of one prize, is now the owner of a lovely tea rose satin slip; Mrs. Malker Mobley is admiring an azalea plant; Mrs. W. D. Eve has a new dripolator, and Mrs. Cleveland Thompson, of Millen, and Mrs. Dudley Bowen received beautifully decorated cakes.

"Good Citizenship" was the subject of a splendid talk heard by members of Elberton Woman's Club at the February meeting. The speaker was the Rev. M. C. Weersing. Mrs. D. J. Thornton gave a reading, and a solo was sung by Mrs. McWhorter Thornton, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Walton Johnson. Mrs. C. F. Cumming presided, and Miss Lula Peek gave a parliamentary drill.

From the president of Eton Civic League there has come to federation headquarters the club's yearbook which is most attractive and inclusive. An artist's palette with its varied colors adorns the cover, and the preface says: "As varied as the colors on an artist's palette are the activities of a busy woman's life. Around a few of these every day duties and interests, the program committee has endeavored to plan a series of programs, etc." The calendar month is carried with each program, along with the topic and thought for the month.

Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, president of the board of trustees of Tallulah Falls school, was guest speaker at the general meeting of LaGrange Women's Club Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Paul Seydell, also of Atlanta, shared honors with Mrs. Ottley at a tea at which the members of the junior section of the club entertained following the program. Mrs. Mary Jane Crayton, junior sponsor, presented Mrs. Ottley and Mrs. Seydell, and was assisted in receiving the group attending the club meeting and tea by Mrs. Jarrell Dunson, president of LaGrange Woman's Club; Mrs. C. L. Smith, Tallulah trustee, and Mrs. Lawrence Hillhouse. Mrs. John Wilcox was chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. Jack Talbert and Mrs. J. H. Daughdrill had charge of decorations.

Parliamentary Law Pointers Are Given.

By MRS. H. H. McCALL, of Atlanta, State Parliamentarian.

Committee of the Whole—When a subject has been ordered to be referred to a committee of the whole the form of going from assembly into committee must be according to parliamentary rules.

The proceedings in a committee of the whole, though in general similar to those in the assembly itself and in other committees, are yet different in some respects.

In a committe of the whole the presiding officer of the assembly has a right to take a part in the debate and proceedings in the same manner as any other member.

Concluding Remarks—In bringing these pointers in regard to committee to a close, it will not be deemed out of place to make a suggestion or two for the benefit of those persons who may be called upon to act as presiding officers for the first time.

One of the most essential parts of the duty of a presiding officer is to give the closest attention to the proceedings of the assembly, and especially to what is said by every member who speaks.

Without this, confusion will be almost certain to occur, wasting the time, and perhaps disturbing the harmony of the assembly. The members have elevated you to an honorable station—and it tends greatly to encourage timid or diffident members.

Observing Rules—It should be constantly kept in mind by a presiding officer that in a deliberative assembly there can regularly be but one thing done or doing at the same time And to observe all parliamentary rulings, and above all to have a thorough knowledge of the by-laws of your organization, will be particularly useful to the presiding officer.

Object of Rules—A presiding officer will sometimes find herself embarrassed by the difficulty of deciding points of order, or giving directions as to the manner of proceeding. In such cases it will be useful for her to recollect that—

"The great purpose of all rules and forms is to subserve the will of the assembly, rather than to restrain it; to facilitate, and not to obstruct, the expression of their deliberate sense."

Five-Point Program Is Stressed At Legion Auxiliary Meetings

By Mrs. Dan H. Davis, of Macon, State Legion Auxiliary Publicity Director.

Interesting meetings have been held during the past week by units of the state American Legion Auxiliary, at which the five-point program of the Legion and the Auxiliary have been stressed.

John Rich Pentecost Unit, No. 53, met recently at the Legion hall, Mrs. O. E. Summereur, president, presiding. The opening was preceded with the advancement of the flags by Mesdames R. L. Ethridge and W. T. Randolph.

Reports showed that Christmas packages had been sent to children of ex-service men. Applications for membership were urged to fill out blanks. The president reported on the Roosevelt ball held January 30 and plans were made for a joint observance of Georgia Day by the D. A. R., U. D. C. and Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. L. P. Eley, legislation chairman, had charge of the program. "Going to Town," song and dance, was given by Jo Ann Ellington, accompanied by Mrs. J. P. Robinson, and "Acrobatic Waltz," by Marie Youngblood.

Judge Pratt, in his forceful address on legislation, stated that the Georgia department was especially interested in legislation that would increase funds for necessary changes in the veterans' service office; funds for WPA to make a list of armed forces to register every grave of each veteran in the county; to obtain one of the new veterans' hospitals for Georgia; and in the veterans' license bill. Judge Pratt called attention to the five-point legislation before congress this month. The first point in the program is the widows and orphans bill. The Legion is hopeful of getting congress to remove the 10 per cent specification of disability now required before widows and orphans can get benefits.

The Legion and Auxiliary are suggesting 52 recommendations for the national defense program this year. The organizations have been interested in national defense since the World War and now the entire nation is alert to this necessity. The third point in the bill is the universal service bill. This mandate of the Los Angeles convention provides that we urge upon congress the passage of a bill that would in time of war draft all service available and not just manpower. The fourth point on the program is preference for World War veterans in employment where government funds are expended, and the fifth point is to tighten the immigration, naturalization and deportation laws. Mrs. Eley reminded representatives how urgently the Legion and Auxiliary are behind these measures.

Mesdames Harvey Lokey, W. H. Jennings, Marion Lay, Brunel Langford, Homer Hill and Miss Ida Kilgore, served refreshments.

Bernard F. Greene Auxiliary met recently with the post at the courthouse. W. T. Moore, commander, presided for the post and Mrs. A. B. Winters, president of the Auxiliary, presided for the Auxiliary. The post has received a meritorious award because it reached its quota before Armistice Day. C. B. Wooten, a Legionnaire from California, who has recently moved to Gray to make his home, was introduced. Mrs. Winters asked all members to co-operate and pay their dues by the first of March. Gray has a very small unit but it is very active and members are expecting big things from them this year. There will be a Georgia Products dinner sponsored in Gray this week. Mrs. Dan H. Davis, of Macon, is sixth district president and was expected to attend this meeting but due to other engagements was unable to attend. Following the meeting the post and Auxiliary enjoyed games and refreshments were served by Mrs. A. B. Winters and Mrs. Earl Moore. Mrs. C. C. Williams and Miss Mary Lowe will be hostesses in March.

The February meeting of American Legion Auxiliary of Allen R. Flemming Post No. 20 was held in the form of a Georgia products luncheon, at the home of Mrs. H. H. Cobb, on Milledge avenue, on February 10. The honor guest was Mrs. W. S. Davison, of Baldwin, Ga., department of Georgia president. The presidents and regents of all patriotic organizations in Athens were guests, as was the post commander, Toney Postero. Miss Moina Michael, "Georgia's Own Poppy Lady," was introduced.

American Home Is Club Topic.

Seventy-two members assembled in Straus Levert Memorial Hall for the February meeting of Talbotton Woman's Club, the president, Mrs. W. L. Perryman, presiding. Program on the American Home was presented by the chairman of the department, Miss Virginia Persons, and included papers read by Mrs. F. R. Spivey and Mrs. W. L. Perryman on "Paintings in the Home," and "Fabrics in the Home."

Miss Dorothy Calhoun, pupil of Mrs. Hinton McGehee, gave a piano selection, and current topics, international, national and state, were discussed by Mrs. John H. McGehee, Miss Dora Heath and Miss Gussie Childs.

Hostesses for the social period were Mesdames Albert Baldwin, W. C. Thomas, J. H. Collier, Brooks Culpepper, G. R. Jacob, D. R. Olive, J. L. Taylor, W. R. Wilson, Tinsley Ragland and Miss Mary Matthews.

'Mexico' Is Subject Of Gainesville Club.

A program featuring "Mexico" was given by Mrs. John E. Redwine Jr., at a recent meeting of the Gainesville Study Club held at the home of Mrs. Ben P. Gaillard on Riverside drive.

Mrs. Redwine, in her account of the country's people, customs and development, dealt with its ancient civilization. She presented Mrs. Rafe Banks, recently returned from a visit to Mexico, who exhibited an interesting group of pictures and souvenirs which she had collected.

Mrs. Jesse Meeks, club president, was in the chair and presided over a brief business.

Visitors present were Miss Cornelia Rutherford, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Miss Helen White, Mrs. Ed Grove, Mrs. W. D. Whelchel, the hostess' mother, and Mrs. Banks.

Mrs. P. D. Horkan will be hostess in February, when Mrs. Pinckney Whelchel will be presented as program chairman. The subject will be "Child Study."

PRUNES AND RAISINS.

California always has an excess production of prunes and welcomes any suggestion that will dispose of them. The least one comes from the California Dried Fruit Research bureau which has found that chopped prunes improve the texture and richness of mincemeat, without, however, reducing the amount of raisins—as California also has raisins to sell.

Writings of Philosopher James Inspired Thomas J. Carney's Rise

'T. J.' Calls Aging Pages 'Greatest Influence in My Whole Career.'

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Thomas J. Carney, a shipping clerk in 1902, opened a drawer in his new desk in the office of president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, and drew out a tattered magazine containing an article which for 35 years has been part of his business career.

Penciled marginal notes and liberal underlinings attested to the long study given it by the man who has been chosen chief executive of the largest mail order and retail merchandising concern in the world.

Written by William James, famous philosopher, the article concerns hidden reserves that every individual may tap in the achievement of things beyond his normal capacity.

Carney was only 18, a fledgling in business, when he found it. Ever since, during his long climb from the bottom to the top of the ladder, the words of James have been a source of inspiration.

Greatest Influence.

"This is perhaps the greatest single influence in all my reading," he said, turning the torn, aging pages slowly. Reading runs a close second to business among this mild, friendly man's varied interests.

"T. J.," as he is known affectionately by associates, has been building reserves for years during his career with the company with which he figuratively has grown up.

He was born in Chicago in 1886, the year Sears began at a tiny railroad station that identified the hamlet of North Redwood, Minn. He joined the company when both were only 16 years old and suffering, he recalled, from growing pains. Now his period of employment exceeds by at least a decade that of any other official.

He is the third of three Thomas J. Carneys who have lived in Chicago. The first, his grandfather, who came to the city in 1840 from Ireland, was an alderman. The second, his father, also was an alderman despite the fact that he died at the age of 25 when young Tom was only three years old.

Gets "Temporary Job."

The future executive was graduated from Lincoln school on Chicago's North Side in 1899 and three years later he obtained what he thought was only a temporary job in the Sears shipping room during Christmas rush.

However, business was booming and Carney stuck. The shipping room became congested with traffic and in a few years it was his job to straighten things out. He was put in charge of truckers.

By his experience in those days Carney qualified to be in on the birth of Sears' "schedule system," a routine which speeded the handling of orders. Within a comparatively short time 25 per cent more business was passing through the plant.

Carney subsequently was transferred to Dallas and then to Philadelphia when new branches were opened.

He became vice president in charge of operations, with offices in Chicago, about the time the business boom of 1929 faded. His record during the hard-times years, with Sears eclipsing all previous sales peaks, formed a large part of the evidence studied by directors when they promoted him to the presidency vacated by the elevation of General Robert E. Wood to the chairmanship.

THOMAS J. CARNEY.

Liked Newspapering.

"T. J." once wanted to be a newspaperman. When he was young he sold papers. His idol was Richard Harding Davis. He tried to get jobs at practically every newspaper plant in Chicago.

A relentless reader, he consumes everything from philosophy and economics to mystery stories. He likes to fish and is well acquainted with the best spots for anglers in the vicinity of Chicago. He shoots par golf, assuming he said, "as a businessman naturally does, that par is 100." Baseball boxing and the movies claim part of his hours of relaxation.

This slim, bespectacled executive finds it hard to become discouraged in either good or bad times. He recalls that when he first started to work for Sears, friends told him not to expect very much, that there was no chance to get ahead, that all the really good jobs were filled.

He and Mrs. Carney and their children, Thomas Jr., 12; Mel, 10, and Marcia Ellyn, 1, live in Wilmette. He has served as president of the Chicago Safety Council, was one of the organizers of the community fund and has been a member of the Chicago plan commission and the housing commission and various other civic organizations.

Urban League

By JESSE O. THOMAS

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worthwhile things done for, by, and with the Negro, as a basis of increasing inter-racial good-will and understanding.

Frederick Douglass was one of the outstanding abolitionists of the 19th century. He was an escaped slave and became exhibit A as to the quality and possibility of members of his race. He traveled throughout the United States and in many parts of Europe. Through his oratorical eloquence and force of personality, he crystallized public opinion in the interest of the freedom of the four million other members of his race. He held many important federal positions and was a close friend of President Abraham Lincoln.

The home in which he lived at Cedar Hill, near Washington, D. C., was taken over some years ago by the Federation of Colored Women's Clubs to be redecorated and made a place of beauty and historical significance for all America. Recently the Works Progress Administration, under the auspices of the National Youth Administration, has decided to make the Frederick Douglass home a fitting shrine.

"Valuable letters, papers and other documents shedding more light on the life and times of Frederick Douglass are being assembled, classified and filed for public use by a historical records survey project of the Works Progress Administration. Seven negro research workers are employed on the project. The work is being done at the Frederick Douglass Memorial Home at Cedar Hill, Anacostia, D. C., overlooking the nation's capital.

Letter From Lincoln.

"This project has brought to public attention many little known facts concerning the anti-slavery movement, the War Between the States and the reconstruction period. One letter in the collection bears the signature of Abraham Lincoln. Among other correspondence is a series of letters that passed between Frederick Douglass and the War Department during the pre-Civil War days.

"These documents, formerly stored in dust-laden boxes in the attic of the Frederick Douglass home, had been treasured for posterity through the years by Mrs. Julia W. Davis, now supervisor of the project.

"Before President Roosevelt approved the allotment of funds for this project, there was a long effort to raise money to start the work now in progress.

"In addition to cleaning, assembling, indexing and filing the valuable papers of Frederick Douglass, the historical records survey project employes are also cataloging the rare books in the library of the former slave. A number of rare books now out of print are a part of this collection. One of them is a first edition of 'Ellicott's Journel—1803.' The books in the Douglass home are valued at between $15,000 and $20,000.

Furnishings Are Catalogued.

"Furniture, paintings, statuary, china, silverware and art objects, which have a historic relationship to the era of abolitionist agitation, are being catalogued by the WPA workers.

"A set of spoons bearing the mace of the British throne was presented by Queen Victoria to Frederick Douglass in 1886 during his tour of England in recognition of his services to the cause of negro emancipation. A walking stick belonging to Abraham Lincoln was given to the former slave by Mrs. Lincoln after the death of the emancipator. These and many other historic relics are being prepared by the WPA workers for public display in the Frederick Douglass Memorial Home. The complete reference file on all documents, books, furnishings, rooms and art objects in the home is now nearing completion. This information is regarded as particularly important to historians, research workers and students.

"In addition to the work within the historic Frederick Douglass Memorial Home, 50 National Youth Administration students of the Phelps vocational school are applying their training as they beautify the 15-acre grounds surrounding the home.

"Carpentry, cement work, botany, landscape gardening and road work all come into play as these NYA students ply their skills and trades, and make the home of the great abolitionist a fitting historic shrine.

"The NYA work is directed by Mrs. Sadie G. Mays, assistant director of negro affairs, National Youth Administration, for the District of Columbia. Randall Evans, of the Phelps vocational school, is the immediate supervisor."

Negro Culture.

In no department of negro culture has there been more progress made in the past quarter of a century than in the steady improvement in the personal appearance and physical personality of womanhood. This has been largely attributed to the pioneer work done in beauty culture by the late Madame C. J. Walker and Madame Annie M. Malone. There are many other systems which have made available to negro women everywhere the facilities and skilled workmanship on the part of persons scientifically trained to render such services as the public may demand.

Schools of beauty culture have been established which meet the requirements of the respective states in which they operate.

The annual faculty play was held February 10 and 11. The title was "The Gentleman From Hongking." The play seemingly was enjoyed immensely by everyone who saw it.

The orchestra started off this semester with a membership of 75 students. They will begin next week on contest music for the district contest March 17.

Superintendent's Message

My dear Boys and Girls:

February has come and with February comes Valentine Day, and with Valentine Day comes the idea of spring, and with spring there comes the idea of clean-up, plant-up and paint-up. Every year some organization such as the Woman's Club or the Chamber of Commerce gets up a program urging our people to clean-up, plant-up and paint-up. This year we want to begin even before these programs should get started and give our co-operation to whatever campaign may be inaugurated.

How nice it would be if each of us would attempt to see that the streets around our homes, that our own premises and homes, that our schoolhouse and grounds were kept clean, neat and attractive, and then how much better it would be if we would learn how to plant vegetables and flowers and make things beautiful. Then if we could come along with that and use a little paint to brighten up our houses and make our homes more attractive, we would add much to the value of our city. So let's get ready and begin at once to clean-up, plant-up and paint-up.

Always your friend,
Superintendent of Schools.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 12, 1939.

TO STRANGLE GEORGIA

Enactment of the proposed gross income tax by the legislature would be, beyond question, one of the most disastrous events in the recent history of the state. A method of taxation more destructive of prosperity, more strangling to initiative and more oppressive upon the people is difficult to conceive.

Unquestionably the legislature is faced with a difficult task in reforming the state's tax structure and in finding a source for the revenue which must be secured if the program of progress in education, in care of the less fortunate, in social security, is to be carried on. But there must be some other system than this gross income tax proposal. Any possible benefits cannot outweigh the disaster which would follow upon the institution of such a tax.

The proposed tax would be levied against every income of every sort in the state, of more than $100 a month. This without allowing any exemptions whatsoever, without taking into consideration any losses incurred. Thus the man who has received as much as $100 per month, regardless of losses which may have exceeded that amount, would nevertheless have to pay on the gross income—$100 per month.

Such a tax would throw innumerable Georgia individuals and Georgia businesses into bankruptcy. It would stand as a barrier against the establishment of new business here and would keep out of this state all that industrial and agricultural development which has been such a reasonable hope in recent years.

It would inevitably increase, drastically, the number of unemployed in the state. Not only would workers suffer directly, through the levy against their own earnings, but many businesses and industries would be forced to close, leaving their employes with no resource for living save the relief rosters, and with little chance of re-employment.

No loyal Georgian, regardless of his role in life, will object to a proper financing of the great program of the state administration. However, every Georgian knows there are economies that can be made. A good start toward discovery of those economies has been made by the special committee now investigating for that purpose.

In simple justice to the taxpayers of the state the report of this committee should be awaited and its recommendations, wherever they would result in savings to the state, should be put into effect, before the final decision on tax reform is made.

If this is done few Georgians will be heard to oppose any reasonable method of reform for the state's financial structure and for increasing the state's revenue. Intelligent citizens realize the state must have more money for its schools and institutions of higher learning, for its hospitals and other activities for the handicapped, and for the protection of its unemployed and its aged people against want.

However, the problem can be met without recourse to a method of taxation that would impose an unbearable burden upon those least able to meet it, the people of small incomes, and that would tax business and industry, of all sizes and descriptions, out of existence and out of the state.

The gross income tax would set Georgia back decades in progress and in opportunity for her people.

GEORGIA RESPONDS.

Georgia has every reason to be pleased at the contribution made by its citizens to the fight against infantile paralysis through the Georgia Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday. The sum raised, approximately $60,000, is some $10,000 more than was received last year and is a reflection of a new realization of the great value of the work at Warm Springs and throughout the nation, and of the indefatigable work of the state committee.

Of the amount collected, one-half will remain in the state for direct work in combating the dread disease. The balance goes to the National Foundation for research and other purposes. Eventually it is hoped that the work made possible by the contributions, both large and small, of Americans will enable the discovery of a method of prevention. Each year the research aids in the improvement of curative procedures, and another step forward has been made possible.

Governor Rivers, chairman of the state committee; L. T. (Pat) Gillen, executive director, and their host of co-workers are to be congratulated upon the work which made possible the fine record of Georgia. To Jere Wells, Fulton county superintendent of schools, goes the credit for the work accomplished by Atlantans.

IS IT WORTH IT?

The particular attention of Georgians is directed to the article, Toward Monopoly, by George Sokolsky on this page today. Mr. Sokolsky has caught, in one particular problem, the inherent dangers of government control when exercised without regard to basic principles of American thought.

The proponents of rule by government rather than rule by people have found in the Walsh-Healey act the perfect example of a method for equalizing the activities of an industry. Not only are wages governed—which is the outward design of the act—but, of necessity, prices to be paid for the products of steel plants are dictated. The government, in effect, forces itself to pay higher prices for the output of the steel industry. It forces the taxpayers, thereby, to pay a higher cost for the maintenance of this government which seeks always to increase the cost of its own purchases. Since the wage scale for government work automatically becomes the wage rate paid for products manufactured for private industry, the taxpayer—the consumer—pays more.

Since this applies, today, only in one field, the taxpayer has received neither direct nor indirect benefit, and as a consequence his purchasing power is lowered to the extent the government has raised, by edict, the steel wage scale.

It may be said that this applies only to the steel industry, and that it has little effect on the national economy for that reason. But it will not be long before other industries and other workers, viewing only their immediate problem, will demand similar government control, and the vicious spiral which contributed to the rise of Hitler in Germany and Mussolini in Italy will have been started.

It would appear that there has been too much action, too little thought to the establishment of dangerous precedents in Washington—both in the executive offices and in the congress.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF SERVICE

The evolution of the United States into a great world economic force is inseparably linked with the devolpment of banking. In 1839, the 840 financial institutions which served the nation had a combined capital of only $327,000,000—not a great deal in excess of the present capital of the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, now celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of its founding.

A century ago the railroads had less than 3,000 miles of track; the first steam-propelled vessel had just crossed the Atlantic; the Erie canal, an important development of the period, had been opened only a short time; agricultural machinery was just being invented and small factories were being built on the sites of the present industrial centers to meet potential demands of a young and vigorous nation.

It is hard to reconcile these small beginnings with today's vast network of rail lines and the hundreds of thousands of miles of paved highways; with the quick, safe and frequent Atlantic crossings; with the expanse of farm lands stretching from one ocean to the other and the most efficient and productive industrial and mining centers in the world.

Yet this scale of development would have been impossible had not the nation's banking facilities kept in the van of industrial and agricultural expansion. Those nations which used camels, as a means of transportation 20 centuries ago, and are still using camels, are, as a rule, the bartering nations—the financially backward countries.

FACT-FINDING

Georgia's Citizens' Fact-Finding movement has become the subject of comment in nationally distributed magazines. It merits that attention and commendation.

Now beginning its second year, with a grant from the General Education Board and assistance from private citizens, the movement has refused federal aid in order that its work be entirely removed from any suspicion that its findings are other than facts. More than any other agency in the state it has stimulated thought about Georgia problems and their solutions. This year it plans 12 studies.

Seventeen agencies in the state are working with the movement, seeking facts. It is estimated that approximately 250,000 minds are thinking together and working out their problems together. Civic clubs, women's clubs, church women, the League of Women Voters, business associations, the Congress of Parents and Teachers—these and others are members of the movement.

If there ever was a time for facts it is this era in which there are so many things presented as facts which are not; when so much propaganda and so much effort is being spread in an effort to confuse. The material gathered last year has proved of great value. That the work this year will be even more valuable goes without saying. Already other states are considering adopting the plan. The national attention which the movement has attracted will bring to Georgia the approval of the thinking people of the nation and should stimulate more of the citizens of Georgia.

One side in New York's elevator strike has always been willing, it says, to meet the other half-way, which in those tall buildings is no mean climb.

After a quick trip through the headlines, Dora says it's all a superstition about Hitler coming out and seeing his shadow, so we'll have six weeks of peace.

The future of the railroad can't be wholly dark. We shall always need trains for those "transportation through the ages" exhibits at world fairs.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

PERFIDIOUS ALBION? Americans profess to be unable to understand England. The "appeasements" of Prime Minister Chamberlain; the acquiescence to the taking of Czecho-Slovakia, whose freedom and independence England had guaranteed along with that of Austria—all these things puzzle some people.

They are puzzled the more when England announces that she and France were favoring recognition of Francisco Franco's Spain. They already were puzzled by the fact England and France refused to aid the Loyalists while permitting Italy and Germany to send munitions and men to Spain.

As a matter of fact, I cannot understand why the government of England should puzzle one. It is a realistic government and always has been. England lives by trade. England will recognize Franco because she knows that if she does not, then Italy and Germany will reap most of the benefits. It is a perfectly realistic attitude and a perfectly British one. Viewing it from that viewpoint, one cannot fail to understand the logic of the British action.

It seems fairly apparent that Mussolini has been bought off. If it develops he does not interfere in Spain you will see him attain some territory and rights in Africa—at the expense of France. Not England. It seems fairly certain that England will direct the settlement in Spain. This was, all along, the British diplomacy. No matter which side won, England had the money to negotiate. Italy hasn't. Neither has Germany.

I recall writing this from England last spring after talking with some very realistic newspapermen, some of whom had been to Spain and all of whom had been writing English politics and diplomacy for years.

To exist, to keep the ships moving on the seven seas, England must have commerce. Therefore England is realistic entirely.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS I recall one day walking down Fleet street and stopping to purchase a copy of Time magazine. As I walked along, looking through it, I came across a page from which several paragraphs had been clipped. Returning to the newsdealer with the magazine, he explained the item voluntarily had been censored by the distributors. Not by the government. It concerned the Duke of Windsor.

Recently I read of the return of the British soldiers who had fought with Loyalist Spain. There were some 2,500 of them and a memorial was held for the hundreds who had been killed in Spain. More than 12,000 people attended and thousands more could not find room. The three leading newspapers, led by the Times, carried not a line about the meeting. The Times, which once was called "The Old Thunderer" is called by its critics "The Squeaker."

All this was voluntary censorship. The government does not impose it.

The British cannot understand us. They think our journalism prints too much. It was the American press which finally forced the Simpson case into the English press. Some millions of the British had no inkling of the case until the King was near abdication. One day on a train going to Liverpool a lady in the compartment bitterly attacked the Amercan press for printing the Simpson story, one of the greatest news stories the world has known.

The Americans are not realists. Therefore, they cannot understand us. Their viewpoint on the war debts is the perfectly realistic one. They consider the viewpoint of some of our realists that the debt should be paid, actual effrontery. They are sincere about it.

If, and when, they do pay them it will be done from the realistic attitude. They will pay in order to be eligible to borrow more.

England is completely realistic. It has been a necessary viewpoint from the standpoint of survival and the development of empire.

"MUDDLING THROUGH" England always, according to an old tradition, "muddles through."

If there is no war in Europe, if England attains control of Spain for some of France's African possessions; if Germany is appeased the more with one of her old colonies, the least useful; then England will have muddled through.

There will have been no great world war and probably will not be one for this generation. No millions of men will have been killed and millions more will not have died from hunger, disease and exposure.

The world will owe England a debt for that. England has had to be realistic.

But what of the government? The 2,500 young men who came back from Spain will go back to their communities. They do not believe in the type realism shown. There are thousands more who will join them in opposing Chamberlain and his policies. There may be an over-turning of the Chamberlain government. The future probably will see a revision in policy.

But, no matter which minister takes over, he, too, must build a realistic government.

It isn't always a pretty picture; it isn't always pleasant; it very often appears perfidious and lacking in character.

Yet—who has the answer?

A fellow unknown to the annals of fame,
Whose vict'ries we never hear.

This fellow plods on, day after day,
To him life's drab monotone;
He sticks out his chin in persistent way,
He's fighting too hard to take time to play,
Fighting his battles alone.

His foes are the ever-increasing bills,
The costs that continue to mount;
He climbs up a series of debt-ridden hills,
He pays when he can, he gets all his thrills
From "something, herewith, on account."

He's doing his best for the family,
For mother, the girls and the lad;
He'll count all effort worth while, if he
Can give 'em, each one, a chance to be
A greater success than their dad.

So give him a cheer, this fighting man,
While yet he can hear your praise;
This fellow who struggles as best he can,
With pennant unfurled in the battle van—
To Dad give the victor's bays!

A Game of Jigsaw.

It is impossible to spend even a few days in Washington mixing with congress and national officialdom, with newspaper correspondents and other interested onlookers, without getting the idea that the great game of politics is a jigsaw puzzle. Each day you try to fit some particular piece into the place which will complete the picture. You are not sure if it is exactly the piece you want and you turn it this way and that and think about it. Then the piece changes shape, itself, in your hands and your picture is still incomplete. Or, momentarily, it fits and you get a glimpse of the perfect scene, just for a minute. Then the pieces alter their shapes again and you are still at sea.

And, after puzzling and thinking and dreaming about your puzzle for a day and the greater part of a night, you wake up on another morning to find that, during the night, someone has torn your picture all to pieces, again, and you have to start anew with a new puzzle and more of those shifting, broken, true or false, pieces to fit together.

One Scene Of the Drama.

It is, if you have imagination, a continuous performance of drama that goes on, on Capitol Hill, along Pennsylvania and Connecticut avenues, at the White House. In the lobbies and the corridors and in the dining rooms and cocktail lounges, the hotel rooms and the private apartments and the resorts and, in fact, everywhere. Everyone seems to believe, just because they live here, that they are capable of judging, of understanding, that their own surmises are wonderfully sapient. They'll all tell you, confidentially, of course, the inside meaning of every tiny thing that happens.

During the last week I have been a spectator at one scene of the continuous drama. A highly dramatic scene, one that may, someday, take rank as far more important in the general scheme of the nation's and the world's affairs than it seems now.

I'm referring to the row between President Roosevelt and Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, over the appointment to a judgeship in that state. You know that the President ignored the two Virginia senators in selecting his nominee for the post and followed, instead, the advice of Governor Price of Virginia.

I was in the senate press gallery when the senators voted, 72 to 9, to refuse confirmation of the appointment. I was at the press conference at the White House when President Roosevelt read, and made public, that strange letter of his to the rejected nominee, Judge Roberts. And, since then, I have talked with many of the national leaders, with senators, with long-experienced newspaper correspondents, on the event. I have just completed reading Senator Glass' reply to the President's letter.

And the entire event, it seems to me, has so many wide connotations, such ramifications of intent and of result, that it may well be the key to the most important events likely to take place in the next few years.

Our Own State Involved?

It must be remembered that both the Virginia senators, Glass and Byrd, have been leading opponents, inside the Democratic party, of many of the New Deal policies. It must also be remembered that Senator Glass is an old man of more than four score years. It is unquestionably true that the inner circles of the New Deal faction of the party would like nothing better than to "purge" both Glass and Byrd out of the senate, out of the party.

And there can be little doubt that this attempt to take from them the century-old prerogative of approving federal appointments in their own state, and transferring that privilege to the Governor, a 100-per-cent New Dealer, is a move in the plan to force them from the senate.

For by this means it is believed that the opposing faction in Virginia will be strengthened. If Carter Glass should die, they think it would be much easier to defeat Senator Byrd, when he comes up for re-election. Easier, in any event, if the hand of Glass can be weakened.

It is, in fact, a continuation, on a new front, of that attempted "purge" which failed, last summer, in Georgia and Maryland and South Carolina and other states.

And, don't you know, if the purge is going on, by these tactics, that the same thing is being arranged in Georgia? And, if that purge succeeds, don't you know, likewise, that the old Democratic party is probably doomed? At least, split? If this comes about, it will probably be the deciding issue in the national campaign of 1940 and it may, even before then, have heavy effect upon the foreign policies of this nation. Hence, upon the decisions of the chancellories of Europe and upon the fate of the world.

When you listen to the play of politics in Washington you may be listening to the rumble of gathering forces that, in the final outcome, will determine the fate of civilization as we know it.

Text and Pretext

By M. ASHBY JONES.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

One of the most beatiful of the early Hebrew poems is recorded in the Second Book of Samuel, entitled "Song of the Bow." We are not surprised to find that it was written by the "Sweet Singer of Israel". It is David's lamentation over the death of Saul. It is true that Saul was the implacable enemy of David, but to a generous soul like his, bitterness of hatred cannot survive the death even of such an enemy. Indeed with most of us, our hatreds die with our enemies. Death with its mysterious summons carries him beyond our jurisdiction, before a Judge into whose hands we gladly commit our cause.

At the same time there comes the consciousness of our own approach to that same tribunal, and we are wont to grant that mercy which we crave for ourselves. But I am glad to believe that it is the good that men do, which lives after them in the memory of most of us, and that it is the evil which is interred with their bones. We are apt to run back over the lives of those who are gone, and glimpse their brighter days, catch the echo of their merry laughter, and recall their more generous deeds. Yes. It is the beautiful, the true, and the good, which is immortal.

The Fall

David had loved Saul, and now his memory runs back over that checkered career.

"Thy glory, O Israel, is slain upon thy high places.
How are the mighty fallen."

The fall of Saul was indeed a tragedy. What a distance from the young man crowned with the love and admiration of his people, to the miserable defeated suicide on Gilboa's mountain. It is not only an old story but one which has been so often repeated in history. He took all that had been given him, and spent it on himself. He traded his birthright for pottage and fed it to his body. He took his sonship and translated it into bread. He took the loyalty of his people to feed his vanity, and his power over them to satisfy his unbridled passions.

He was not just a suicide on Mount Gilboa. He began destroying himself early in his reign. His people, David, God, called for the best that was in him to meet the high responsibilities resting on him, and one by one, he drove people, David, and at last God, from him, and in the bitterness of his last moments, with intellect tottering, he turns in superstitious hope to a poor "witch" for comfort.

The Suicide.

The story of the death of character is always the story of a suicide. No fateful force of circumstances choke men to death. All of those circumstances which seem to have driven one to death, were at one time avenues toward a throne of light, from which he might have ruled the kingdom of his spirit. Every mountain which seemed to block his pathway might have been a step on which he could have mounted to high achievement. Judas went "to his own place." So each man goes. Andrea Del Sarto, with an artistic hand like that of a magician, sold his art to feed his bodily passion. Napoleon, with a constructive genius, which will ever be the marvel of the world, used it to build for himself, and it was taken away. Edgar Allen Poe, with a gift for song, which has scarcely ever been equalled, drugged it into silence.

But we can not measure the distance of Saul's fall by looking at the king which he was to the defeated suicide, but to the king which he might have been. Saul might have been a David, or a Judas Maccabeus. God gave him such an opportunity, and it was from the height of this opportunity he fell. So must we measure the failure of every man—failure to be what he might have been. It is from the height of one's possible achievement, we must measure each one's fall.

This is the meaning of "to come short of the glory of God." That glory is the outline of the man you can be, traced somewhere in the mystery of the spirit—"the image of God." Del Sarto might have been a Raphael, and greater. Napoleon might have had a place in history with George Washington. Poe might have been a Browning. There is a best for every man—his highest and noblest. Each failure to do or be one's best is sin. It is to miss what might have been. Jesus not only would reveal to each one his best, but He offers to come into the life and help him to realize that best, which is the "mark of the prize of the high calling of God."

TOWARD MONOPOLY

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

I am supposed to know a good deal about the steel industry. At any rate, many steel men think so. But here I have a nut to crack which resists all efforts. It just does not make sense to me at all.

Although generally, it must be assumed that the government makes no attempt directly to fix prices for manufactured goods, it nevertheless does control wages, through the Walsh-Healey act and the wages and hours act. Fixing wages is, however, the same as fixing prices, because in the United States the principal ingredient in the price of a manufactured commodity is the labor cost. Therefore, these laws not only fix wages, but they also fix prices—the cost to the consumer.

Industry can adjust to price-fixing. In fact, many industrialists prefer price-fixing to cut-throat competition. I have never agreed to that proposition because the capitalistic system can only thrive when new industries, new commodities, new services, new efficiencies compete with the absolescent. Any device leading toward monopoly, whether governmentally conceived and operated or the product of private machination, is harmful to the whole structure of private enterprise.

BASE HOURLY RATES IN STEEL PLANTS.

Now, along comes Madam Perkins, secretary of Labor, under the provisions of the Walsh-Healey act by which she is supposed to find out what wages are in localities, and sets the base hourly rate in the steel industry as follows:

The eastern rate, which includes two wage-rate islands in West Virginia, is 62 1-2 cents which is the rate in Pittsburgh; then, for some reason not quite clear, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan are designated as a separate district but at the same rate of 62 1-2 cents. The southern rate, from Virginia to Texas, is 45 cents. The middle region from the Dakotas down to the Oklahoma-Arkansas line rates 58 1-2 cents. The west is split into two sections, cis-Rockies and trans-Rockies, but both sections rate 60 cents base pay.

There is no question at issue as to the rate, in general terms, being too high or too low. The steel hourly rate is the highest in any industry except automobiles and fluctuates normally within the general range indicated by these base rates. There is, however, much concern as to the allocation of rates to districts; the ignoring of competing plants in regions which are "natural" localities and which are now separated by the artificial barriers erected by the Department of Labor, and the lumping together of districts which are altogether different from every point of view.

There is particular concern that new and small manufacturers of steel who have congregated in areas, where the rate of pay is a shade lower because the cost of living in those areas is a shade lower, will be unable to compete with the larger aggregations of capital in the Pittsburgh region. The principal advantage that these new and small companies have had has been the advantage of being situated in a lower living cost and, therefore, a lower wage area. In many instances, this advantage is completely wiped out by the decision of the board.

STEEL INDUSTRY HIGHLY COMPETITIVE

When the public thinks of steel, the picture of great companies with huge masses of capital, employing tremendous numbers of workers, appears. Yet, steel is a highly competitive industry, with a very large number of small companies. I have always maintained that if this country is to retain the capitalistic system, these small enterprises must be given a free play in the market. Otherwise, they will be crushed by the larger enterprises and monopolies will result. I have warned businessmen that the step from a monopoly to government control or even ownership is very short. The recent agreement between the Willkie public utility in Tennessee and the TVA proves that to be true.

Now, I have before me a list of 43 small steel producers in the eastern district where the base rate has been fixed at 62 1-2 cents. No steel company east of Pittsburgh now or ever has had a rate that high. These are mostly small companies. Some of them employ as few as about 100 workers. In a list that they compiled for the Public Contracts Board, as of June 30, 1938, when employment was less than 35 per cent of capacity, they altogether employed only about 18,348 hourly wage earners. Their total capitalization is about $100,000,000. The range of capitalization runs from $17,000 to $10,000,000. From the standpoint of steel production, these are very small companies.

Obviously, if these companies do not have a slight edge on the great and better located Pittsburgh companies, they cannot compete for government business—which may become the only business available during the next few years. They are located in such towns as Tonawanda, N. Y., Bridgeport, Conn., Sheridan, Pa., and similar places because the cost of living made it possible for them to lower costs of operations. They do not yet, many of them, possess the capital for investment in the most modern and most costly equipment. The regional hourly rate fixed by the Department of Labor forces upon them an increase of from 40 to 100 per cent—which they will never be able to meet in competition with the larger, more adequately capitalized enterprises.

ECONOMIC LIFE BASED ON RATE

There is a further point: Let us say that the general base rate in a town is 45 cents an hour. The economic life of that town is based on the general income derived from this rate. Rents, food prices, local taxes—everything is geared to this rate, because generally that describes the earnings of the average person in the town.

Now along comes the Department of Labor with a decision which selects one industry in the town for a 62 1-2 cents rate, while all the other industries in the town pay 45 cents. The steel plant cannot easily move away because of its heavy equipment. But other employers would face demands by their workers for a rate similar to the steel rate. Those industries can move away. The picture of what will happen to the employes whom the steel plants and other plants cannot employ at the new fixed rate is not an easy one to describe nor a pleasant one. The decentralization of the rubber industry in Akron indicates what can happen to a city when its industries go on the move.

This danger is too real to be ignored by anyone, for unless the government plans, by decree, to force plants to remain where they are, even if to do so means bankruptcy, they must try to move into lower wage regions if there is any way to do it. I recall that a New York judge adopted the attitude once of forcing a company to remain in New York when it wanted to leave. But if these companies cannot move and cannot make money, they must go out of business.

ARBITRARY DIVISION FORCED BY BOARD

Here is an example of what the arbitrary geographical division by the Department of Labor does in practice. Ashland, Ky., is in the 62 1-2 cents hourly rate region. Huntington, 15 or 20 miles away, is in the 45-cent region. The towns have a similar living cost; the character of the population is identical. How can these companies ever compete against each other? The fact that the Ashland plant is owned by one of the larger companies does not make any difference in the argument, for this scheme abounds with similar paradoxes.

The smaller companies have called attention to their difficulties. In a petition to the Department of Labor, they said: "Many of the smaller companies are specialists. . . . To do much of their work in the manner of the large producer would be like plowing a backyard with a tractor plow."

Two ploblems arise out of all this. While the Monopoly Commission is investigating monopolies, another branch of the government takes step to create monopolies. While Thurman Arnold is inveighing against monopolies, the secretary of labor is hitting at small steel producers, which is bound to eliminate their competitive advantage over the larger companies. I suppose some of the big steel companies and the CIO favor this process, because it makes "handling" of stel problems easier. But I am convinced that nothing can be more dangerous for the steel industry, the industrial structure of the country and the consumer, than the monopolization of this or any industry by government decree.

It means not only that these existing establishments will suffer, but that no new enterprises can come into existence. The two most profitable steel companies, National and Inland, represent the success of just such small and competitive enterprises bucking the older and larger companies in the open market.

INDUSTRY CONTROL BY FEDERAL DECREE

Further, we have to raise the question of the control of industry by government decrees. Someone said to me the other night in Boston, "We used to have three branches of government, the executive, legislative and judicial. Now, we have a fourth branch, the administrative boards which are absorbing the functions of the other three."

Decrees are always arbitrary. They are designed to find an administrative procedure which will function to the greatest convenience of the admistrators. A line is drawn on the map—and all must live accordingly. The story is told that when the Trans-Siberian Railroad was being planned, the Czar of Russia took pencil in hand and drew a line from St. Petersburg to Vladivostok. Along that line the railroad was built, and it was built far from most of the cities. The stations are—or were when I traveled the road—far from the cities. Instead of engineers laying out the road close to population, the Czar built it by decree.

And that is what we are up against in connection with many of the current decrees that come from the administrative boards. Having a principle to establish, a decree is prepared without regard to the established conditions which it is to affect.

My deep concern is that this decree of the Department of Labor will eliminate the smaller enterprises in the steel industry, that it ignores local conditions, that it will add to labor discontent, and that it is a move in the direction of monopoly. It should be rescinded and the entire problem should be restudied.

The Law And the People

By PEYRE GAILLARD.

In all probability, a few minutes after the first insurance policy was written, some slicker was figuring on a scheme to beat the company. And it proved to be a comparatively simple thing to do—at first. As time went on, however, the investigators gradually learned all the rules of the game and the prospective beneficiaries found the going tougher and tougher.

Suicides, deliberately planned for the purpose of cashing in on the double indemnity feature of the contract, was a favorite scheme to be-devil the companies. But one gent, with a $100,000 policy and a lot of frozen assets went so far as to attempt to collect merely by threatening to take his life. He strolled into the home office of a big life insurance company and calmly informed one of the officials that unless the company paid him off, pronto—just as if he were already actually dead—that he'd blow his head off then and there. Naturally the "claim" was declined. And, incidentally, his head wasn't blown off either.

Accident insurance, however, presents many more opportunities for fraud than life insurance. And occasionally the deceased is made an innocent "party" to the scheme. One afternoon, as an example, a well known, highly respected citizen, walked through the turnstile, passed the gatekeeper his ticket to one of the season's big football games and promptly collapsed. He died on the spot. Without doubt he was the victim of a heart attack. But scarcely was the funeral ceremony over than suit was filed in the name of a prospective beneficiary on the ground that the policyholder came to his death by accidental means. The poor man, it was contended, was trampled to death by the crowd!

Once in a while a case comes up where even the hard-boiled insurance investigator should feel sorry for the crook. In one instance, at least, the schemer was a victim of his own miscalculations. A very clever agent, it seems, was putting up a three-story apartment building. Incidentally he also had an accident policy which hadn't paid him enough indemnity to cover the premiums. Something had to be done about it.

The owner-insured always visited the premises after the workmen had gone home in the afternoons. He liked to putter around and, if possible, save a dollar here and there. On this particular afternoon he discovered a pile of debris on the third floor such as lumps of plaster, broken tile and brick, which had to be taken out.

No sooner discovered that than down to the basement he went and up he came to the sidewalk with an empty hogshead. Then he skipped up to the third floor again and spiked and braced a piece of 2x4 in the window. Then he tied a pulley to the end of it and threaded a rope through the pulley. After rigging one end of the rope to the hogshead he hoisted this improvised elevator to the third floor window and tied the rope to a convenient telephone pole on the sidewalk.

But the insurance premium kept popping into his mind. If he wanted to have an accident—just a wee bit of a one—just enough to take care of his premium, he could easily have tappe' himself on the noggin with a brick or one of a hundred other things. But no. For some reason or other simplicity didn't seem realistic enough to the self-nominated beneficiary. He thought he'd better complicate the accident a bit—to make it seem natural. So he went back to the third floor and filled the hogshead.

All was set. Nothing to do now but untie the rope, swing up a few yards as the load started down and turn loose. He'd get off with a wrenched elbow or some other minor injury—and realize just enough on the accident to pay the premium. What fault could be found with a man who was willing to do his own work to save money?

But quick as a flash, before he even had time to think, much less let go, he shot up to the top and the hogshead plunged to the bottom. He sideswiped it with such force, as he passed, his right leg was broken in two places. But he clung to that rope! As the hogshead struck the sidewalk, however, the bottom was jarred loose and the heavy material went through. The procedure, of course, was immediately reversed. The hogshead started up and the insured down. This time the scheming little gent shot right through the middle of the hogshead, breaking both arms above the elbow. And when he hit the sidewalk his other leg was fractured.

But, oh, how good it felt just to lie there on that hard sidewalk and relax after all those unexpected ups and downs—even if both arms and legs were broken. But such objects as went up in this series of events must come down. As the rope slid through his tired hands, the hogshead, which was still at the wrong end of the business, crashed down on his head and fractured his skull. An unprofitable "accident," to say the least, because the mean old claim adjuster wouldn't pay off.

Past Generation

I wonder where he is
The little boy of yesterday,
Whose greatest fun in life
Was when he could steal away
Down the lane to the old wash hole,
His spirit light and gay.

He'd strip himself of overalls,
His shirt he'd take off, too,
And that old sun hat he always wore,
It was his friend so true—
He always was a barefoot boy,
And never thought about a shoe.

He'd throw his clothes upon a bush
And suddenly he'd hop right in
His splash would be the only sound
That one could hear about the lane.
How I wish that boy was here again!

South's Cotton-Growing Industry

Harvie Jordan Reviews Efforts To Assist Farmers and Points a Way Out of the Dilemma Without Further Loss in Artificial Planning.

The following exposition of the cotton problem and a possible solution has been prepared for The Constitution by Harvie Jordan, one of the south's outstanding authorities on agriculture. He is now managing director of the American Cotton Association and Better Farming Campaign, and was the first man to direct a south-wide campaign for the eradiction of the boll weevil. In 1913 he served as secretary-treasurer of the American commission which visited 18 European nations to study agriculture and co-operative marketing systems. This study resulted in the establishment of the federal farm land banks and the intermediate institutions. He has headed the National Farmers' Conference and the Southern Cotton Association.

By HARVIE JORDAN.

The cotton-growing industry of the south now faces the most crucial period in its history since the War Between the States. As a cotton grower for the last 60 years and closely identified with the industry for 40 years, I think the above statement is fairly based upon existing facts. Every cause produces an effect. What are the causes in recent years which have produced effects so disastrous to the south's chief staple crop?

The present travail of the cotton growers began with the inauguration of the Federal Farm Board in 1929 under the Hoover administration, when efforts were instituted to peg the price of lint cotton in the south at 16 cents per pound, and which resulted in a heavy financial loss to the federal government and to the growers of the staple. That plan was abandoned in 1932.

In the spring of 1933, with a Democratic administration overwhelmingly elected, the Congress enacted farm legislation granting authority to the United States Department of Agriculture to enforce compulsory control of cotton acreage, production and marketing throughout the United States. The first feature of this compulsory control was made manifest in ordering the plowing up of 10,000,000 acres of growing cotton in June, 1933. This was followed by placing federal loan values on farmers' cotton at higher prices than was authorized by current market values. These activities on the part of the government for rendering aid to the cotton growers during an intense agricultural and business depression temporarily forced cotton prices from six cents per pound to 12 cents per pound, basis middling 7-8 inch staple.

BANKHEAD ACREAGE CONTROL LAW

The AAA compulsory enforcement law of 1933 was further strengthened and aggravated by the enactment of the Bankhead cotton acreage production control law of 1934. Under this law the secretary of agriculture was given, and fully exercised, the authority to reduce the acreage production of lint cotton per farm to the low average acre yields of the staple in each cotton county, and any surplus above such allottments harvested, if sold by the growers, was penalized by a federal tax on such surplus of six cents per pound. Many millions of dollars were collected by the federal internal revenue tax collectors from the better classes of growers whose acre yields, planted on reduced acreage, were in excess of the very low acre yields of lint permitted by the authority. In the meantime a federal processing tax of $20 per bale was levied against the domestic cotton textile mills on every bale consumed, which amounted in the two-year period of enforcement to several hundred million dollars, and which was in effect a sales tax on cotton fabrics and was repaid to the mills by farmers and other consumers of domestic cotton goods. These campulsory cotton control laws were declared unconstitutional in 1936 by a unanimous decision of the United States Supreme Court and their continued enforcement was abandoned. The millions of dollars illegally collected from thousands of cotton growers under the Bankhead law has not as yet been returned to them.

The enforcement of these drastic compulsory control laws by the federal government not only disorganized and dislocated the cotton marketing machinery of this country, but they also forced foreign cotton growing countries to largely increase their cotton acreage and production to safeguard and insure supplies of the staple for foreign cotton textile mills whose industries were menaced by the drastic and compulsory control of American cotton production by the government. The first effect of these causes was felt in the prompt passage of the hitherto world monopoly of raw cotton so long possessed by the United States. For the first time in the history of cotton production in this country, both the acreage and production of foreign cotton exceeded the American production in 1933, and has each year since that period maintained that record. The exports of American cotton, which formerly had taken about 60 per cent of each crop, under the above recounted conditions, have been reduced fully 50 per cent since 1932. For the last two years the market prices for the staple have averaged from nine to eight cents per pound, which will not pay for the average economic cost of production, harvesting and delivery to the markets.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM CONFRONTING NATION.

As a result of fixing federal loan values on lint cotton to farmers in excess of market values the government has accumulated more than 11,000,000 bales of cotton in storage, either from outright purchase from the growers, or held as security against farmers loans. This enormous amount of lint cotton held by the government in warehouses constitutes a heavy weight and depressant on market values. In 1938 the congress enacted a second AAA law for the compulsory control of cotton acreage planted when approved by a two-third favorable vote of the cotton growers voting on the measure each year. The new law enacted to avoid unconstitutional features of the 1933 AAA received an overwhelming favorable vote of the growers in 1938, but for 1939, while 72 per cent of the voting farmers approved the law, the records show that less than one-half of the cotton farmers voted, giving a minority vote of the whole for the law this year.

It cannot be denied that as a result of the last nine years of government efforts to control by compulsion the cotton acreage, production and marketing of the staple, the cotton growing industry of the south today faces a most perilous situation. The southern members of congress and the Secretary of Agriculture appear to be unable to agree upon a practical solution of the problem, with a multitude of plans under consideration. The many experimental efforts put forth by the congress and the administration, sincerely desirous of promoting the welfare of the cotton farmers, shows by a constructive analysis after the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars to have had a distinctly adverse effect on the industry. The government should assume the full responsibility of the experiments which have been made with the most valuable monetary staple product of the nation, for the rank and file of the cotton farmers have loyally responded and with hopeful submission to the compulsory control laws enforced for the proposed betterment of their industry. There are solutions of the present crisis confronting the cotton growing industry which should have the prompt attention and effective cooperation of congress and the administration.

In the first place, there must be an early disposition of the enormous holdings of raw cotton by the government, which, added to the present surplus of marketable staple, makes up the largest surplus of lint cotton ever before accumulated in this country, a grand total of about 13,000,000 bales. Many of the best farm leaders and business representatives of the south are practically agreed on the following suggestions: that the government take over and absorb 6,000,000 bales for various uses as war materials and for conversion into twine, bags and other products for the United States Postal Department; that 2,000,000 bales be converted by the domestic mills into cheap fabrics for sale or gift to the millions of poor families in need of clothing, sheets, bed spreads and other household necessities, and for conversion of several hundred thousand bales into cotton bagging to take the place of imported jute bagging, and for fertilizer sacks and for packaging other products; that 3,000,000 bales be apportioned among cotton farmers to equal a similar amount which might be normally grown on a reduced acreage in cotton for 1939. This would at once stimulate market prices for cotton with corresponding benefits to the growers. Furthermore, American manufacturers have been subsidized for 100 years through high tariffs levied on competitive imports, while the cotton growers have enjoyed the benefits of no such protection. The government should now enact legislation to pay the cotton farmers a net subsidy of not less than 3 cents per lint pound on their total production each year, with the appropritaions for such payments to be allocated from a part of the federal tariff collections.

SIMPLIFICATION OF WORK NEEDED

The cotton markets for domestic consumption and for exports could be stabilized by reasonable loan values on cotton to be marketed slowly and the old system of "dumping" the staple during the harvesting seasons abolished. Maintain the cotton acreage control law with a favorable two-thirds vote of the growers each year, and encourage the expansion of acreage in food and feed crops, soil conservation and expand the farm security act to reduce the present excessive tenancy in the south. Abolish useless red tape rules and regulations which are obnoxious to the farmers and simplify the methods of acreage control and relief measures. The marketing system applied to cotton in this country is the best in the world. The only assistance farmers need to secure maximum market values for their staple is the co-operating efficiency of federal expert graders and staplers at local market points.

Secondly, and of vital importance to the industry, is to introduce and adopt as rapidly as possible economic reforms in baling and cotton tare. The baling system employed for American cotton is primitive, wasteful and highly expensive to the growers and textile consumers of the staple. Adopted in the days of the tallow candle, southern gineries are today turning out the same low density, clumsy and partially covered bales of 75 years ago. The heavy, coarse jute bagging used, manufactured in India and imported into the south at heavy expense to the growers, has been roundly condemned by every spinner in the world consuming American cotton. The gin bales are recompressed at interior assembling plants to secure greater density for rail and truck transportation in this country, and must be recompressed a second time for still higher density at the ports for ocean transport. The excessive waste of lint in sampling and handling amounts during a normal cotton season to about 100,000 bales of repacks. Transportation, storage, insurance and tare on American cotton are higher than of any other cotton growing country in the world. These items constitute fixed charges assessed against the growers in the marketing and delivery of lint cotton to the textile mill centers. There is but one solution to this problem. It lies in high density gin compression at the ginneries for reducing excessive charges as above enumerated and to use cotton bagging of uniform weight as a complete covering for the bales, not only to reduce excessive tare weights but to protect the staple from dirt, trash and dampness in handling. Foreign countries have already adopted high density gin compression, delivering the staple into the markets abroad in a neat, compact package of lint, completely covered with light bagging and at minimum costs for transportation and handling and marketing the line by net weight.

The south cannot successfully compete with the foreign system of baling and if the present primitive, wasteful and expensive methods of baling in this country are not speedily reformed there is no possible chance of regaining the heavy losses already experienced in the exports of American cotton. The congress and the administration could render an invaluable service to the cotton industry of the south by promptly giving encouragement and support to economic reforms in baling cotton and displacing jute bagging with cotton cloth. It would mean the saving of millions of dollars annually to the cotton growers and increase the exports of the staple to foreign countries. The system of baling is time worn and out of date. The south must continue to depend upon cotton as its leading money income crop, as the production of other staple crops for interstate and export shipments would compete with every other state in the Union. The south should be self-sustaining through diversification of food and feed crops, but cotton must continue to be the mainstay of southern agriculture. The rank and file of cotton farmers are more financially depressed at present than they were in 1930,

Law Providing Sale at World Prices Is Urged

The following analysis of the cotton problem was prepared for The Constitution by G. I. Tolson, Atlanta cotton mercahnt of long experience. He presents comparisons in export and domestic consumption which lend emphasis to his advocacy of the Smith plan and to the exposition of Mr. Jordan.

By G. I. TOLSON.

There is no doubt at all in the minds of economists and of most thinking people that the cause of the continued impounding of American cotton, the continued reduction of our exports, and the difficulties under which the American cotton mills have been operating during the past few years is due primarily to the non-recourse loans which are made mandatory under the farm act under which we are now operating. Our exports this season will not be in excess of 3,500,000 bales against:

	For Season
5,595,000	1937-38
5,511,000	1936-37
6,040,000	1935-36
4,816,000	1934-35
7,552,000	1933-34
8,426,000	1932-33
8,754,000	1931-32

There is no doubt in any of our minds that unless the farm act is radically changed prior to the new season that our next year's exports will be below 2,000,000 bales, and as the acreage allotment for next year is practically the same as this past year we will only add that falling off in exports to the surplus now held under government loans, which by the end of this season will amount to at least 11,500,000 bales.

The present farm act further provides that for the crop year 1940-41 under certain conditions of supply which will exist at that time, unless a radical change is made immediately, the acreage allotment for the south will produce around 4,000,000 bales. You can see as well as I the results upon the southern economy if southern farmers are forced to produce only 4,000,000 bales instead of the present 12,000,000. The amount of unemployment will be tremendous, not only to the farmers themselves who would be thrown out of work, but to the tremendous number of people in the south whose occupation in life is ginning, compressing, warehousing, financing, moving and handling the cotton crop. This situation, if allowed to occur, can only be followed by a tremendous decline in American consumption of cotton which would make matters still worse. We are, unfortunately, in the midst of a very vicious circle which must be broken at some time and preferably now.

I give you below the variation in prices, stocks, exports, production and consumption of foreign growths between the date at which the original agricultural adjustment act was approved, May 12, 1933, and today:

When the Agricultural Adjustment Act was approved May 12, 1933.		AT THIS TIME
October cotton was	9.20 cents	Oct. contracts are	7.45 cents
Government held	2,255,000 bales	Government expected to hold	11,500,000 bales
THAT SEASON	Bales	THIS SEASON	Bales
Crop was	13,002,000	Crop is	12,008,000
Exports were	8,426,000	Exports estimated	3,500,000
Production of foreign growths was	10,500,000	Production foreign growths estimated	16,250,000

THIS SEASON—	Bales
Production of foreign growths has increased	5,750,000
Consumption of foreign growths has increased	6,000,000
Our exports have declined approximately	5,000,000
Our own production has decreased	1,000,000
Total government holdings will have been increased	9,250,000

The decrease in price has been 1 3-4 cents per pound without taking into account the difference in the gold value of October, 1933, contract and October, 1939, contracts of three cents per pound. Therefore, the actual decrease in gold value has been 4 3-4 cents per pound.

Senator Smith, of South Carolina, has prepared a bill which has not yet been formally submitted to the senate, but which has been submitted to a group of southern senators.

This proposed legislation more nearly solves the question of how to solve the present complicated cotton problem, resulting from above the market loans than any of the other plans which have been discussed in Washington and elsewhere during the past three months because:

1. It will provide for a free movement of cotton at world prices.
2. It will eliminate the threat of a domestic allotment plan or any other two-price plan.
3. It will enable the producer to regain some of the lost export markets.
4. It will keep the price of domestically consumed cotton as competitive as possible with rayon and other fibers.
5. It will permit American mills to compete more advantageously in foreign markets with textile manufacturers in other countries.
6. It will nullify the loan feature of the 1938 law and provide a continuing supply of cotton, whereas most of the other plans will result in the further impounding of cotton through loans and a continuation of the uncertainty resulting from increasing stocks of government controlled cotton and decreasing supplies of new cotton which in turn would mean more unemployment and less work and business for all those interested in cotton from the producer to the consumer.
7. It should bring back normal trading differences between the months and between the markets on the future exchanges.
8. The processing tax seems to have been eliminated, as this bill provides for a general appropriation and furthermore President Roosevelt and Secretary Morganthau have publicly expressed themselves in opposition to processing taxes.
9. It will increase the buying power not only of the south but of the country as a whole.

Happenings In Church World

By DR. HERMAN L. TURNER

Certain significant facts are revealed in a new tabulation of church membership in the United States made by the Rev. Dr. Herman C. Weber, editor of "Year Book of American Churches," and published in Information Service, a weekly publication of the Federal Council of Churches. The figures are for the year ending December 31, 1938, and are compared with those for the preceding year. Among the outstanding revelations comments The Presbyterian, are the following: (1) Total membership of religious bodies increased by 963,000. (2) "The churches gained twice as fast as the population." (3) Total membership, thirteen years and older, is 52,379,579; "inclusive membership" (as fixed by "the law of custom of each body") is 64,156,895. (4) "Bona fide religious bodies" number 200, but: (a) Many are so small as to be able to report only such nominal membership figures as 806, 710, 533, 116 or 36 each; (b) More than 97 per cent of the membership is in the fifty religious bodies which report at least 50,000 members each. (5) The totals are "conservative, and materially understate the numerical strength of organized religion in the United States.

The World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, organized in 1914 with the purpose of uniting all men and women, of whatever religious faith or political affiliation, who subscribe to the ideals of international good will, has now established thirty-three active councils in the principal nations and cordially invites the assistance and influence of new members in all parts of the world.

Union Work for Indians—A "bookmobile" carrying a traveling library to Indian reservations is a new feature of the interdenominational work of American Protestantism in the government Indian school at Flandreau, South Dakota. This is one of six federal Indian schools in which religious activities are carried on by the committee on Indian work of the interdenominational Home Missions Councils. The committee, which represents twenty-three national churches, was organized to unify and enlarge the work of these communions among American Indians.

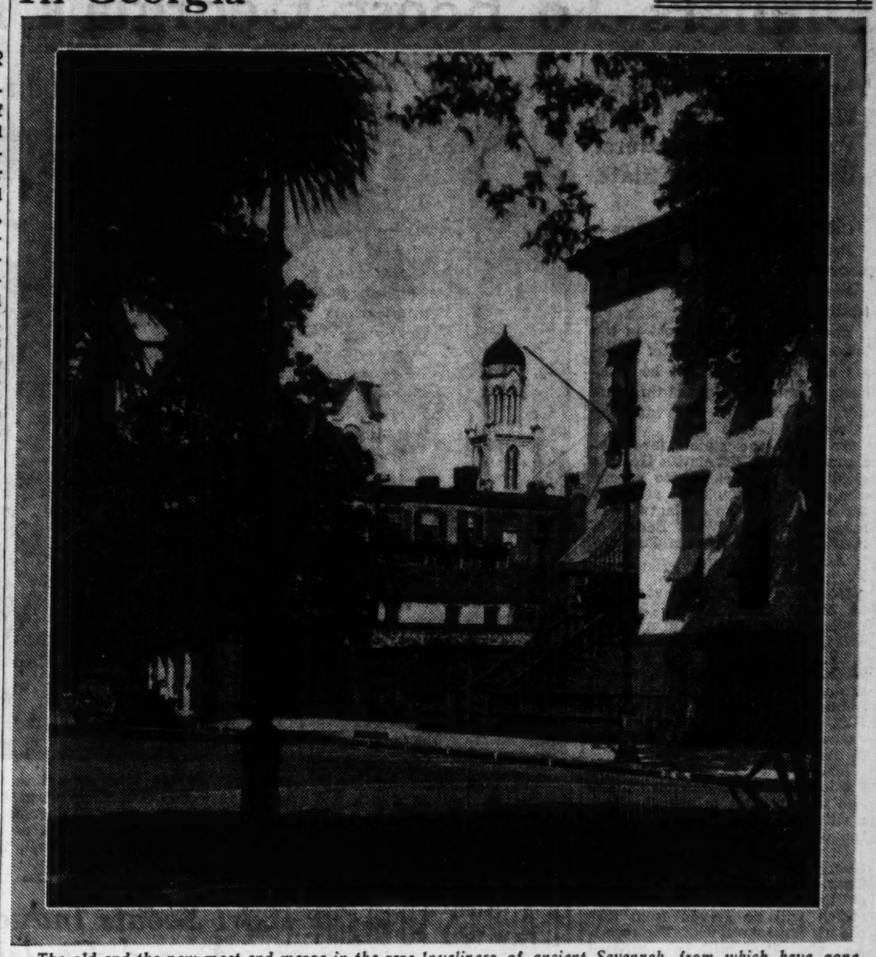

How greatly American democracy and institutions are indebted for their existence to religious persecutions in Europe we hardly realize. Dr. Jesse H. Baird, speaking to members of Christian Endeavor societies of ten western states, reminded them of the religious sources of democracy by this statement: "American civilization was born of a spiritual revival — the great revival which swept Europe known as the Protestant Reformation. It brought a good part of the first colonists to the American continent. They came because their religious zeal made it impossible for them to live any longer under European institutions as they were. The Puritans of New England, the Quakers of Pennsylvania, the Scotch Covenanters of New Jersey, the Huguenots of France who scattered all over the colonies, the Palatinate Germans and other groups carried over to America an intense religious zeal, a zeal which had given them courage to face the angry deep and the howling wilderness rather than to compromise their convictions. They built a new civilization upon these convictions. They gleaned political ideals and methods from a search of the Scriptures."

World Evangelism Next Year—A "National Christian Mission" is to be held in America in 1940 it is announced by the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches. The 1940 plan, as adopted, was presented to the council by Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, a former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, who was chairman of the committee that supervised the National Preaching Mission of 1936-37. The plan includes the issuing of an invitation to the churches of other nations to join in a world-wide simultaneous evangelism during 1940.

Son of Haile Selassi Will Become a Missionary—It is reported that the 15-year-old son of ex-Emperor Haile Selassi has entered the academic department of the Bible College at Swansea, Wales, to begin training in preparation for service as a Christian missionary. Haile Selassi recently gave a radio broadcast in which he appealed to the world to recognize the spirit of Christ in every relationship.—The Christian Century.

Ageless Beauty

The old and the new meet and merge in the rare loveliness of ancient Savannah, from which have gone forth the trails and the roads and the railroads that have built Georgia. Old World charm meets a new era in this city-by-the-sea, but bustling seaport terminals and the thrum of young industries intrude not upon a charming dignity. Sleepy streets belie the drive of business in this first capital of Georgia.

HEARINGS TO BEGIN ON RELIEF AGENCY

Garner Gives General Approval to Creation of New Department.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP) Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, said today that an appropriations subcommittee would begin hearings next week on his bill to establish a new department of public works to handle all federal relief activities.

Vice President Garner was reported to have given general approval of the bill in a conference with Byrnes today, but was said to have objected to some provisions.

Byrnes said Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, of the Society Security Board, probably would be asked to testify about proposed changes in the social security laws.

The measure, introduced as a result of a special senate committee study of unemployment, would liberalize unemployment compensation payments with the aim of making them sufficient to take up the first impact of a slump in business conditions. Under it, the minimum benefit would be $5 weekly.

All relief and construction agencies, including the WPA, PWA, National Youth Administration, Civilian Conservation Corps, Public Roads Bureau and public buildings division of the Treasury would be combined in one department which would be expected to develop a public works program. A one-third contribution by local agencies would be required under such a program.

ASSAULT, BATTERY CHARGED TO VALLEE

Busboy Says Crooner Hit Him in Night Club.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—(UP)—Rudy Vallee was bound over for court of crimes action today on charges of striking a nightclub busboy.

Vallee, accompanied by his attorney, Fred Pine, appeared before Justice of the Peace Thomas S. Ferguson and waived preliminary hearing on assault and battery charges. Ferguson released the crooner in Pine's custody.

Dillard Borden, the busboy, said he accidentally brushed Vallee with a tray and that Vallee struck him.

Vallee said Borden brushed against him with several "greasy" trays. The crooner said he asked Borden, "Why don't you watch where you're going?" and then slapped the empty trays from Borden's hands.

BANK OF AMERICA QUIZ BY SEC BARRED

U. S. Court Restrains Investigation of Private Dealings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(UP) The United States district court of appeals tonight issued an injunction restraining the Securities and Exchange Commission from investigating the Bank of America's private dealings with its customers.

The court ruled that the bank's contention—holding that affairs of the institution's customers should not be made public—was completely justified.

The billion-dollar Bank of America contended that it is under supervision of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Federal Reserve Board, and that the attempt of the SEC to investigate its affairs is not only contrary to law but is an unwarranted infringement upon the fiduciary nature of the bank's relations with its customers.

The bank further maintained that its defense of the confidential relationship existing between a bank and its customers is vitally important to banks and their patrons.

SECRETARY IS NAMED FOR CHICK, EGG SHOW

ATHENS, Ga., Fem. 11.—William B. Forney, of Augusta, a senior in the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, today was appointed secretary of the seventh annual Georgia baby chick and egg show, to be held in Columbus, March 23-25.

Forney came to the University of Georgia in the fall of 1935. A year later he began work in the egg room of the poultry department, while studying toward an agricultural degree. He is now a student assistant.

Gone With Wind Is Lincoln Fete In Yankee Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 11.—Members of the predominately Republican legislature in this state which sent 75,000 men to the Union army during the War Between the States may have been reading "Gone With the Wind" or the biography of Andrew Jackson.

Anyhow, they not only voted to return the secession flag to Alabama and propose to appropriate $250 to send a delegation along with it—

They also disregarded Abraham Lincoln's birthday by voting to meet Monday, which banks and other institutions are observing as a holiday.

G. O. P. SPEAKERS ASSAIL NEW DEAL

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Republican speakers told the country last night that it was adrift with a "broken down New Deal party and a bewildered President."

The proper course, they suggested in speeches prepared for a national series of Lincoln birthday dinners, was to return their party to power in the 1940 election.

Because Lincoln's birthday anniversary fell on Sunday this year, the annual Republican observances were divided. Dinners and party rallies will be held in many other cities tomorrow night, notably at New York city, where former President Herbert Hoover and John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, are to speak.

At last night's dinners the general keynote was a contention that the administration's policies had failed at home and a questioning of its course in foreign affairs.

Senator Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, speaking at an Akron, Ohio, rally, said the best description of "the economics of the Roosevelt administration" was given years ago by Abraham Lincoln:

"You are united in your determination to break with the past but you are utterly divided among yourselves as to where you are going."

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, in a Cincinnati speech, criticized the administration's spending policies.

"The present condition of the country is eloquent testimony to the complete fallacy of the theory that a people can spend itself into prosperity," he said.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge—grandson of the Massachusetts senator of two decades ago—said that the names "conservative" or "liberal" could not be tagged to individual Republicans.

Addressing himself to a meeting at Middlesex, Mass., Lodge contended:

"Lincoln wanted to keep all that was old and good—which made him conservative; he wanted to adopt everything that was new and good—which made him liberal."

They're Preparing for the Day They Hope Will Never Come

Below: You've got to know something about first aid in studying for this "business" of war. H. S. Culpepper Jr. gives a demonstration in artificial respiration with C. M. Wallace Jr. as the "victim" at the Candidate Branch school of the quartermaster corps at Georgia Tech. Watching the demonstration, left to right, are J. G. Maddox, Roy L. Barnett, Captain George C. Wynne, Captain John Soule and Major Rufus Boylan.

By LUKE GREENE.

While war clouds gather menacingly over Europe, while dictators flaunt their threats to a fear-stricken world and the dove of peace flutters more unsteadily with each new dawn, 116 young Atlanta businessmen are preparing earnestly, conscientiously for that day they hope will never come—that day when the United States sends its armies marching ayay to the battlefield.

They are not the men who will goose-step to the tune of blaring bands. They are not the men who will march at the heads of armies. They are not the men who will zoom through the air listening to the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun and laughing fiendishly as they watch the death-dealing little bullet marks that finally send an enemy plane plunging to earth in flames.

They are the men whose duty it will be to see that the war keeps going—the men who rush food and supplies and ammunition to the battlefield. The men of the quartermaster corps, if you please.

Every Thursday night you'll find these young Atlanta businessmen out at the armory at Georgia Tech. They are enrolled in what is called a Candidate Branch School of the quartermaster reserve. There are 10 such schools in the United States—one in each corps area and one in Washington.

They sit there in a classroom, bright-faced and alert, as the instructor explains this "business" of war. Not one of them wants the United States to become involved in another conflict. They've heard of that last war—that war that was to make the world safe for democracy. Some of them had fathers who fought in it. They've heard vivid stories about tangled barbed wire and mud-filled shell holes.

But they realize they must be prepared in the event another one should come. They must know the fundamentals of war before they can handle the business end of it. They must know something about sanitation and first aid and map-reading and all the other things you study in preparation for one of these "slaughter feasts."

In the event of war these men would be trained, he said. They could be dispatched immediately to posts of responsibility. Atlanta would be a focal point for the quartermaster corps during an emergency. It would be the buying center for the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

As another indication of Atlanta's importance in the defense set-up, Major Boylan said the office here would buy 80 per cent of the cotton textiles for the entire United States.

In preparation for this important job, if it ever should materialize, these young men are learning their military fundamentals. Some of them have had R. O. T. C. training, but others haven't. Walk into one of their meetings. You might find them practicing artificial respiration or perusing a map. Or maybe they might be just listening to a lecture.

Applicants for a commission as a second lieutenant in the quartermaster corps must meet several requirements. They must be over 21 and under 35 years of age. They must pass a physical examination. They must submit three letters of recommendation as to moral character and standing in their communities. They must have two years' experience in appropriate vocational, professional or technical specialty as well as a knowledge of the basic military subjects.

The Officers' Reserve Corps is organized for the purpose of providing a reserve of officers available for military service when needed, Major Boylan pointed out.

In accord with this purpose reserve officers are, in time of peace, procured and trained for the organizations and activities of the regular army and organized reserves which would be first and most urgently needed in the event of national emergency. The organized peace establishment of the regular army and organized reserves includes all divisions and other military units necessary to form the basis for a complete and immediate mobilization, in so far as the availability of appropriations permits.

Instructor for the school is Captain George C. Wynne, who also is assistant zone quartermaster. Special instructors are Lieutenant Colonel Conson C. Wilson, Captain Perry A. McGinnis, Captain John E. Soule and First Lieutenant Dewey T. Nabors.

Major Boylan said there were more than 300 applications for entrance in the school. But since there was a limit to the accommodations, the number had to be limited. The school will continue until April.

The school has all the atmosphere of the college classroom. The instructor takes the role of the pedagogue and stands in front of the class explaining the various fundamentals. Here and there you see a few of the young men taking notes. Then sometimes they take "time out" for actual demonstrations pertaining to first aid or sanitation or any of the other subjects they study.

It's hard to visualize these young men wanting to learn about war after a long day's work. It would seem natural for them to want to rest or read a book or go to a movie. But they are more interested than you would think.

And regardless of whether they ever have to put their knowledge to an actual test, they have the satisfaction of knowing they are rendering their country a service.

With more and more money being appropriated for defense purposes, there is a growing need for military "brains." These are just a few of the men who are giving their time and effort to fill this need.

By HUDSON NIX.

For the first time in fifty years, the 3,000 inhabitants of the western area of Rome, Ga., can sleep well at night during rainy weather. This half-century-old feeling of anxiety was not caused by the fact that there are no roofs on the houses in this section, but because of the recurrent invasions of the yellow flood-waters from the inadequate channels of the Oostanaula, Coosa and Etowah rivers that form a junction just below the heart of the city.

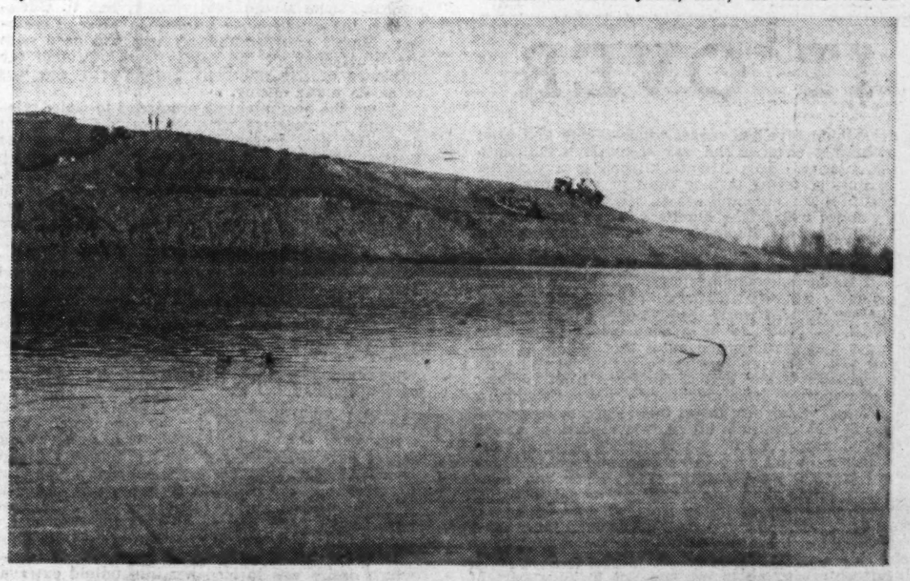

The cause of this feeling of security, lately visited upon these Rome citizens, is the recent completion of a two-mile stretch of levees, which engineers say will prevent the slightest damage even if the river rises higher than it has during the last fifty years. Constructed at a cost of $315,000, this levee comprises one of the outstanding flood-control systems of the south, and is a striking example of man's increasing ability to cope with the ravaging forces of nature.

Seen from the water level, this embankment, which has already been sodded with Bermuda grass, resembles a long mountain range.

To make sure that the levee holds in any eventuality, its base is 100 feet wide, gradually lessening in thickness to ten feet at the top. It has an average height of 18 feet, and is reinforced with rock, concrete and steel at strategic points where the force of the flood is greatest.

When the work first got under way, many people were skeptical of its ultimate success. But after watching the construction, which required the services of 200 workers, a corps of United States Army engineers, modern excavating machines and tractors, over a period of nine months, practically everyone in Rome is convinced that the project will make the swift-flowing rivers behave. In fact, there is an atmosphere of expectancy. While not wishing for a deluge of rainfall, most of the citizens of northwest Georgia await with great interest the first test of the new flood-control system.

Engineers declare that the people in the lowest section of the city would not experience the slightest inconvenience even if the flood-waters were to approach the record established in 1886 when a steamboat paddled up Rome's main street. Although the water has reached to the roof on many homes in recent years, now, the levees will restrain the water, though its level will be above the tops of the windows of many houses within three hundred feet of the river bank.

Two tractor-powered packing machines are shown "ironing down" the final layers of dirt on the levee above. These huge machines made an average of a dozen trips over each thin layer of dirt as it was spread. Plows will loosen the top layer before it is sodded with Bermuda grass.

The occupants of these houses, who have repeatedly had to evacuate in great haste, can now go about the routine of their existence in a normal manner, though millions of gallons of floor waters are rushing by a short distance away. For between them and the muddy waters is a barrier built of a half-million cubic yards of earth, another half-million pounds of reinforcing steel, 14,000 pounds of structural steel, 70,000 feet of sheet steel piling, and 4,000 cubic yards of concrete.

The cost of this construction is insignificant when the savings which will result are considered. City officials have estimated the actual cost in damage to property of each flood in recent years to be at least $50,000. Besides this cost was the ever-present danger of sickness and epidemics during the floods. Considering only the saving in property damage, the flood-control system will pay for itself in five years by averting flood damage. A further advantage in the new system of flood control is the fact that a new area for the expansion of Rome's crowded business section is opened and expected to develop rapidly.

Completion of the project marks the success of a long fight by the citizens of Rome to have this flood protection, and a fitting celebration is planned.

Pugnacious and philosophical Romans have been heard to assert that Mark Twain was wrong—all wrong. Romans not only talk about the weather—they do something about it. So, it might be said that Rome's new system of levees stand as a monument to Mark Twain's great fallacy. Wet weather can be controlled and floods prevented.

They're Preparing for the Day They Hope Will Never Come

By LUKE GREENE.

While war clouds gather menacingly over Europe, while dictators flaunt their threats to a fear-stricken world and the dove of peace flutters more unsteadily with each new dawn, 116 young Atlanta businessmen are preparing earnestly, conscientiously for that day they hope will never come—that day when the United States sends its armies marching ayay to the battlefield.

They are not the men who will goose-step to the tune of blaring bands. They are not the men who will march at the heads of armies. They are not the men who will zoom through the air listening to the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun and laughing fiendishly as they watch the death-dealing little bullet marks that finally send an enemy plane plunging to earth in flames.

They are the men whose duty it will be to see that the war keeps going—the men who rush food and supplies and ammunition to the battlefield. The men of the quartermaster corps, if you please.

Every Thursday night you'll find these young Atlanta businessmen out at the armory at Georgia Tech. They are enrolled in what is called a Candidate Branch School of the quartermaster reserve. There are 10 such schools in the United States—one in each corps area and one in Washington.

They sit there in a classroom, bright-faced and alert, as the instructor explains this "business" of war. Not one of them wants the United States to become involved in another conflict. They've heard of that last war—that war that was to make the world safe for democracy. Some of them had fathers who fought in it. They've heard vivid stories about tangled barbed wire and mud-filled shell holes.

But they realize they must be prepared in the event another one should come. They must know the fundamentals of war before they can handle the business end of it. They must know something about sanitation and first aid and map-reading and all the other things you study in preparation for one of these "slaughter feasts."

In the event of war these men would be trained, he said. They could be dispatched immediately to posts of responsibility. Atlanta would be a focal point for the quartermaster corps during an emergency. It would be the buying center for the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

As another indication of Atlanta's importance in the defense set-up, Major Boylan said the office here would buy 80 per cent of the cotton textiles for the entire United States.

In preparation for this important job, if it ever should materialize, these young men are learning their military fundamentals. Some of them have had R. O. T. C. training, but others haven't. Walk into one of their meetings. You might find them practicing artificial respiration or perusing a map. Or maybe they might be just listening to a lecture.

Applicants for a commission as a second lieutenant in the quartermaster corps must meet several requirements. They must be over 21 and under 35 years of age. They must pass a physical examination. They must submit three letters of recommendation as to moral character and standing in their communities. They must have two years' experience in appropriate vocational, professional or technical specialty as well as a knowledge of the basic military subjects.

The Officers' Reserve Corps is organized for the purpose of providing a reserve of officers available for military service when needed, Major Boylan pointed out.

In accord with this purpose reserve officers are, in time of peace, procured and trained for the organizations and activities of the regular army and organized reserves which would be first and most urgently needed in the event of national emergency. The organized peace establishment of the regular army and organized reserves includes all divisions and other military units necessary to form the basis for a complete and immediate mobilization, in so far as the availability of appropriations permits.

Instructor for the school is Captain George C. Wynne, who also is assistant zone quartermaster. Special instructors are Lieutenant Colonel Conson C. Wilson, Captain Perry A. McGinnis, Captain John E. Soule and First Lieutenant Dewey T. Nabors.

Major Boylan said there were more than 300 applications for entrance in the school. But since there was a limit to the accommodations, the number had to be limited. The school will continue until April.

The school has all the atmosphere of the college classroom. The instructor takes the role of the pedagogue and stands in front of the class explaining the various fundamentals. Here and there you see a few of the young men taking notes. Then sometimes they take "time out" for actual demonstrations pertaining to first aid or sanitation or any of the other subjects they study.

It's hard to visualize these young men wanting to learn about war after a long day's work. It would seem natural for them to want to rest or read a book or go to a movie. But they are more interested than you would think.

And regardless of whether they ever have to put their knowledge to an actual test, they have the satisfaction of knowing they are rendering their country a service.

With more and more money being appropriated for defense purposes, there is a growing need for military "brains." These are just a few of the men who are giving their time and effort to fill this need.

Following are the men enrolled in the school:

Making a River Behave

By HUDSON NIX.

For the first time in fifty years, the 3,000 inhabitants of the western area of Rome, Ga., can sleep well at night during rainy weather. This half-century-old feeling of anxiety was not caused by the fact that there are no roofs on the houses in this section, but because of the recurrent invasions of the yellow flood-waters from the inadequate channels of the Oostanaula, Coosa and Etowah rivers that form a junction just below the heart of the city.

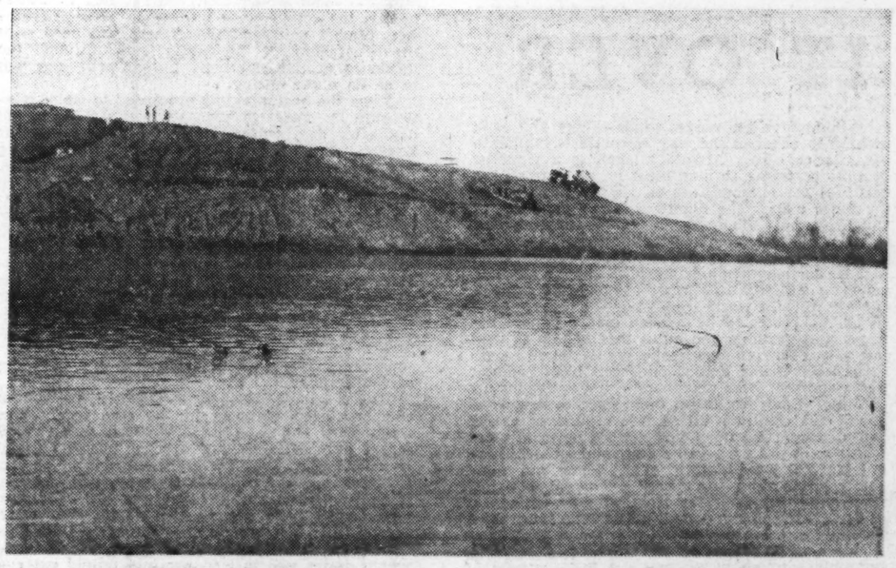

The cause of this feeling of security, lately visited upon these Rome citizens, is the recent completion of a two-mile stretch of levees, which engineers say will prevent the slightest damage even if the river rises higher than it has during the last fifty years. Constructed at a cost of $315,000, this levee comprises one of the outstanding flood-control systems of the south, and is a striking example of man's increasing ability to cope with the ravaging forces of nature.

Seen from the water level, this embankment, which has already been sodded with Bermuda grass, resembles a long mountain range.

To make sure that the levee holds in any eventuality, its base is 100 feet wide, gradually lessening in thickness to ten feet at the top. It has an average height of 18 feet, and is reinforced with rock, concrete and steel at strategic points where the force of the flood is greatest.

When the work first got under way, many people were skeptical of its ultimate success. But after watching the construction, which required the services of 200 workers, a corps of United States Army engineers, modern excavating machines and tractors, over a period of nine months, practically everyone in Rome is convinced that the project will make the swift-flowing rivers behave. In fact, there is an atmosphere of expectancy. While not wishing for a deluge of rainfall, most of the citizens of northwest Georgia await with great interest the first test of the new flood-control system.

Engineers declare that the people in the lowest section of the city would not experience the slightest inconvenience even if the flood-waters were to approach the record established in 1886 when a steamboat paddled up Rome's main street. Although the water has reached to the roof on many homes in recent years, now, the levees will restrain the water, though its level will be above the tops of the windows of many houses within three hundred feet of the river bank.

Two tractor-powered packing machines are shown "ironing down" the final layers of dirt on the levee above. These huge machines made an average of a dozen trips over each thin layer of dirt as it was spread. Plows will loosen the top layer before it is sodded with Bermuda grass.

The occupants of these houses, who have repeatedly had to evacuate in great haste, can now go about the routine of their existence in a normal manner, though millions of gallons of floor waters are rushing by a short distance away. For between them and the muddy waters is a barrier built of a half-million cubic yards of earth, another half-million pounds of reinforcing steel, 14,000 pounds of structural steel, 70,000 feet of sheet steel piling, and 4,000 cubic yards of concrete.

The cost of this construction is insignificant when the savings which will result are considered. City officials have estimated the actual cost in damage to property of each flood in recent years to be at least $50,000. Besides this cost was the ever-present danger of sickness and epidemics during the floods. Considering only the saving in property damage, the flood-control system will pay for itself in five years by averting flood damage. A further advantage in the new system of flood control is the fact that a new area for the expansion of Rome's crowded business section is opened and expected to develop rapidly.

Completion of the project marks the success of a long fight by the citizens of Rome to have this flood protection, and a fitting celebration is planned.

Pugnacious and philosophical Romans have been heard to assert that Mark Twain was wrong—all wrong. Romans not only talk about the weather—they do something about it. So, it might be said that Rome's new system of levees stand as a monument to Mark Twain's great fallacy. Wet weather can be controlled and floods prevented.

Mary Musgrove, Creek Indian, Interpreter And Teacher in Georgia's First School

By ADA RAMP WALDEN.

Outstanding in the annals of the Empire State of the South is the name of a woman who enjoyed the confidence of the illustrious Oglethorpe, who paid her a yearly stipend of 150 pounds for her service as interpreter, who was assistant teacher of English in what was probably the first school established in Georgia, in 1737; but who fell before the machinations of her avaricious husband, and almost brought the colony to ruin—Mary Musgrove, Creek Indian.

Mary's father was a white man, an Englishman who came to the South Carolina colony a number of years before Oglethorpe's followers arrived at Yamacraw Bluff that eventful morning in 1733, and it was from her father, probably, and her close association with the whites, that Mary, almost from her infancy, could speak English as well as her own mother's language.

On the bold bluff of Yamacraw, in 1733, there lived an Englishman, John Musgrove, who in previous years had resided on the Carolina side, where he traded with the Creeks. A born hunter and trapper, he found ready sale for his peltries among the Indians and soon prospered. His habitation on the bluff was the first to be erected by a white man on Georgia soil. The home to which Musgrove brought his Indian bride is described as being one of unusual attractiveness in the magnificent vista afforded by its place on the height. In the distance could be seen the palmetto-thatched huts of the Indian village, which was separated from the bluff by a creek which for many years bore the name "Musgrove."

Mary, apart from her beauty and the wiles commonly attributed to her sex, soon became an important factor in the fur-buying industry and was most helpful to her husband, who described his life as "peaceful and serene," and never tired of listening to the traditions of her race that had been handed down by her Creek mother.

"These mounds, you see," she said, "from which the great trees grow, are filled with the bones of those who resisted the appearance of my people years ago when they were driven by the powerful Natchee of the North. The large mound is the grave of the Great Chief of the Lower Creeks, and it was on that spot that he met the first white man, and here he asked to be buried. They brought the news that they had subdued our Spanish enemies in Florida, and since then, the English have been dear to our hearts."

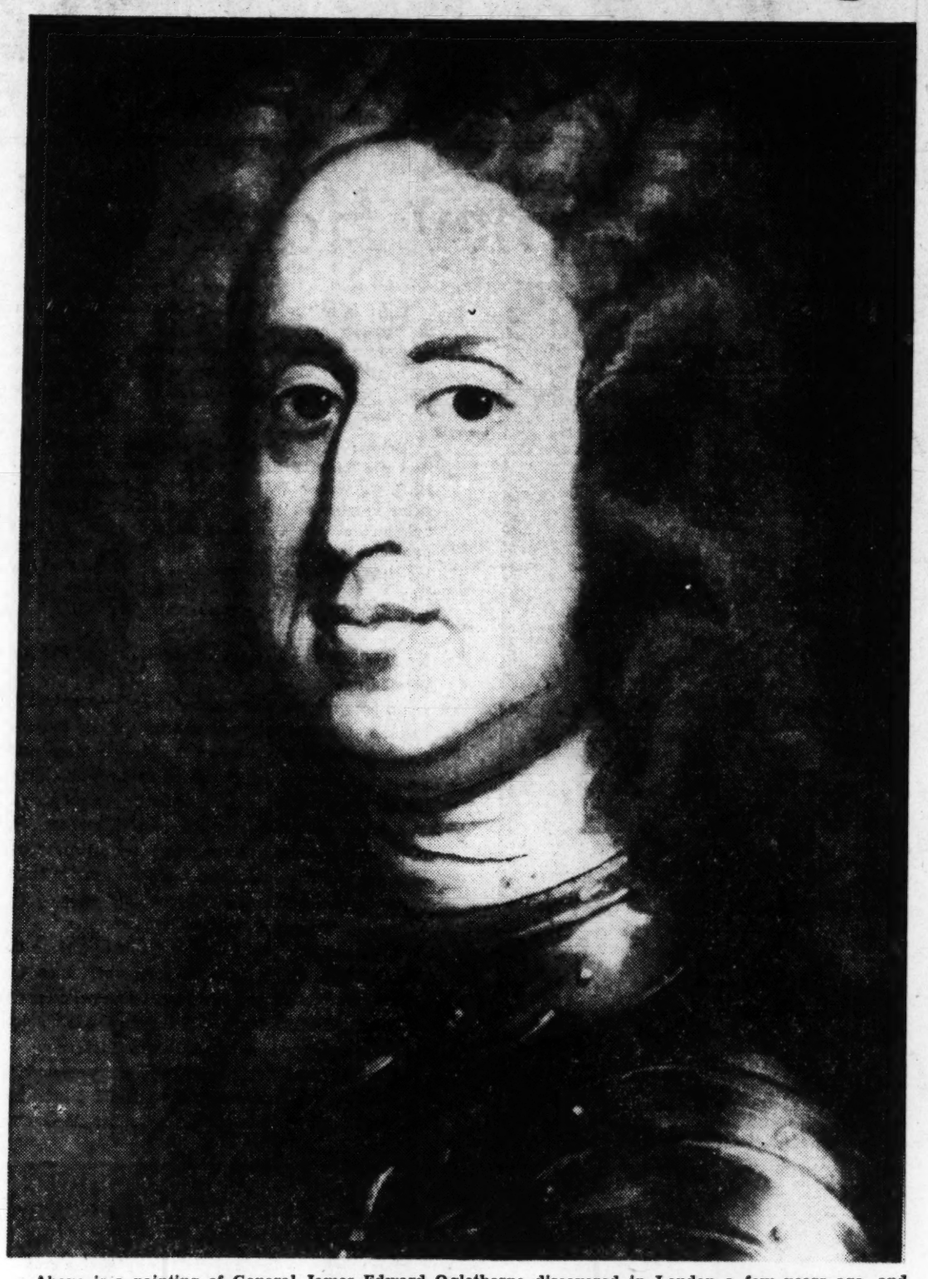

Ere the sun had set on the afternoon of February 12, 1733, the couple beheld a boat land some distance away. Musgrove went at once to meet the newcomers, while Mary ran swiftly to the village to advise the chief, Tomochichi, of the approach of the visitors. Messengers were sent, on foot, to advise the neighboring tribes of the advent of a boatload of palefaces, and early next morning, Musgrove's yard was filled with the Creek chieftains.

It was the good ship Anne, that had come from England after three months on the sea. Under the command of the Mounted Rangers, Oglethorpe, Colonel William Bull, of South Carolina; Jonathan Bryan and the Rev. Mr. Herbert ascended the bluff at the top of which was the Musgrove habitation. The chiefs advanced with their pipes of peace and motioned Mary to make an address of welcome, which was briefly responded to by Oglethorpe, who instructed the interpreter to say that the King of England had sent them to make an alliance with them, that they might trade and live with them, if they were given the lands on which to settle. He then distributed presents to all. The venerable Tomochichi then stepped forward and told of the great English warrior who had come to the bluff many years before, and talked with their chief, who slept beneath the large mound, whereupon Oglethorpe unrolled a piece of parchment and displayed the record of "the great English warrior" who was Sir Walter Raleigh, and who had declared that the "country is fine, and the people good."

By his side stood Mary Musgrove, interpreting every sentence, and her dark eyes glowed with enthusiasm when the great chief presented to Oglethorpe a buffalo's skin adorned with the head and features of an eagle. Her costume was described as one that combined savage with civilized taste. A pink cambric vest was laced in front and a white petticoat formed the European portion of her costume. A mantle of feathers of beautiful plumage arranged so as to represent flowers almost hid the bodice. Her feet were shod in moccasins of buckskin made and embroidered by herself, and laced up the ankles with gay ribbons, probably secured in trade from an enterprising English trader. Ornaments of shell and beads hung from her neck and her long glossy hair fell unconfined, though bound by a scarlet band. About her waist was a belt of wampum, and huge pearls gleaned from the Savannah, hung pendant from her ears.

The quiet sylvan scenes which had ever been the delight of the child of the forest, assumed an air of activity. Instantly, she suggested to her husband that they remove inland; but Oglethorpe had already discerned that Mary was of conspicuous influence among her people; that her advice, young as she was, was sought by her elders. Besides, she was needed as an interpreter. He was not long in securing her friendship, induced mostly with valuable presents, and assured her that he would arrange for the sum of 100 pounds to be paid her each year. This was indeed a handsome income, at that time, and, although her husband was considered prosperous, the money supplied the effeminate Mary with the means of indulging her decided taste for finery and spectacular dress.

The time came when Oglethorpe was to return to his native England and give a personal account of his important stewardship of the new colony. Tomochichi, reverenced by various tribes, as a patriarch among several colonies who visited him to profit by his words of wisdom, was now 90 years of age. Frequently, Oglethorpe, in company with John and Mary Musgrove, would visit the aged mico and discuss the events of the times which had come upon them so suddenly that day which was to go down in history as the birthday of a great state.

One afternoon, one year after the arrival of the colonists, the three visited the chief, who had his wife, Scenauky, prepare a meal of milk and honey, dried venison and hominy. They were served under the spreading branches of a giant oak. As they ate, Tomochichi requested of Oglethorpe that he send a teacher. "I am too old to learn, but I want my children to learn," he said. Thereupon, Oglethorpe urged the old man to accompany him, that he might "see our king, our land and our people."

"I cannot leave my squaw, my brother's son and my chief captain, Hylispilli," was his reply.

"You may take them with you," he was assured; "and we will prevail on John and Mary to go, since Mary will be a tongue for you, and her husband will attend your men." The aged mico consented, provided the Musgroves accepted the invitation. Mary looked at John, who said: "I want to see my relatives in England and will be glad to go."

Thousands of the Creeks had assembled from far and wide that beautiful morning in April, 1734, to bid farewell to their "beloved man," as they styled Oglethorpe. Mary served as interpreter, and her husband a kind of superintendent or factotum. There were Tomochichi, his wife, Scenauky; his nephew, Toonahowi; his chief war captain, Hylispilli, and Chiefs Umpeachy and Tonohowi. Georgia's destiny was freighted in that group, and the English colonists were a sad lot as they watched the departure of the boat, for news of its loss would have meant doom to the little colony.

Death of John Musgrove.

The adulation received by Mary would have turned the head of the average woman, unused to such in her humble sphere. Scenauky, who as the aged chief's wife ranked as queen, possessed neither the youth nor pulchritude of Mary, and the latter could answer all inquiries. She was heaped with gifts of great value, and for four months all were received and entertained in the homes of notables. When the time came to embark for home, John Musgrove was on a visit to his relatives in Kentshire. Came the news that he was too ill to join the party in London. Mary rushed to his bedside. After a few days he decided that the sea air was the panacea needed and an effort made to join the party at Gravesend. But embarkation was deferred, for Musgrove was growing daily worse. Two days before the party set sail for America, he passed away.

Returning, Mary took up her residence in her old home, and continued to serve the colonists and her people in various ways, although much confusion and trouble had arisen during the absence of the chief and Oglethorpe in England. The latter did not return until 1736, when Tomochichi, now having entered his 93d year, met him with his head men and Mary, who wept copiously. She had purchased a small place near Cowpens (the name being given because of its being the place where the first cattle owned by the first settlers were kept), and here with an only brother, Griffin, she lived almost in retirement. With Oglethorpe came John and Charles Wesley, and now Mary again served as interpreter, interpreting the first conversation John Wesley ever held with the Indians.

Charles Wesley returned to England in July but left his brother, John, with two ministers, the Revs. Delamotte and Ingram. The latter now projected a plan of instruction for the children and secured the consent of the Indians for the construction of a house at Irene, a mile from Cowpens, where the rudiments of an English education would be taught along with instruction in farming. Mary Musgrove accepted the position of assistant teacher and interpreter to the children and agreed to board such pupils as must come from a distance.

John Wesley felt that the winning of Mary to the Christian faith was imperative, if she would succeed as a teacher; but, although the strongest appeals were made, she was deaf to his teachings and to those of his confreres.

Trouble now arose with the Spanish, and Oglethorpe left for England to raise a regiment for defense against this hostile body, returning in September, 1738. With his regiment came a person who was destined to almost destroy the colony and its institutions. This was Thomas Bosomworth, chaplain, who, under his sacred guise, was devoured with an ambition that was to be most disastrous to those having the interests of the colony at heart.

In October, 1739, the loyal chief, Tomochichi passed away, his last words being "Be friends to the English and bury me among them, in Savannah," which was done, and where his resting place is marked with a rugged boulder.

Mary Musgrove's Change of Attitude.

But the ambitious Bosomworth had now met the yet charming, and certainly useful, Mary Musgrove. Although he was a minister, and knew that Mary was impervious to the advances of the ministers who would fain convert her to Christianity, the couple were wedded in 1743. Heretofore, Mary's indispensable services had been with the benefactors of the colony; now, through the influence of the ambitious Bosomworth, she was to be its bitter enemy.

From the beginning, he proceeded to claim relationship by marriage with the many Creeks, and day after day, poisoned their minds against the English, who he claimed wanted their friendship only to exploit their own commercial propensities. He begged them to unite and name a leader, which they did in the person of Malatche, whom they proclaimed Emperor, in deference to advice from Bosomworth. Now did the wily chaplain, after gifts of guns and pistols, persuade the new Emperor to sign a deed of conveyance to "Thomas and Mary Bosomworth . . . all those tracts of land known by the name of Ossabaw, Cowlygeo or St. Katherine's and Sapelo Islands, etc., as long as the sun shall shine or the waters run in the rivers. Signed on the 4th day of the windy moon, corresponding to the 14th of December, the very day of the coronation."

These islands formed a princely reservation and had been reserved in the first treaty with Oglethorpe. Mary, of course, was passive and served only as interpreter for her husband in the transfer. Yet, that native simplicity which had characterized her in years gone by, had vanished since her visit to Europe. She was wiser and more resourceful. She desired the wealth that would accrue from the ownership of the islands far more than ever and longed for display and finery—which desire was to lead her into untold extravagance, the loss of respect of the English, and ultimately her ruin.

Bosomworth began the purchase of cattle and stock from the Carolina planters with which his new domains would be stocked; but no newcomers were settling, and there was little demand for stock, all of which was bought on credit. But there was no end to Mary's lavish spending. The wily husband, almost at his wit's end, now resorted to a bold move, which was that of removing his liabilities by wiping out the entire colony. "Mary," said he, "did you know that you are really a sister of Malatche, whose maternal great-grandfather was King of all the Creeks and that he possessed all the country from Savannah to Florida?"

Mary assured him that she was not. "Say not so," he responded, "for I can persuade the Emperor Malatche that you are, and as his elder sister that you have an undisputed title to all of Georgia." Mary was again passive in the hands of her husband, and at a meeting of all the Creeks a private talk was had with Malatche to prepare him for the news of the great discovery made by Mary and himself. "Henceforth," said Bosomworth, "our interests must be inseparable."

In the meantime, there assembled in tremendous numbers at Frederica, Indians of the Creek nations, where they received an inspiring speech from Mary Bosomworth, in which she set forth her claims and the wrongs done her and her people by the foreigners. Malatche was won over at once, and waving an arrow, declared with fire in his eye that he would never rest until his wronged sister had secured her rights. Every hearer pledged himself to shed his last drop of blood in Mary's defense and at the head of her dark subjects she set out for Savannah, dispatching a courier to demand from the president and council her rights over the territory of the Upper and Lower Creeks; that all the lands south of the Savannah should be relinquished at once to her, the hereditary queen, and if they refused they would be exterminated by her cohorts.

Arrest of Bosomworth.

The town was thrown into confusion! Something must be done to circumvent the influential Mary. It was Captain Noble Jones that went forth to meet the delegation with the announcement that no armed Indian could enter the town except at the peril of his life. After consulting with Mary, she consented to enter with her husband, who incidentally, was attired in his canonical robes, with Mary resplendent in jewels and feathers. Malatche and the other chiefs followed. Mary was refused permission to speak and the Indians were returned their weapons with the understanding that they would return peaceably from the town.

But they did not vacate, and the inhabitants were in terror as they watched them from behind blinds, as they marched through the streets. Orders were given to take Bosomworth as a prisoner, and if a life was lost in the attempt, to hang him to the first tree. Following his arrest, Mary swore and stormed, heaping imprecations on the head of her erstwhile friend, Oglethorpe, and the entire English nation. Through a subterfuge, President Stephens decoyed Mary into an ambuscade and entertained her and her followers with a sumptuous feast, where with gifts and persuasive speeches he finally convinced her that she was being used as a tool; that the islands desired by Bosomworth to meet his great debts belonged to the friends of King George, for his friends, the Creeks, to hunt and fish in; and promise was given for their restoration if the Indians would quietly return.

The chiefs now believed that they were duped by Bosomworth, and Malatche himself, when he heard of the gifts presented Mary, forgot that she had claimed to be his sister. Pipes and rum were brought forward and for the time being, all troubles and unpleasantness were forgotten. The Indians now gathered up their presents to depart, when lo! in rushed the angry Mary, who had again talked with Bosomworth and abused the president for bribing her people with paltry presents. Malatche started from his seat as the president threatened Mary with imprisonment, and, giving a war whoop, dared any man to touch Queen Mary. The scene was one of uproar. Indians seized their tomahawks; the soldiers their guns and the citizens fled to their houses. Again did Captain Noble Jones come to the rescue, calmly commanding the Indians to surrender their arms, which was done. Mary was conducted to prison, and refused permission to see her subjects during their stay in Savannah.

Bosomworth, who was impervious to reason, was also placed in confinement. Through the intercession of a brother, Adam Bosomworth, the minister humbly solicited pardon for his wife and himself, hoping that her former services would be remembered and that her recent actions would be forgiven. He acknowledged her claim as sister to Malatche to be entirely groundless and that there would be no further claim made to the province of Georgia.

Two years later the two again renewed their claims, in Savannah.

"If denied my rights," wrote Mary, "give me money to bear my expenses to England that I may lay my claim before the King, who might punish me if culpable; reinstate me, if innocent."

The council treated the petition with contempt. Bosomworth, in desperation, now sold his wife's claim to the lands lying between Savannah and Pipemaker's creek, her house and lot in the town, to raise money to carry them to England. They embarked in the summer of 1753; but Mary did not receive the homage accorded her on her previous visit. The youth and innocence of earlier days were no more, and her position was one of obscurity. An entire year was spent in an effort to gain audience with the King, and finally the two returned, disappointed and disgusted, to the quiet cottage on St. Katherine's Island.

In December, 1755, at a treaty held in Augusta for the express purpose of discussing the Bosomworth claim, the poor savages were left in a state of bewilderment through days of legal wrangling in which nothing seemed to be accomplished. Not until 1759 was a decision made at the Court of St. James' which granted to Bosomworth and Mary the island of St. Katherine; with orders to sell the other two islands and with the proceeds to extinguish all claims of the Bosomworths, who must give a written release and acquittance.

In a humble sequestered cottage, the couple spent their last years on the lonely island, with no other residents except several slaves and a young Irish woman, as a servant. One stormy night in December, 1766, Mary died as she had lived—an unbeliever. There was no physician to minister, and no minister to lend comfort. Said she to the husband who should have been her spiritual guide, but who had made her life a chaotic one, "You have often said that the religion you professed was a fable. Before we were married I was a believer in the doctrine of my own people—that there is a good and an evil spirit, and that when we die we shall go to the one we most resemble. You have convinced me that there is no future state. Now my life is to end in perpetual night, if your doctrine is true. If otherwise, I am lost."

"Do not trouble yourself," he said, "with such thoughts at this hour. Death is an eternal sleep. If there be a God——"

A few months later, the widower was married to the Irish servant. Beneath the giant oaks near by, on St. Katherine's island, all three lie awaiting the last trump, although all vestiges of the graves have long disappeared.

THINKING IT OVER

By LEONORA RAINES.

At last, I am installed and have a real hearthstone of my own—nothing grand nor large, but here I and my belongings which tramped the globe with me, rest. Some pieces have been stored here and there waiting for a signal that we could all get together. These latter have been brought from the exile in which they were thrust, and now are grouped in the manner I believe most satisfactory to all concerned. I hung or posed them to try out effect, and all seemed to go well, so I just left the objects there!

Formerly the lodgings I inhabited have been those "ready to wear," furnished suites fitted to other folks. But my very own quarters give me a feeling of snugness, stability, independence, permanence. A person's home, it seems to me, expresses the individual herself, just as her raiment defines her character. When I return from no matter whence or where, the very walls appear to lean over in greeting and I feel I am with associates happy to have me. My home is an expression of all I am, even tho its trimmings cover ideas and workmanship of alien lands. I do enjoy caring for the objects, for I say, "If anything is to be broken, better it be mine than strange hands."

My living and bedroom contain all that was, my kitchen all that is, for the latter is quite modern and American, since it contains trig electric appliances dear to the fancy of every housekeeper. How often did I long for such a corner in London or Rome or Paris where my kitchen was bare of everything save gas range, window, safe and sink, nothing to cheer in the way of comforts built into the interior. This Atlanta kitchen is a vignette. In spite of trying to hide itself or the range, it is beautiful and accomplishes all sorts of nice bits for the inner man. The dinette with its china closet which conceals the range, is sometimes converted into a breakfast room when intimates drop in for a meal.

Exterior surroundings mean all that is city and modern. But what matters that when my home is another world, a world from which I am as separated as tho protected by a deep moat? There are trams that grumble and autos that bellow as they jolt past. Fire engines make night wakeful with screeches. Grime and smoke seep from radiator pipes, and soot from neighbors' chimneys stains my curtains. Sparrows begin their staccato squeak at dawn and continue till sure everyone is awake and stirring. But noise and discord have no place within my walls where all is calm and serene. There are graceful trees in front of my home and many pretty lawns along the avenue. I can almost sniff the country air as I lean from windows or go out of doors. In summer I shall not have to leave town looking for "a cabin of hemlock in a blue ravine!"

My home is a dairy. I never collected anything, but objects came to me and got to be a part of myself, each a reminder of a friend or place or circumstance. I look about me and it is like turning over the pages of the past. The odd thing is that tho all are foreigners to each other, all seem to

COLLECTING COCOONS.

I have recently invented a small gadget that is going to save me a lot of embarrassment. Every winter I like to collect as many cocoons as I can, and keep them until their inmates emerge from their silken prison cells when their terms of confinement end in the spring or early summer.

The best place I know of to find cocoons is in the trees along city streets. I know that there are cocoon collectors who climb the trees to get those that are too high to reach from tiptoe. They very coolly go about shinning up the trunk, and break off part of the limb with perfect composure to get at the prize. I am one of those sensitive people you hear about sometimes, and could never get up enough bravery to do this. I have visions of being thrown in the "booby-hatch" for imagining that I am a little songbird. To make it worse, I am known as a bird-whistler, and I am sure that people might get the wrong impression.

I long have worried about those too-high cocoons. I have tried going back after them at night, but that makes it worse. Imagine being accused of being a "night-owl" of a particularly realistic sort! It just cannot be done. I have had to leave many of the higher cocoons on the tree, and miss seeing their occupants emerge from them. But now I have made a cutting hook by filing a notch in an old jack-knife blade, which I can quickly attach to a walking stick and cut down the coveted insect, silk house and all, with a sinkle tug. It seems much more in keeping with one's dignity to do it this way, and now I shall probably rejoice in having a dozen or more extra cocoons.

I know of no more wonderful thing in nature than the spectacle of a moth issuing from this mummy-like stage of its existence, and the astonishing growth of its wings. It is a miracle! The caterpillar is resurrected and becomes an angel before our admiring eyes. Have you ever watched it? The creature that knaws and pushes its way out of its silken cell looks neither like the caterpillar, nor the brown pupa that it was within the cell. It does not much resemble the perfect moth that it will present become, even while you look on.

It is a weak, flabby-looking thing, crawly and miserable, but not for long. Its wings begin to expand and push out, slowly, of course, but with speed enough for you to easily see them growing. Before very long its wings will have spread to their fullest, and it will have become a creature famous for beauty. I keep some of the moths, and after collecting their eggs from which to raise others, I put them to death to add specimens to my collection. Others I let go, to allow them to lay their eggs where nature intended they should.

It is best to keep the cocoons in an open box, for if they are shut up too closely, the emerging moths will not have proper space in which to expand their wings, and they will be hopeless cripples.

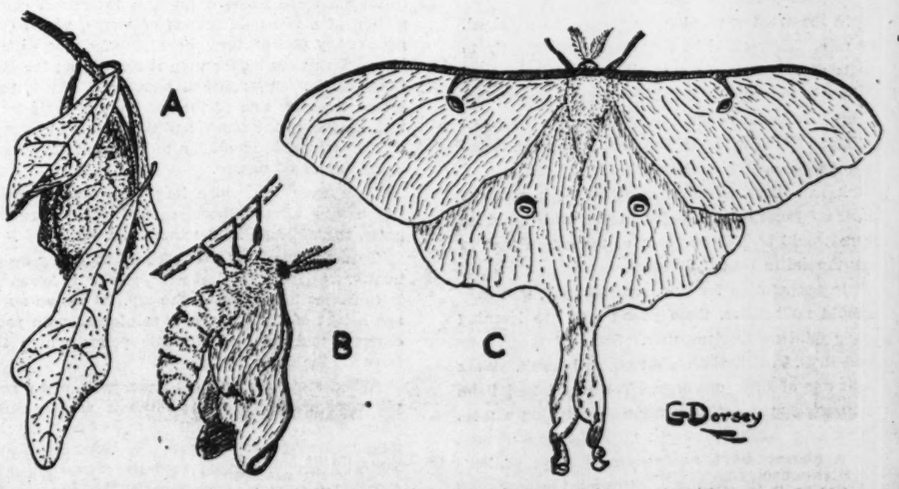

HOW TO STUDY BIRDS—VI. Too many people tell me that they become descouraged when they try to start off bird-study. "All I can see is a little dot of dull color, and then a flash of movement and it's gone," someone said. "How do you ever get close enough to them to be sure of their identity?" The answer is that you must stalk them with all the cunning of an Indian hunter. If you would woo nature and win, you must be crafty. It is much harder to observe a bird's habits than to shoot him, and much more fun for me. To get the inside story of a bird's life in spite of its caution requires caution on your part.

slip up on the bird, and the other is to sit still and

There are two ways to go about it. One is to wait for it to come closer when it does not see you. Use both of these methods. If they fail to work, try calling the birds to you. You don't need to learn to whistle. I have found that if you learn one bird sound, that you can bring almost any small bird closer.

This is the scold note of the Carolina wren. This is a repetition of the sound of the consonant-digraph "ch," which you can easily make, holding your teeth together, opening your lips wide, and spreading your tongue against your teeth at each side. Get your mouth in this position and blow. You already know how to use the sound of "ch" in everyday speech, and it will be easy. Look for a wren and listen to how it does it, and practice.

Try making this sound for a while in the open, when the birds are flying away through the thickets. They will come up to see what is the matter, and if you stand still some of them will come quite close, and fuss back at you for disturbing the peace. While they scold you, you can get a nice long look at them. Of course, you should use your field glass on them. But avoid making any quick movements. Stay as still as you can. I hold my glass just under my eyes, from where I can raise it with the least of motion, for movement, more than anything else, will frighten a shy bird away.

SO YOU WANT TO BE A ROXYETTE—EH?

By DON PRINCE.

Oh, for the life of a Roxyette!

Since the arrival in Atlanta of the 16 energetic young ladies known as Gae Foster's Roxyettes there has been a sharp upturn in the ambitions of young Georgians of the female persuasion toward the stage as a career—especially toward the dance, and what young hopefuls regard as a start. Not one would mind beginning at the bottom—as a Roxyette—as a starter to giving Garbo a struggle for her quarter-million annual pittance, or Helen Hayes in stage laurels.

The producer of the Roxyettes at the new Roxy theater here, has been inundated with applications from youngsters each of whom would be a Roxyette. Not as a damper on young hopefuls, but merely as a matter of record, The Constitution decided to look into the daily life of a Roxyette. It seems that the average day of the proverbial busy bee is a vacation when compared to the ordinary daily routine of a Roxyette.

There is the age-old vaudeville story about, "Why did you go on the stage?" which was answered promptly for half a century by "Because I like to sleep late in the mornings." But that surely could not be the reason for a Roxyette. Revielle for them is 7:30 every morning, and if no special rehearsal is called, they generally quit and are out of the theater by 11 o'clock at night!

The average day in the life of a Roxyette is much the same as that of a soldier, only a soldier learns his tricks but once and then goes through them like a machine, while the Roxyette has to learn new ones all the time. And besides, the army is a much easier life!

The Roxyettes all live in one hotel, two to a room, within a stone's throw from the stage door. At sevenish, the telephone informs them that another day has arrived. There is no hurry because they don't have to be at rehearsal until 9, except on Saturdays when, for dress rehearsal, they have to be on stage by 8:30. So they might sleep until a quarter to 8. Breakfast generally at a cafeteria. The girls eat heartily. They need to. Fruit juice, cereal and anything else which strikes their fancy, so long as it is not too heavy. From 9 to 11 they really go to work. It looks easy enough on the stage from the front of the house. But 16 girls doing three, sometimes four new dances a week means that someone is doing a whole lot of work the paying customer doesn't see. And that "someone" means the 16 girls!

They learn as a rule, three new routines a week. Beth Mitchell, their producer, is just a trifle disappointed when they take two weeks to learn any particular number. Their skating dance took them ten days. Their ball number, in which the girls all dance on huge spheres, required two weeks. But it didn't look so difficult from the front of the house, because it was expertly done. Yet there were many bruises nursed, hours of being scared stiff and bodily sore to master that routine. Those hours were generally from 9 to 11.

Unless a girl is behind the others in any particular routine and needs special coaching, between 11 and 1 she may relax. There's that letter to write home, washing to do, things to buy, maybe even read a little, oh, yes, and have lunch before the first show at 1:30, for which the girls have to check in a half hour ahead of first call, to make up and get into their costumes. Of course this rest period is not always possible. There are costume calls. Costumes have to be fitted every week. And every Friday there is a photo call for pictures. The press agent must have pictures for the newspapers.

Between the first show and the second at about 4:30? Ten minutes respite and rehearsal downstairs under the stage while the picture commands the stage proper. There is generally time for a snack before getting ready for the show, unless they'd like to lie down some place and take a ten-minute nap.

The third performance of the day is at 6:30, approximately. This is over about 7:30. Then for a change, the Roxyettes rehearse for an hour and have time off for dinner—or just play around for a whole hour before they do their fourth show of the day at about 9. At 10 the day's work is over, after putting up costumes, taking off make-up. Of course occasionally there is a rehearsal, but otherwise one is free as the air. But strangely enough, the Roxyettes don't go out much to gallivant. For some reason or other, they are just a little weary. Most of them hit the hay by 11 o'clock.

Saturday is a little harder than the average, because it is opening day and there is rarely much time for lolling around on the day a new show goes on. But Sunday makes up for that. No stage appearance until 2 o'clock! And there are actually no rehearsals on Sunday! Of course, most people like you and I would be inclined to get quite a bit of shut-eye Sunday mornings if we went through a week like the little Roxyette. But not Miss Roxy. Rarely a Sunday passes that she is not seen in church for 11 o'clock services.

Dates? Well, it might be a good idea. But when? That's something you'll have to ask a Roxyette!

Moe Baranco, manager of the Roxy theater, gave them a party the other evening after the show. For recreation and celebration they danced—with one another.

By the way, Miss Georgia . . . do you still want to be a Roxyette?

What a line!—Yes, what lines, too! What pulchritude, what precision! And though these Roxyettes look happy and ARE happy, the finished performances they present are the result of hard, constant and tireless rehearing on their part. Between performances they are perfecting the colorful numbers to be rendered "next week."

Helping Georgia Farmers Along Road to Prosperity

By T. G. WALTERS.

"When every farmer in the south shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures, and disturbed by no creditor and enslaved by no debt, shall sit amid his teeming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards"—then shall the farmer be on the road to prosperity.

Since the day when these words were spoken by Henry W. Grady in a speech he delivered in Dallas, Texas, October 26, 1887, much has been said and written about what should be done to improve agricultural conditions of the cotton farmer. Some may say that it is better for the Georgia farmer to be left alone to solve his own problems, to utilize all farm lands, labor, and equipment in the production of cash enterprises, if he so desires, than to attempt to follow the advice of Henry W. Grady to plan a more balanced agriculture.

Suppose we examine some of the problems which confront the Georgia cotton farmer and see if one of the main functions of the public schools of the state should not be to assume the responsibility of developing the ability of the rural people and thus anable them to solve the agricultural and social problems with which they are confronted.

We have plenty of cotton, yes. Our warehouses are filled. The government is holding 11,000,000 bales as a part of the United States supply of 25.6 million bales. A world supply of 51.8 million bales is the largest in the history of cotton production. In other words, we have a supply of American cotton to last the United States three to four years if we think of the supply from a national standpoint.

The consumption of cotton in the United States ranges each year from 7.8 million bales in 1936-37 to 4.7 million bales in 1931-32.

Yet, after producing all this fleecy white cotton, the south has the lowest farm income per capita of any section of the United States. According to the 1935 census of the United States Department of Agriculture, the per capita farm income for Georgia was $136, and the average annual farm family income was about $612 for the average family of 4.3 persons.

In studying 71 farm families over a period of six years, the College of Agriculture found that the value of food consumed was $488. Substracting the value of food consumed—$488—from the family income of $612. would leave only $124 for clothing, education, improvements, taxes, insurance, etc. These figures clearly illustrate that it is imperative that the southern farmer "eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures."

The sad story in this picture is that too many Georgia farmers do not produce the food and feed crops needed. They have simuly done without because King Cotton has not brought in sufficient revenue to meet the farm family needs. Mr. Grady's statement that our land is suited to the production of all kinds of food crops cannot be denied, yet according to the 1935 agricultural census of the 250,544 farms in eGorgia, 29.3 per cent did not produce their pork, 28.6 per cent were without a milk cow, 11.1 per cent were without chickens, 84.6 per cent grew no wheat, 7.7 per cent grew no corn, 77.9 per cent grew no Irish potatoes, and 24.8 per cent grew no sweet potatoes.

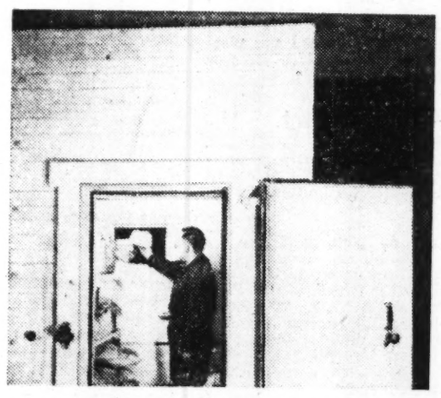

Yet we purchase annually from without the state more than $40,000,000 worth of meat and meat products, including poultry, eggs and dairy products, to say nothing of the other forms of farm products coming into the state to feed its farm population. Seventy per cent of our people are engaged in farming, yet do not produce enough to feed the people who live on farms.

From these facts it appears there can be no doubt as to the scope of nature of the problems involved in our unbalanced agriculture in Georgia.

Unfortunately, the south depends upon cotton and tobacco for two-thirds of its cash income. All the eggs of the farmers are in one basket, a basket which can be easily upset. Changing from a one-crop system will be slow. Without a doubt the one factor which will have the greatest bearing on this change will be education—education in our public schools that teaches practicality, an education built around the real problems of the people.

We cannot pour farm reform down the throats of the farmers. We must put more stress on education and the ability to plan ahead. Undoubtedly, education of the right kind was one of the determing factors in the success of the Danish farmer who has overcome more adverse conditions than the cotton farmer of the south finds himself facing today.

This type of educational program dealing with economic and social problems facing the people in the rural areas of the state is not new. As we survey the educational of the state, we find that something is now being done besides talking about these problems of an unbalanced agriculture. For example, we find that through vocational agricultural and home economics departments in the rural schools of the state, these problems of unbalanced farming are studied and analyzed in terms of specific farms and farm homes.

J. Frank Cobb, teacher of vocational agriculture in the LaFayette High school, examining frozen meat in freezer compartment of refrigerator which is kept at a temperature ranging from zero to ten degrees. Meat can be seen in the part of refrigerator which is kept at a temperature ranging from 35 to 40 degrees.

ADULT FARM CLASSES.

Hart county is a good example where teachers of vocational agriculture have had a big part in replanning the farming program. In 1928, E. H. Thomas went to the Nancy Hart community in Hart county as teacher of vocational agriculture. Thomas had the ability to lead farmers. He immediately started a program of farm planning, through conducting organized evening classes for adult farmers. They worked chiefly on soil improvement by the use of crimson clover. As a result of the fine work with clover, the first Clover Blossom Festival was held in the Nancy Hart community in 1932.

Festivals have been held each year since Thomas began teaching in the county. The clover idea spread until last year more than 8,000 acres in Hart county alone was planted to this soil-building crop. When the program first started, Hart county was one of the poorer farming counties of the state. It is now on the road to a sound agricultural program. The land is being enriched, the clover is keeping the soil from being washed away, new homes, churches and schools have been and are being built. It is a different county just because of wise farm planning.

Teachers of vocational agriculture in 300 rural communities are holding evening classes for adults this winter and spring for the purpose of assisting farmers in setting up their 1939 farming program in the light of present conditions. In these evening classes farmers discuss and study many of the real problems with which they are confronted, such as what food and feed program to set up for the farm, the kind and extent of cash crops to set up, the kind and number of livestock other than for food to have on the farm, the kind and extent of soil improvement crops to grow, what rotation system to follow, to forestry program to carry on, and what program of other improvements to set up.

The agricultural teachers do not stop with discussing the problems at the school building. They believe that good teaching results only when the job is actually completed on the farm. As an example, in setting up the food program for the farm, these teachers found that farmers did not have facilities for canning fruits, vegetables, and meats. To meet this need, community canning plants have been established in approximately 300 Georgia communities.

To meet this need, community canning plants have been established in approximately 300 Georgia communities.

Last year teachers of agriculture assisted farmers in canning over 3,500,000 cans of farm products for home consumption. These community plants are operated as a part of the educational program of the rural schools. Records of four canning plants given below illustrates the extent of use and value to the people.

Community	Total No. cans	No. families using plant	Av. cans per family	Value of Products canned
Clarkesville	52,000	362	143	5,200
Commerce	35,00	172	200	3,500
Moultrie	95,450	365	262	9,545

*NOTE: 10 cents per can used as basis of valuation.

In addition to these community canning plants, agricultural teachers have learned that farmers need cold storage facilities for keeping perishable products, and due to our mild winters for curing meats.

COMMUNITY REFRIGERATORS.

About two years ago, two agricultural teachers, Hugh A. Inglis, of Clarkesville, and J. Frank Cobb, of LaFayette, in co-operation with the Tennessee Valley Authority, former co-operative associations of the farmers in their respective communities and constructed walk-in-type community refrigerators—one in each community. These refrigerators are operated as a part of the community canning plants.

Last year, 95 patrons of the LaFayette community stored 17,054 pounds of pork, beef, fruits and vegetables. One thousand, six hundred and seventy-four kilowatt hours were consumed in operating the refrigerator at a cost of $38.52. The refrigerator at LaFayette has a freezer compartment where farmers can store meats indefiniately. In the refrigerator at Clarkesville, last year farmers stored 17,777 pounds of pork, beef, fruits and vegetables.

Mr. Inglis made the following statement in reporting on the refrigerator at Clarkesville: "Last January, after a large number of hogs were butchered, the weather turned warm and the community refrigerator handled 1,830 pounds of hams, shoulders and side meat at one time. This meat, no doubt, would have been lost had it not been for the refrigerator." For the meat stored during that one particular warm spell, value of which was estimated by Mr. Inglis at 25 cents per pound, the farmers were saved $457.50.

Now that practically every rural community in Georgia has electric power, the agricultural teachers throughout the state are making plans to get co-operative refrigerators erected in order that farmers may have the faculties they need to properly cure and store meats and other perishables.

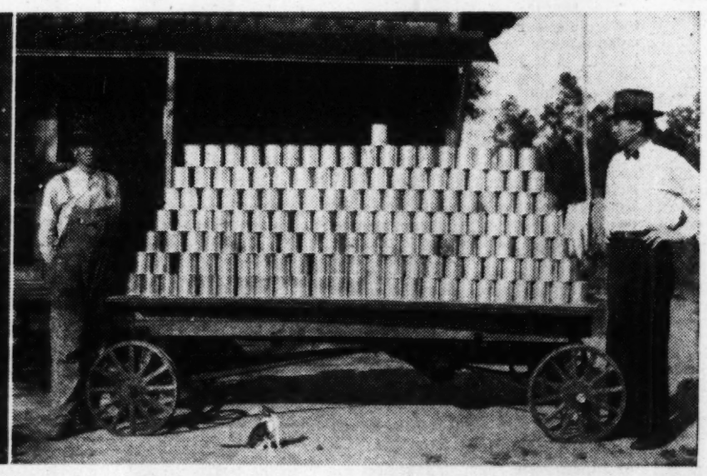

It is obvious that providing food for the farm family is a very important factor in a better balanced agriculture. Providing adequate food includes the production of vegetables, fruits, pork, beef, dairy and poultry products in sufficient quantities to properly feed the farm family throughout the year.

When these fruits, vegetables and meats are produced some of the best goes through these community canning plants and refrigerators where modern processing assures wholesome and abundant supplies for the seasons when they cannot be had fresh.

After reading this article, there may arise in the minds of the reader questions such as: Should the curriculum in Georgia schools be so organized as to place emphasis upon individual, community, state and national problems? Should schools be concerned in helping farmers replan farming programs to provide feed and feed crops for the family needs? Should such problems as soil erosion, conservation of forest resources, home beautification, providing home conveniences, improving crop and livestock, and developing local co-operatives, become the coreo f the curriculum in Georgia's rural schools?

Most of the leading educators of today are agreed that it is the responsibility of our schools to deal with such problems. When all our rural schools have developed such practical programs of education it is reasonable to expect that in a period of a few years we will see the words of Henry W. Grady—"then shall be breaking the fullness of our day"—come true.

RECORDED RHYTHMS

By DUNCAN MacDOUGALD JR.

More fascinating Stimmungsmusik is Ellington's latest Brunswick, "Blue Light," high lighting Bigard's mellifluous and indigo clarinet, Duke's tasteful piano, and some eerie muted brass. Through the hole Tricky Sam mutes his trombone deep in the groove to star in "Slap Happy." There are interesting orchestral effects in "Battle of Swing," but to me such rather exhibitionistic pieces are inferior to Duke's magnificent mood music—and the same goes for "Jazz Potpourri."

Cootie Williams' "Delta Mood" is graced by savage bugling from the Herr Direktor, the ominous, yet beauteous vibrato and intonation of the reeds, and Duke's atmospheric piano, while two interesting trumpet chori stand out in "The Boys From Harlem." In Hodge's "Hodge - Podge" Johnny's flabbergasting technique and prodigious swing feature his alto chorus. In "Wanderlust" he merely picks up the soprano sax to create more bewitching music.

Sedric and his Honey Bears really groove it in "Wail of the Scrontch"—it's deep blue stuff in the gutbucket vein with some especially mean gittar playing. Mildrel Bailey is terrific in "I Go for That"—just bend an ear to that perfect inflection, but Dorothy Lamour's version of the same is chiefly for the sophomores. Billie Holiday's vocals stands far out in Ted Wilson's "You're So Desirable" and "Let's Dream in the Moonlight," and the best of the recent Krupa carvings are "Murdy-Purdy" (wherein the intonations of the entire band are much clearer), "Apurksody" with well blended reeds, and "I Won't Believe It" with smoother, more accurate bronze.

Most solid of recent Luncefords is "Cheatin' on Me" with another superlative Willie Smith alto solo—just listen at that cat's magnificent tone and the sheer beauty of his melodic lines—and a terrifically rhythmic single strung guitar accompaniment. And finally "Taint What You Do" has some simply grand didactic singing by James Young that should ensconce this chaunter well in the Vocal Hall of Fame.

More vocal than instrumental are the newest Deccas. The effervescent Bing Crosby trudges down "The Lonesome Road" at an almost ecclesiastically solemn gait; the reverse is a maudlin chanson all about "A Kid Named Joe," crooned "in the usual pleasing Crosby manner." "They Say" by the brave Connie Boswell is better than her "Umbrella Man," "Deep in a Dream" and "Thanks for Ev'rything," and quite appealing in its feeling and mellow warmth. "Sittin' Around and Dreamin'" is a fetching little opus by Andy Kirk, duly well executed, but "Breeze," aback it, is far from zephyric.

Why not, Good Andrew, rusticate for a moon or two? Rest and rehearsal would so enhance the worth of your music.

As corny as a bustle, and equally decadent, is Will Osborne's groanin' and moanin' trombone choir in "Where Is My Little Dog?" and "Down Home Rag"—malodorous, ain't it! And finally—the spiritoso jam of Dick Robertson's "I Cried for You" is preferable to his treatise on "Gardenias."

Fabulous is the personnel of "Blue Lou" and "The Blues," by "The All Stars"—13 of the realm's outstanding jazz virtuosi. Equally fabulous are the soli by Jack Teagarden, Berigan and Goodman in the indigo creation—approximately the finest wax of the year, and Goodman's soulfelt, low-down chorus is a positive revelation of magnificent jazz; on "Lou," Teagarden is again terrific, and Miller's Flowing tenor should send every cat on the continent.

Hurriedly to note other worthy victor waxings, Goodman's "We'll Never Know" is a swell rendition of a swell Berlin tune, in which Beniamino plays pleadingly and dulcetly, and Schultz's hide-beating gives nice lift to the intriguing "Undecided." The Goodman Quintet creates subtle and elegant chamber jazz in "I Cried for You," while "I Know That You Know," in a sparkling riff-arrangement, again features Schultz on the skins, and Kirby's mellow cello. Thomas Dorsey's "Ole Black Joe" has an agile whirling and twirling sax chorus that's earworthy, while Johnny Mince's clear, well-phrased clarinet stars in "Cocktails for Two."

Helen Forrest's vocal and that slurred phrasing of the reed choir stand out in Artie Shows "It Took a Million Years," while the section blending and a mellow tenor high light, "Say It With a Kiss." "Jungle Drums" has parchment-pounding, some soulful and caressing tenor, and Arturo's in a blue-mood clarinet. And just cock your ears to Artie's entire chorus and the smoothing-swinging sax section in "It Had To Be You." Now a word to Victor's Eli Oberstein, a Show coupling of "Roseroom" and "Sunrise" is what we all crave; won't you agree, Good Eli?

The cognoscenti and purists will revel in Mezzrow's "Comin' on With the Come On" (supervised by the world's ranking jazz critic, Hugues Panassie)—a fascinating interpretation of "New Orleans Jazz," noteworthy for the genuine feeling and instrumental virtuosity of the all-star performers and the authentic New Orleans atmosphere—truly a superlative genre waxing.

What Has Happened To Justice?

By PETER LEVINS.

Fifty-one years ago last Wednesday, at 2 in the morning, a flurry of shots startled a Chicago household and precipitated a mystery which the older generations of Chicago still like to talk about—and even chuckle over.

The household was that of Amos J. Snell, an acquisitive mustachioed landowner of 65, who invariably slept with a gun under his pillow, and who considered himself death on burglars.

It was Mr. Snell himself who fired some of the shots that morning. Not, however, all of them.

Had this man lived in the present age he would have been known as Multimillionaire Snell, the mystery man. He had at least $4,000,000, perhaps much more, and he made most of it without seeming effort in the stone, mansard-roofed residence in which he nightly lay for thieves.

Snell had come to Illinois in his younger days from New England and had made his first $500,000 as a timber buyer for railroads. In the Sixties he had erected the imposing mansion at the corner of Washington boulevard and Ada street. Two blocks away was Ashland boulevard, where Chicago's aristocracy lived in those days. Among his neighbors was Mayor Carter Harrison, the elder.

A shrewd businessman and a hard one, Snell gradually acquired a fortune in houses and land. In his later years he simply sat at home while the money rolled in. There he collected the rents for his 450 houses. There came impoverished owners of valuable corner lots to sell at the millionaire's own price. He was a canny dealer in mortgages and the owner of a lucrative toll road.

He ran his home as he ran his business, sternly. His puritanical views sent one of his three daughters off to marry a coachman when she was 16—a coachman to whom she was eventually married three times in the course of seven trips to the altar.

Chicago was having a cold wave that February of 1888. On the 7th the thermometers read 13 below zero, and there was snow on the ground.

That day the nation was watching Grover Cleveland as he traveled to Florida for a presidential holiday. The Union League Club was booming Chauncey Depew for President, and he was on his way to give the club his blessing.

Julia Marlowe and Mrs. Siddons were playing in town, and Lily Langtry was stealing the publicity by complaining of the cold in her parlor car and moving into the Grand Pacific hotel.

General Phil Sheridan was refusing to explain why he had claimed Ohio as his birthplace when he was really a New Yorker; and he was denouncing a Milwaukee cousin who asserted he was born in Ireland.

Chicago was so overrun with burglars that a merchant prince was installing a burglar alarm with the explanation that he was getting tired of waking up every night to find a burglar beside his bed.

Mr. Snell's patient wife, Henrietta, that day went to Milwaukee to visit an ailing daughter, leaving the master of the house with two women servants and two grandchildren. That afternoon Snell dropped into a neighborhood saloon—not to drink but to talk to his friend, the proprietor. While there he invited the proprietor's wife to take his sleigh and go for a spin.

SERVANTS AWAKENED BY SOUND OF SHOTS

The two men discussed the alarming prevalence of burglars in town. Snell, a big, powerful man, recalled with pride his many encounters, and he particularly recalled the burglars he had captured in his home some 20 years before. He hoped they were still doing time, he added, because they had threatened to kill him when they got out.

That night he went to bed early, and because he had a cold he tried an old remedy, sleeping with one of the socks he had been wearing tied about his neck. (The body warmth it had acquired on his foot was presumed to have curative powers.)

At 2 a. m. the cook, Rose Berkstatler and the maid, Ida Hartnett, were awakened in their third floor rooms by shots. They heard Snell, on the second floor, shout loudly "Get out of here!" Then there were more shots.

The house not being equipped with a telephone, the servants tried to raise the windows to call for help. But the windows were frozen shut. Terrified, they barricaded themselves and the two children on the third floor and awaited developments.

But they heard nothing more.

Four and a half hours now passed an interval during which the police might possibly have accomplished something. At 6:30 the coachman, Henry Winkelhoff, came from his quarters in the barn to stir up the fires. When he found the house open he hastened upstairs.

On the way he stumbled over Snell's body in the dark hallway. The master had been shot in the head and in the heart.

Winkelhoff ran a block to the nearest telephone, only to find that the Lake Street police station, which handled this particular district, had no telephone. He therefore phoned the Des Plaines Street station, reporting the murder to a detective who was to have a curious connection with the case—John C. Dammann.

The coachman then dashed to the Lake Street station and made another report.

Soon the Snell residence was swarming with police and city officials. Mayor John A. Roche himself came to take charge. Superintendent of Police Fred Ebersold rushed to the scene with Inspector John Bonfield and Chief H. H. Henshaw, of the detective bureau. Two hundred policemen were assigned.

The victim, it developed, had been shot with two guns, a .38 and a .44.

It developed, also, that a burglar or burglars had attempted to break into the house next door. In the snow were prints of a pair of size .. and size 9 1-2 shoes leading from the house next door to the Snell home.

The Snell house had been entered via the kitchen door. A circle of holes had been bored in the door, and the center had been knocked out, permitting the intruder to reach through and slide back the bolt.

The burglars, it was discovered, had gone to great trouble to pry open the safe in the cellar, not knowing that they could have opened it merely by turning the knob. Snell had never kept it locked for the simple reason that he didn't keep anything of value in it. The only articles missing were a check for $2,500, another for $2,567 and $1,600 in county warrants.

POLICE, CONFIDENT, GIVE OUT THEORY

That Snell had interrupted the intruders was indicated by the fact that, in the first floor dining room a quantity of silverware had been piled up, ready for removal.

The police announced that the guilty would be in jail within a short time and gave out this theory:

There were two burglars. (This seemed a good guess because of the varying caliber of the bullets and from the footprints in the snow.) They came to the Snell home after failing to get into the neighbor's, and then opened the safe in the belief that it would be bursting with cash.

Disillusioned, they proceeded up to the first floor, collected the silverware, then went up to the second floor. There they were heard by the master of the house, who came forth in his nightshirt and engaged them in a gun battle.

Policeman Varney, who had the local beat, reported that there had been a ball the previous night in Martine's Hall, a fashion spot of those days across the street from the Snell home. The street had been lined with carriages all night.

He heard no shots, he said, but just after 2 o'clock a young man in a silk hat approached him and asked him if he had heard shots in Martine's Hall.

From later developments the police reasoned that this had been the murderer. The theory was that, fearing the officer had heard the shooting, he hoped to divert him from going to the Snell home.

The best clue the detectives found at the scene was the auger with which the holes had been bored in the kitchen door, as well as the box in which it had been carried. They began showing this tool to hardware merchants in the hope of tracing its purchaser.

Meanwhile Leonard Wells Volk, a sculptor, had made a death mask of the victim and his long drooping moustache, and the body was buried in a red cedar casket which was a duplicate of the one in which General John A. Logan had been interred.

The police prediction, that the slayer would be in jail very shortly, proved slightly exaggerated.

As the days passed, with no arrest or sign of an arrest, the citizens raised such a clamor that Mayor Roche fired Superintendent Ebersold—an imposing figure always pictured wearing long gauntlet gloves—and appointed George Hubbard to command the police.

Hubbard's first accomplishment was to track down the burglars Snell had sent to prison 21 years before. They had been released, all right, but they had nothing to do with the present crime.

Then the hardware merchant who had sold the auger was located. He, Cornelius Connell, recalled that he had sold the tool four days before the Snell murder.

He even knew the name of the purchaser—Willie Tascott.

Connell recalled that Tascott, a bit on the effeminate side, had seemed disappointed at not being recognized. "Don't you remember me, Mr. Connell?" he asked. "I'm Will Tascott." The merchant, who knew Tascott's father, then recalled the young man."

OFFICERS PICK UP SUSPECT'S TRAIL

The police now dashed to the home of the suspect's father, J. B. Tascott, a prosperous paint manufacturer known as Colonel Tascott. Mr. Tascott, a neighbor and friend of the murdered man, said his son had not been home recently.

The next day a Mrs. Ella Wicks, keeper of a lodging house two blocks from the Snell home, informed the police she had some important evidence. Officers donned civilian overcoats over their uniforms, so that no one would recognize them as cops, and hastened to the Wicks menage.

She showed them charred remnants of the two checks taken from the Snell safe. She had found them in the fireplace, she said, after a lodger she knew as Scott had left. The officers entered the room Scott had occupied and found in a closet articles of silverware which were subsequently identified by victims of other burglaries.

It was quickly established that Scott was pink-faced Willie Tascott. He had returned to his room a short time after the murder and then departed.

"I always mistrusted him," said Mrs. Wicks "because he came in so late nights. His explanation to me was that he was a reporter on a morning newspaper."

Then Jannie Franks appeared. Miss Franks, who would be known in our day as a party girl, told the police she had entertained Tascott the night before the murder. He had told her that he was a crook and showed her his two guns, one pearl-handled and the other one with a rubber handle.

Was one a .38 and the other a .44, the police asked eagerly. Yes, she was pretty sure one was a .38 and the other a .44.

Moreover, she recalled that, the morning after the crime, Willie had run in to say he had to leave town immediately.

The police now revised their theory. The new theory was as follows:

Tascott had entered the house alone, and had killed Snell with bullets from both his guns. Since he obviously could have entered the neighbor's home as easily as Snell's with that auger of his, then another burglar must have tried to break into both homes before him, leaving the extra tracks. (Chicago must have been simply crawling with burglars that winter!)

Now a jeweler, who had read about the case, reported that a man answering Willie's description had brought him a gold-headed cane after the murder and had him engrave on it the monogram, "W. B. T." The suspect's middle initial was "B."

The cane was identified as Snell's.

Alfred Clark, another jeweler whom Tascott had visited, contributed quite a nice little tidbit to the mystery.

The suspect, he said, had brought him a pearl and garnet ring from which a pearl was missing. He wished to replace the pearl.

Like many young bloods of the time, Willie was wearing a small russet bag slung from a strap that went over his shoulder. He opened it—and the jeweler saw what appeared to be burglar tools.

"Are you a piano tuner?" Clark inquired tactfully.

"Hell, no!" Tascott answered in high disdain. "I'm a burglar."

Orders for the arrest of this arrogant young fellow were telegraphed throughout the land. The description:

"Twenty-two years old. Five feet 8 or 9 inches. One hundred forty pounds. Slim, full round face, heavy eyebrows, fair complexion, dark brown hair cut short, large dark eyes, small thin mustache. Wore brown and gray striped pants, stripe one-half inch wide, dark coat, vest and overcoat, and black silk hat. Square top ring set with garnets and pearls. May carry gold-headed cane with WBT monogram. Wears russet-covered oval valise, 18 inches long, hung by strap over shoulder."

Willie's history, as gathered by the police, included the following details:

He had been a happy, smiling young man who excelled at croquet and sang in the moonlight to the accompaniment of his mandolin.

He had left home because of disagreements with his stepmother.

For a time he had been a news butcher on trains. Tiring of this menial sort of work, he had stolen some railroad tickets and sold them. For this he had spent a year in jail at Frankfort, Ky.

Released, he had returned to Chicago, working for a time as an elevator boy in the fashionable Palmer House, a hotel then and now famous in the city history. He lived there, too. Much of his time, both during and between working hours, was occupied in trying to strike up romances with young lady guests.

To one of these he had written: "Will you give me the pleasure of your company to the show tonight?" He had signed it, "W. B. Tasquette."

He had then worked for a time in Text for Beginner.

A short, concise exposition on the nature of drama—its history, development, and the essentials of dramatic technique. It is traditional in its outlook and somewhat too glib and facile in its treatment to do the subject full justice; however, these faults are necessarily associated with its small format. Within the limits which the authors have set for themselves they have written a very good text for the beginner or the amateur student. The text bristles with quotations, which are for the most part aptly chosen. A very useful appendage is the "Dictionary of Terms," a rare inclusion in books of this character. —OLE H. LEXAU.

Timely Document.

THE CONSTITUTION RECONSIDERED. Edited by Conyers Read. Columbia University Press, New York. 424 pp. $3.75.

A symposium written by members of the American Historical Association. A timely document, centered on the most important piece of paper now extant in the world, this volume proposes to discuss the background of ideas which influenced the framers of the Constitution, the contents of the document itself, and its influence on subsequent events here and abroad.

As might be expected, the result of the collaboration of some 30 authors is not altogether unanimous in its findings. However, unexpectedly the authors agree fairly well on the nature of the Constitution (a matter of considerable debate elsewhere, as readers will recall) and on its influence, differing mainly in their views upon its historical origins. To determine these in any reliable manner it becomes necessary to reconstitute the entire background of ideas which influenced the world at the end of the 18th century, and to add to the difficulty it is clear that words which nowadays have very definite ideological connections may at that time have had very different meanings. For instance, as Gaetano Salvemini points out, the 18th century concepts of democracy and liberty were such that Mr. Hoover would at that time have been considered a revolutionary, while the majority of New Dealers would have been termed staunch conservatives. Such difficulties of language may have given rise to the widespread confusion that accompanies any extended discussion of the subject. Any clarification of these puzzles may have far-reaching importance, and to this end the work of the authors is a commendable contribution to a field crowded with all too much of pointless verbiage.

Norwegian Composer.

This detailed and complete biography of Edward Grieg reveals the great Norwegian composer as the moving spirit, along with Ibsen, in the rebirth of pure Norwegian culture.

At first strongly under the influence of German music and forms, Grieg soon discarded the teachings of his university at Leipsig, and began composing Norwegian music for his own people. So strong was the national spirit in Grieg that he actually produced works reminiscent of Norwegian folk music before he had actually ever heard the native tunes.

Lovers of Grieg's music will enjoy this book immensely, for it gives a detailed account of how all his best-known compositions came to be written.

David Monrad Johansen, the author, is himself a critic and composer of note in Norway, and he had access to many of Grieg's papers, never available before. The book was translated from the Norwegian by Madge Robertson.

Story for Boys.

Here's an authentic, interesting story for boys, with a hero who may well be the Tom Swift of 1939. He's Johnny Caruthers, airplane pilot, blazing an air trail from Alaska to Russia and encountering all kinds of hair-raising adventures. Arctic fogs and storms, together with salmon and fur thieves provide the menaces that Johnny conquers by fighting fair, as all heroes must do.

It is the kind of story that older boys will like, being timely, exciting and entertaining, and with a background of unfamiliar, fascinating country.

Fast-Moving Romance.

MARRIAGE IS SO FINAL. By Winifred Halsted. H. C. Kinsey Company, New York. 282 pp. $2.

The principal characters in Winifred Halsted's "Marriage Is So Final" are strictly modern individuals, particularly Miranda Wick, the girl whose indecision about marrying one of two suitors provides the theme for this fast-moving romance. One man is a steady character who is headed for a substantial future; the other is a happy-go-lucky whose plans for tomorrow are made when tomorrow dawns.

Just why this modern young woman never thought of the possibility of divorce to rectify her decision if it proved wrong, and wavered in her choice because she thought marriage was so final, the author does not explain; but no matter, it just adds to the story's interest.

The dialogue sequences are brilliant and sophisticated, though refined; the descriptions are interesting and the romantic feature is developed with a finesse that carries the reader from one suspense to another until Miranda finally makes her choice and says "I do."

American Indians.

INDIAN CAVALCADE. By Clark Wissler. Sheridan House, New York. 372 pp. $3.

Clark Wissler needs no introduction in his field. As curator-in-chief of the department of anthropology of the American Museum of Natural History, he has won the topmost rank among authorities on the American Indian.

"Indian Cavalcade" is a compilation of the author's memoirs—memoirs of his whole experience with the American Indian. It has been a rich experience, dating back to the days when the new white civilization was first coming in contact with the Indians of the great west. During the intervening years, he has lived with the Indians, studied their lives and their modes of living, their arts, their philosophies and their habits.

This is a compelling story of those experiences, filled with wit, information and romance. Few, if any, other men could have written the story as Dr. Wissler has done. He has contributed a new milestone to Americana.

Father and Son Story.

CHICO OF THE CROSS UP RANCH. By Dan Muller. Reilley & Lee, Chicago. 249 pp. $3.50.

Chico is the name of a wonder horse, but it takes Jeff Blake and his love for his son, Buck, to complete this story. This is not the kind of a story the title implies for it comes under the heading of a father and son story.

Jeff Blake's wife dies leaving him with a son to rear. Jeff is a cattleman and while out riding one day he finds Chico, a Palomino, whose mother has lost her life in battle with a wolf. Taking the baby horse to the ranch house he promises Buck that if it lives it shall be trained for Buck as his own special horse. Chico and Buck grow up together and many and varied are the experiences which come their way.

The thrills of the west are here in this story, cattle thieves, and gun play, but not too much of each.

Dan Muller, the author and artist, was brought up by Buffalo Bill and for many years was with the Wild West Show. The outstanding thing in this book is the more than a hundred charcoal drawings representing the best of Dan Muller's remarkable talent. These drawings show every fascinating phase of the west and above all horses. Dan Muller never had a drawing lesson in his life. At the age of 12 he picked up a brush and with house paint painted a very creditable picture on a crate top. A picture of a horse of course! At the time of the World's Fair in Chicago he was one of three artists in this country chosen to paint the murals in the Transportation building.

Temperamental Clash.

THE CLAYTON CLAN. By Mary Heathfield. John H. Hopkins, Inc., New York. 344 pp. $2.50.

The story of a family reunited after many years of separation caused by the selfishness of the father. Thomas Clayton, a ruthless and ambitious man, who had become a "success" by resorting to trickery and sharp practice, had allowed his three sons and a daughter to grow up among strangers. Having spent the most of their years apart from each other the brothers and sister had very little in common. The almost irreconciliable clash of temperaments caused by this separation furnishes the theme around which the story is built. Through many complicated situations involving members of "The Clayton Clan," the reader is safely guided to the "happily ever after" ending. H. CURTIS UPSHAW.

Tragic Romance.

KONIGSMARK. By A. E. W. Mason. Doubleday Doran Co., New York. 354 pp. $2.

The attitude of European people toward royalty has undergone a decided change in the past two centuries. It is just a short while ago that public sentiment in Great Britain forced a king to renounce his throne because, forsooth, he desired to marry the woman he loved—one who was not of the royal hierarchy.

Two hundred and fifty years before this unhappy occurrence Great Britain called to the throne a gross German individual who happened to be the grandson of a granddaughter of a one-time English king. Rather far-fetched, and considering the personality, morals and intellectuality of the man who became George I, a blot upon the purple of the "Lord's anointed."

This individual, George Louis Wettin, elector of Hanover, could have as many mistresses as he desired; it was his right to load them with jewels, present them with fine palaces, and elevate them to the rank of countess, lady, or whatnot. He could force society to accept them as equals or superiors in rank, and neglect his wife. But it was a cardinal sin for his wife to have a lover.

Philip Christopher von Konigsmark, soldier of fortune and last son of a noble Swedish family, and Sophia Dorothea, daughter of the Duke of Celle, and at a tender age the wife of George Louis Wettin, elector of Hanover, were real historical persons—as were many of the characters whose good and bad characteristics are used in building Mr. Mason's novelized history of the tragedy that attended the love of Philip and Sophia Dorothea.

The author, who is noted for his historical romances, displays remarkable skill in the lifelike recreation of life in high circles of that period, with its wars of petty duchies, treachery and intrigue, hatreds and relentless persecution of those who could not defend themselves.

All very interesting, particularly when one reflects that George Augustus, son of Sophia Dorothea and George Louis, was George II, of England, and that the family name of the ruling house in Britain was Wettin until it was changed to Windsor during the World War.

Childish Art.

THEY STILL DRAW PICTURES. With Introduction by Aldous Huxley. Published by American Friends Service Committee. 71 pp. $1.00.

Here are 60 pictures drawn by Spanish children, chosen at random from several thousand which were submitted by the boards of education of Valencia and Madrid. The introduction by Aldous Huxley describes the kind of life these children lead, but the choice of subjects for the pictures speaks even more authentically about conditions there.

As might be expected, in a country torn by war, the great majority of the pictures deal with bombings, flights from danger, men and even children lying dead in the streets of the cities. Very few—11, to be exact, are representations of normal life, with scenes of farming, growing flowers, sheep on the hills, ski jumpers and movies.

The book is printed and sold for the benefit of the Spanish children, and returns from its sale will be dispensed by the Quaker association, American Friends Service Committee. If you'd like a copy, and can't find it at your booksellers, write to the committee at 9 East Forty-sixth street, New York.

Old Doctor Steele.

The trouble with the way death came to Deep River was—from Steele's point of view—that the only tangible clue proved to be his own horn-handled pocket-knife driven through a stranger's heart. The other clues were all lost under Florida stars five years before. They had been blown to bits when the "Kestral" exploded at sea, and now were locked in the terrified heart of a girl driven half mad by fear. And yet with the help of that valuable therapeutic mixture known as Scotch-and-soda, the hard-hitting wisecracking playboy who called himself Old Doctor Steele solved not one but four insoluble and appallingly brutal crimes.

If you appreciate characters who really live, if you love witty, sophisticated conversation in luxurious settings, if you could fall as Jim Steele does for "bronze hair curling casque-like at the shoulders and a lovely deep-velvet always slightly breathless voice," and if you delight in a splendidly conceived mystery story told at a racing pace—then this is your book.

Worth While.

Readers of the first four Dodd-Mead $10,000 first novels may know full well before reading a page of this, the fifth, that the same high literary quality which has marked the others is maintained in full measure in "Young Doctor Galahad." And once they have read it, they will realize a still higher standard has been raised for future entries.

There is little of the first novelist in Elizabeth Seifert. Here, she has produced a work worthy of greater and more experienced writers—produced it with a deftness and a sympathetic understanding of life's realities possessed by few.

Had not Tony McNeill himself possessed such attributes, his life and advancement in his chosen profession in Middletown would have been vastly different. And had there not been Marietta, and dreams, there would have been little to buoy him when his spirits flagged.

"Young Doctor Galahad" is the story of Tony and of Marietta, and of the rebirth of sleepy Middletown. It is a story, too, of real people such as you and I know, woven into a beautifully plotted pattern which makes a worthwhile and eminently readable story. JACK TUBBS.

Story of "Long Ago."

Great Horse was a strange, wild pony who lived in the forest thousands of years ago. Tergo, son of Chief Cundra, lived with his father's tribe in a cave and planned for the day when he would be chief and master of his tribe. With Mishta, a small girl who had been stolen from another tribe, Tergo played until the day Cundra let him go with the men to hunt wild horses.

Tergo failed to return with the tribe after the fire monsters struck the great forest, and Mishta ran away to look for him. Many exciting adventures happened to Tergo and Mishta before they met. While Tergo wandered alone in the forest, he captured and rode the shaggy-maned Great Horse, a feat never before in the history of the world accomplished.

The authentic setting of "Great Horse" makes this book valuable, for it fills a definite need (especially in schools) of stories of the Cro-Magnon people. It was while teaching in New Jersey that Miss Moffitt realized the lack of suitable material and wrote the story of "Great Horse." Dan Sweeney did the illustrations which add understanding of those early strange people.

RUTH M. GREEN.

American History.

THE WAYFARER. By Shirley Seifert. M. S. Mill Co., New York. 396 pp. $2.

The chronicle of American history during the last hundred years has been told again, this time in terms of one man's life. The man is John Otis Cotter, son of a New England ship-owning family, and hero of Shirley Seifert's "The Wayfarer."

Well-known to readers of several popular women's magazines, the author has written a vivid historical novel, including names and dates and places and events that will be familiar to every American.

In her delineation of character, she is less skillful. Her men and women are either extremely handsome or extremely ugly. Her villains are thoroughly bad, and honest folks never stray a single moment from the very straight and very narrow path. The whole book is done in strong light and dark colors, with little shading to break the contrasts.

It's readable and interesting, though, and southerners will be intrigued by the Yankee version of many familiar Civil War encounters.

The Chinese Situation.

ONE-FIFTH OF MANKIND. China Fights for Freedom. By Anna Louise Strong. Modern Age Books, New York. 215 pp. 50c (paper).

Anna Louise Strong will be remembered for her widely read "I Change Worlds" and her "China's Millions." She now brings forward another book on China, and its title shows again that she is deeply impressed with the vast numbers of people who live in that great land. Again her chief concern is for the submerged, oppressed masses. And her principal attack is upon the merciless intruder, the invading Japanese army.

A rather striking parallel is drawn between the American Revolution under Washington and China's present war of independence under Chiang Kai-s Shek. Heroic suffering at Valley Forge is recalled by the gallant sacrifices of the Eighth Route Army in the cold northwest of China. The author even intimates that the present war, like the older one, may drag on for many years. She does not believe that Japan can ultimately conquer all of China and hold her in subjection.

America's paradoxical position comes in for severe condemnation. Miss Strong writes: "America speaks more loudly of her sympathy for China than does any other nation; she does more than any other nation to help Japan." As sponsor of treaties designed to protect China's sovereignty, America has obligations that have not been fulfilled, Miss Strong feels. She feels, too, that China is fighting the battle of hu-

Designers You Wouldn't Expect To Meet

By NELL WALTHALL SIMMONS.

"Four hours in a slow over I always give it."

It was not a bakery expert speaking, nor a housewife divulging her formula for fruit cake. It was Alfred W. Jones telling how he goes about his business of designing and making stained glass windows.

Careful baking, which takes place after outlines have been drawn with black and colors painted in, is an important step in the finishing of a beautiful church window. Colors are painted with mineral stains mixed with oils, then into the kiln go the glass sections.

This man is only one of a group of designers who are busy with unusual creative jobs right here in Atlanta. From stained glass windows to flour bag, labels is quite a leap, but another Atlanta artist working with pencil and paint brush designs them. Boxes, packages of all sorts, even fine jewels is being designed in Atlanta by artists whose finished products we see without having time to stop and wonder who thinks them up, and where they get all those ideas.

Had you noticed the modern trend in flour bag labels? They are much more streamlined these days. Although they may end their days ignominiously as dust rags, after brief periods of glory on grocery store shelves, flour bags are on speaking terms with fashion. The ideas for their labels come in the little ripples made by the big waves of what's what in clothes and interior decoration.

When you reach for the fuchsia colored package of stationery, or box of candy, would you readily imagine that as much as a year before they came out on store counters artists who design them were pouring over Paris fashion notices to learn that this winter the violet shades would be good? Persons engaged in commercial design will tell you that is just what happened, though.

If jobs of this sort appeal to you, or if you have ever felt the urge to do commercial design, perhaps you would like to know how some of Atlanta's artists got started in the work they do.

Perhaps, too, you'll be encouraged by what Julio Albert Calonje, jewelry designer, has to say: "Some of these southern artists just don't appreciate how good they really are."

Mr. Calonje was born in New Orleans of a Spanish family. He has been in Atlanta for six years designing jewelry for a wholesale firm. Not so long ago he sat down and designed and made a $10,000 diamond and platinum bracelet for an Atlanta woman.

"She wanted the work done here in her own city," he tells you of his client. "She said she had confidence in southern craftsmen and could see no reason for going elsewhere to have the work done.

If you feel that you would probably grow numb all over when confronted with $10,000 worth of platinum and diamonds and told to make a bracelet out of it, don't think Mr. Calonje suffers from that trouble. Ideas just come flooding! "To me there's nothing in the world like a nice piece of platinum," he said with a big smile and plenty of Spanish accent.

This designer was practically born into his job. He was apprenticed at the age of 12 in his family's jewelry firm in New Orleans. Beginning first with odd jobs, he helped the others, gradually learning how to work with metal and stones.

It was through the apprentice system that Mr. Jones started in the stained glass window business, too. When he was 16 he went to work for the late George Payne, who was a graduate of the Royal Academy of London and owner of a stained glass firm in Orange, N. J., where the Jones', an English family, lived.

Although he later worked with the great Louis Tiffany, stained glass artist who did the much-admired windows on the landing at Rhodes Memorial Hall here, Mr. Jones began his career working for nothing a week. "They would slip me a dollar occasionally," he reminisced. "Later I was paid $2 a week. But I think the apprentice system is desirable, because under it, employers can afford to let beginners take time to learn each phase thoroughly and well.

"I always think if it's for a church it ought to be exactly right," said this artist who knows familiarly the religious signs and symbols of many faiths.

FRENCH HORN AS A MEANS.

It was probably a French horn that brought Mr. Jones to Atlanta. He is 71 now, but once when he was much younger and the stained glass business was light, he toured the United States playing his horn with a band. "It gave me such a fine opportunity to look at church windows in many cities," he explains.

The band had to leave Atlanta minus one member, however, because the French horn player liked this city and settled here to do his stained glass work.

"Fashion influences my work only to this extent," she said. "The trend is now toward a clean-cut look. The important factors in art work for flower bags are principally, good designs, good lettering, and forceful color combinations."

Miss Miller, whose job it is to design for each milling company's brand of flour a label that won't look like anybody else's label, offers this as her advice to any potential commercial design artist: "Pick out the best school you can find and go there for fundamentals. Then serve an apprenticeship, because no matter how much schooling you have you don't meet the problems in school that come up in actual work."

Interior decoration was the first love of Miss Dorothy Lambert, who designs boxes and monograms for an Atlanta stationery firm. She studied art at the University of Alabama and at Pratt Institute in New York, later going to the New York School of Interior Decoration. But she didn't feel exactly at home planning rooms, and after an advertising woman had seen her sample sketches and pointed out her bent for design she settled into her own nitch.

"A packaging designed has first of all to have business sense, knowledge of what will sell," she pointed out. "Then we plan boxes and monograms almost a year ahead. So you see how we have to keep up with advance fashion information. That is because we tie in with trends in dress and home furnishings whenever at all appropriate.

"I spend a lot of time in the library, too, because research has to be done. For instance, we have two boxes now that were made to tie up with the big interest in early American things. All details of the small ketches used on the boxes, such as colonial women seated at spinning wheels, had to be checked for authenticity."

The Russian Ballet is one of the very latest influences on—of all things—candy boxes, according to Mrs. Marcelle H. Lowenstein, who conceives the ideas for boxes used by one Atlanta candy manufacturer.

"The Ballet is very much in vogue now, so you see fashions of all sorts affect your business. My job calls for considerable time keeping informed about the latest in clothes, interior decoration, and even amusements," says Mrs. Lofenstein, who plans her boxes about eight months in advance of the time Atlanta girls accept them from their beaus.

"Women are affected more than I believe they know by dress fashions. For instance, for several years we have regularly put out a purple variety box. This winter the purple, violet and prama shades were especially good, and that box sold better than it ever has before.

"Women buy the box that is in a color they know is fashionable. But men," she confided as a final trade secret, "it's the men who buy the white and light blue boxes."

Street Cars 48 Years Ago—and Now

By BILL MUNDAY.

You will recall perhaps when automobiles first were marketed, how mules and horses and cattle would buck and scramble for safety when they approached.

To be sure the vehicles were something new and strange to the animals. But they were no more dubious over progressive inventive modernization than human beings.

For instance—when electric street cars were placed on streets of Atlanta—back in 1887 when our fair city was a rejuvenated pup, struggling to recover from reconstruction days—our forefathers feared them as the horses and mules and cattle dreaded the new-fangled horseless carriage.

"Yes, sir," declares J. M. Arnold, who in Febbruary, 1891, began work on one of the city's two electrified lines and at 72 is still a regular operator with the now Georgia Power Company, "folks were frightened with electric transportation. Why they even moved off the car lines. Fearful, they were that their houses would be mesmerized. And, of course, they wouldn't carry their watches with them—if they were to ride the cars. They believed that electricity would stop the mechanism in the timepieces.

Mr. Arnold, oldest employe in point of service with the power company, who recently was pronounced by his firm's physician as good for 20 more years, paints a vivid and interesting picture of Atlanta in the early "Gay Nineties." Also the power company.

"I left a Gwinnett county farm near Snellville in 1890," the venerable gentleman explains, "went to Alabama and worked for several months in a furniture store. Word came of street cars—I had never known any save those pulled by horses—which were run by electricity. Fascinated, I decided to come to Atlanta and seek a position with what we called then a 'fad.'

"But, the powers that were—Joel Hurt Sr., was president of the plant then—wouldn't permit me on a car until I had served an apprenticeship of two months in the old Fulton county plant, located at present Boulevard, Tenth street and Virginia avenue.

"My first position was to fire the furnace. You see, we manufactured our electricity with a steam engine—a coal burner—which turned the dynamos.

"Atlanta was a real country town then. No waterworks, no sewerage, no gas. Main center of water supply was a huge artesian well at Five Points on the very spot where the flag pole now stands.

"Our business district in mileage was negligible. On the north it ended at Houston and Pryor streets; on the south at Hunter and Pryor, where the police station was located, facing the old courthouse; on the east at Courtland and Edgewood and on the west at Marietta and Foundry.

"We had only two electrified lines, but four regular cars and only 11 regular operators—conductors and motormen. My run started at the Virginia avenue car barn, out Boulevard to Jackson, thence to Edgewood and Pryor and a loop to Houston, out Highland and back to the starting point.

"The other line was inaugurated at Elizabeth and Edgewood, its route being to Edgewood and Pryor and return. It will be noticed that both lines served only the north and east sides. The west and south sections had only the facilities of horse-drawn cars.

"Atlanta boasted of little or no pavement. Uptown streets had a few wooden blocks—I guess to keep the mules and horses from slipping and breaking a leg.

"Our fare was five cents with no transfers because there was not anything to which to transfer.

"And we had no labor troubles whatsoever. Because agitators—those professionals who disillusion the gullible into rebellion against the hand that feeds them—hadn't been born. Our first cars had no sideway seats—just two length-wise, each accommodating nine people. Our trolley pole was not of steel, as it is today, but wooden and many times and oft I was delayed when that contraption would catch afire.

"Our controller was similar to the one we have in use now, but we had no air brake—merely one worked by hand which operated on a chain.

"We had no windshield—so in cold weather no protection. I recall that on nights of a blizzard I would take my oil cloth coat and soak it with linseed oil, pursuing any idea contemplated to produce warmth. And then after my run the coat would be so frozen that when I took it off it would stand up in the manner of Bob Burns' uncle's unwashed (for a year) Christmas stockings.

"Folks were neighborly, then, though," Mr. Arnold reflects. "On those bleak, bitter wintry nights, people residing on our line and realizing our plight would stop us to serve hot coffee and warm sandwiches.

"Advent of electric cars brought a new spot to the young folks?" Mr. Arnold says. "Buggy rides became passe and sweethearts did their courting on the street cars. On Sundays I had lovelorns spend the day on my bus, making loop after loop. And, obviously in a trance, too.

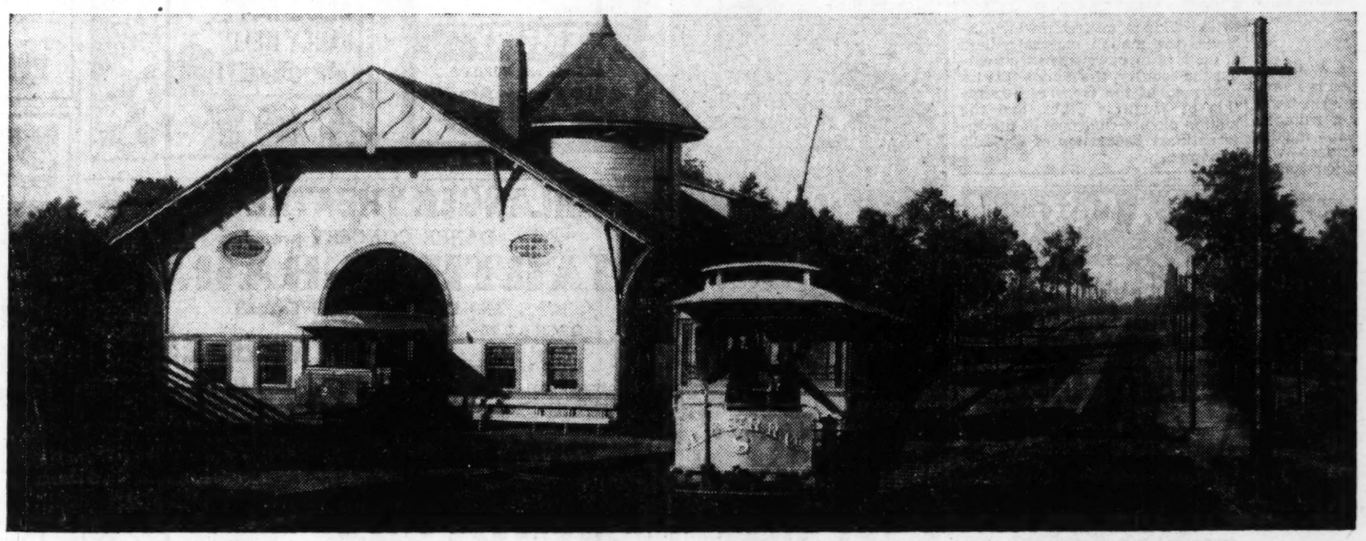

"Special chartered street car parties also were the order of the day. Clubs would contract for a car for no reason at all, except to ride around sightseeing. They served lunches aboard, too."

In 1891 Mr. Arnold worked 12 hours per day at 15 cents per. Today, on the main North Decatur line, he is on duty eight hours daily and receives 61 cents per.

Seven years ago he was eligible for retirement, but politely declined.

"I hope to be in harness until the day of my death, I'd be miserable otherwise," he states, with a smile as bright as that of a 14-year-old lad. "Besides, I'd miss all my friends. Do you realize that each day I transport children to school whose grandmothers and great-grandmothers I hauled—as little girls—to readin', writin' and 'rithmetic long before the Spanish-American War."

Mr. Arnold resides at 718 Edgewood avenue. Married 40 years, he has eight children and eight grandchildren.

live on excellent terms. I am surrounded by work signed by fingers I knew well, and each picture or article recalls an incident that renders it of sentimental value. I have but to glance at each and recall former scenes and, doing so, travel continents.

There is a little of all the universe about me, and I have but to remember, to be carried long leagues. Objects not acclimated do not like the high temperature of our houses. I turned my Whistler chair over to the High Museum of Art for one reason, because there was no cool corner for it in my rooms and the old wood was beginning to wither. My Italian chair and lemonwood frames have spread from furnace heat; the foot of a Gallic statue kicked to the extent that the foot cracked and had to be filled in.

The funny antique Japanese prints in their brittle parchment had to be enveloped in protectoid to hold body and soul together. My maternal heirloom, the whatnot, is trembly from age and must be fastened against the wall to ensure safety for the precious old bits in its arms. The little gilt chair is kept in a reserved corner for fear some individual younger and more lusty than it might attempt to spread himself upon its dimensions.

The "company" is quite mixed as to religion, but apparently none are intolerant, for all is peaceful and sometimes drowsy in their sweetness. Laughing Buddha, with hanging ears and round belly, is on the same wall with other saints. Nomura, the Mongolian monk in scarlet, with leering eyes and loose mouth, carrying his incense brush, might better be of the family of Mephistopheles than of Gautan. Figurines of Woba and Okina with wisps of brooms, without which no Japanese marriage procession is complete, smiles benignly at the bust of Beethoven. A gargoyle keeps his fangs bared at a Jerusalem cross, and the placid infant of Lucca della Robia hangs alongside a Marblehead, Mass., placque. St. George and the Dragon made into a brass plate, now "more holey than righteous," watches over a likeness of the Great Wall of China.

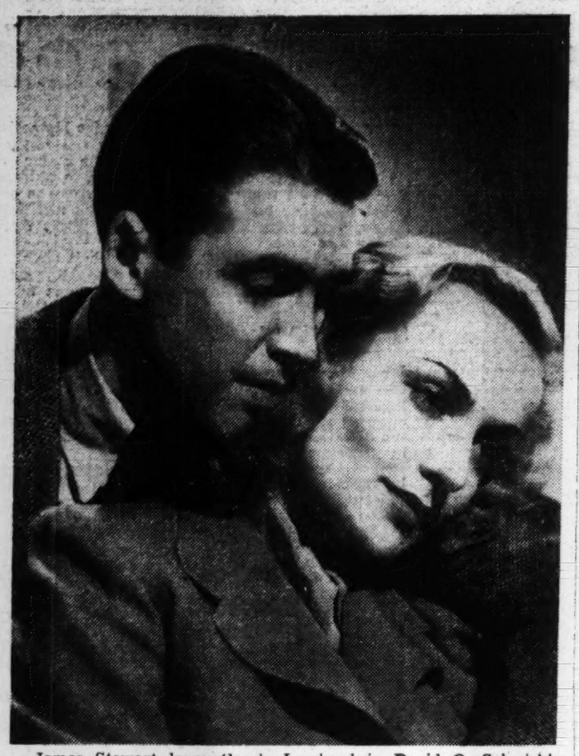

The bronge lizard from Vatican Gardens runs up the wall towards the Blue Mosque of Cairo. Miyajima and the Mosque of Omar are quiet companion pieces. St. Hubert kneeling before the stag that is to show him out of the woods, is surrounded by Mohammedan towers from Sicily. Embroidered runners that a century or two ago trimmed kimonas or mandarin coats of Chinese dignitaries, are next to an Atlanta-made bookshelf. The Taj Mahal with a peacock fan to remind me that the Taj was once the home of the Peacock Throne, reposes under the Temple of Heaven, the latter considered so sacred by Chinese that only the Emperor was allowed to go within its portals to pray. A humble Venetian Madonna is alongside the porcelain pagoda erected by starving Chinese, so that the view of green hills behind might with the pagoda be enhanced in the eyes of an Empress.

NIGHT.

When night in somber robes with velvet tread
Has shriven the deeds of the day,
And the penitent pilgrims of sorrow
Have kneeled near their earth-bed to pray;
When earth's last mass for the daylight
Has winged its way to the skies,
And the beds have been told for the sinners
Whose hearts are heavy with sighs—
'Tis then that the stars in their orbits
Come forth from the places they hide,
And shine like the eyes of a mother
Whose love reaches out as a guide;
And the moon in a passion of pity
For the sad and the weary and poor,
Looks down from the reaches celestial
To light their way to a door.

Romance and Detective Stories Hold Cinema Spotlight Here

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Outstanding new films detoured Atlanta this week.
The movie entertainment offers:

"Lone Wolf Spy Hunt," detective drama with Warren Williams starring, at the Rialto.

Carole Lombard, Stewart Fight And Make Up at Loew's.

Into a world filled with talk of war, politics and comic movies, David Selznick has sent his bid for top honors as a producer of heartbreak films. For his stars, he chose a good dramatic actor and a good comedienne—James Stewart and Carole Lombard.

The story tells of the trials besetting a young married couple, played by the stars. James is a junior member of a New York law firm, drawing only meager salary. His mother (Lucile Watson) comes to stay with them, further complicating matters. But, all is happiness again when a son is born.

A hard-driving boss, Charles Coburn, and a little schemer, Ruth Weston, bring new complications. Then the baby is stricken with pneumonia. Serum is flown from Salt Lake City. New trials bring threat of divorce. Then, as Hollywood usually manages in pictures if not in real life, husband and wife make up, solve problems and live happily ever after.

Jackie Taylor appears as the couple's son—is good, too. Louise Beavers is also in the cast, playing the third cook.

Master Crook Sides With Law In Melodrama at Rialto.

Rabid detective yarn addicts will find to their liking the dish dealt up by the Rialto theater this week, "The Lone Wolf Spy Hunt," a detective melodrama in which suave Warren William plays the role of Louis Joseph Vance's master rogue.

The adventures of the reformed master criminal are centered around Washington this time where a gang of spies, headed by Ralph Morgan, are attempting to steal plans to a super-antiaircraft gun. They try to get Lanyard to perform the job, but he prefers to remain a legitimate businessman and stay at home with his motherless daughter, ably and comically portrayed by the juvenile star, Virginia Weidler.

Comedy dialogue runs throughout the robbery, which is made to appear as a Lone Wolf job, William's escape and his final decision to join the police and turn up the criminals. Ida Lupino appears as the daughter of a senator and she is persistent in her advances to Lanyard. She is guilty of overacting, however.

Dick Powell Rides the Horses, Sings in Paramount Film.

Powell is given another chance to demonstrate the talents as a comedian which he revealed in "Cowboy From Brooklyn," and the supporting cast includes Allen Jenkins, Walter Catlett, Harold Huber and Thurston Hall.

Playing slightly more sedate roles are Ronald Reagan, Minna Gombell and Larry Williams, while the musical burden is shared with Powell by Louis Armstrong, the world's premier hot trumpeter, and Maxine Sullivan—making her debut in motion pictures—who is the reigning sensation among swingy singers.

Among the four new songs written for the production by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer, one is a romantic ballad, while the other three are all highly diverting novelty numbers. In the presentation of one of these numbers, "Mutiny in the Nursery," Powell, Armstrong nad Maxine collaborate.

This new dramatic screen hit brings Bogart to the movie public for the first time as a star, although he has been seen in many great performances, always playing the role of a toughie.

"King of the Underworld" pictures Bogart as leader of a notorious gang and Kay Francis as a surgeon forced to join the mob to render medical aid to wounded gangsters.

Another vaudeville program will be offered in conjunction with the feature, with Jean Bedini, the Broadway juggling star and former featured star of Ziegfeld Follies, as the headline act.

Victoria and Frank, billed as "equilibrists supreme," of the Sells-Floto circus, are also on the program. Nolan and Kenny, who have won many jitterbug championships about the country, give an exhibition of this latest dance craze.

Billy Barry will be heard in popular songs of the day and additional music on the stage program will be offered by Enrico Leide and his band, with Bob Hess at the organ.

'Jesse James,' Color Film, Held Over; Fox Plays 'Tail Spin' Friday.

"Jesse James," continues to run true to form. "Jesse James" is still taking the people's money—but this screen idol Jesse is giving plenty of entertainment in return at the Fox theater so it's now a 50-50 proposition. Everywhere Tyrone Power's portrayal of the ace badman of American history has been shown, the film has broken records. The Fox is holding it for a second week.

Nancy Kelly appears as the outlaws' wife, turning in a good dramatic performance. Others in the film are John Carradine, Slim Summerville and Henry Fonda. The picture, done in color, is entertaining throughout and well-produced. It does, however, make "Jesse James" appear a hero like Robin Hood.

Beginning next Friday, the Fox will offer the romantic story of beautiful women flyers — "Tail Spin." It was produced by 20th-Century Fox as a tribute to the women who fly. This was the picture which was presented in world premiere at the Fox midnight show Saturday a week ago.

The story concerns three girl flyers at the Women's Trans-continental Speed race. Alice Faye as Trixie flies for the money in it; Constance Bennett as Gerry, finds the sky a place to hide from love, and Nancy Kelly, as Lois, flies because it brings her closer to the man she loves.

Spencer Tracy, Gable, Loy Win Movie Poll

Remember the hard-drinking, devil-may-care "Test Pilot," his easy-going mechanic friend and the little soft-spoken farm girl who hid her face in her handkerchief as her pilot flirted with the "Lady in the Sky?"

Remember this trio and you have the one-two-three finish in Boxoffice Magazine's All-American Favorites of 1938, selected in basis of the screen star's popularity with the moviegoers themselves.

Spencer Tracy, the mechanic, was first; Clark Gable, second, and Myrna Loy third.

Despite several recent flops, Shirley Temple held on the fourth ranking place while Mickey Rooney jumped from an honorable mention rating to fifth in the nation.

Songbird Deanna Durbin was sixth; Character Actor Paul Muni, seventh; Gary "Marco Polo" Cooper, eighth; Handsome Tyrone Power, ninth; Claudette (Zaza) Colbert, tenth; Ronald Colman, eleventh, and Jeanette MacDonald, is in the No. 12 position.

The selection was made by the trade publication after considering the stars' popularity at the box office, taking a poll of newspaper motion picture editors, independent exhibitors and the National Screen Council, which each month selects the best picture of the month.

'SWEETHEARTS' WIN JANUARY AWARD

National Critics Pick Outstanding Movie.

The outstanding motion picture released during January was "Sweethearts," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's adaptation of Victor Herbert's operetta, the National Screen Council decided in voting it the Boxoffice Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

Produced by Hunt Stromberg and directed by W. S. Van Dyke, "Sweethearts" is a continuation of that combination which turned out the "Thin Man" series, "Marie Antoinette," "Naughty Marietta" and "Rose Marie." Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are co-starred, with a supporting cast including Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Florence Rice, Mischa Auer, Herman Bing and Reginald Gardiner. The story revolces around the efforts of a stage producer to prevent the stars of his show from siging a film contract.

Selection of the Boxoffice Blue Ribbon Award is made each month to the picture receiving the highest number of votes by members of the National Screen Council, who base their choice on merit and suitability to entire family entertainment. The ballots are polled by Boxoffice, national film trade weekly. The council embraces a nation-wide membership which includes the motion picture editors of the leading newspapers throughout the country, the motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and the motion picture chairmen of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

Maureen Calls Film 'Tarzan And Stork'

The time required to write the fourth of the Weissmuller series and the probable delays in filming, due to the use of many animals, caused Maureen's studio to look around for a new mate for the ape man.

"I insisted on playing Jane again," says Maureen. That was last month. "The baby isn't due until late in April. So they agreed to make all my scenes first.

"I have a warm spot in my heart for these pictures," she explained. "They gave me my first opportunity. And they always make money. If an actress appears in pictures that make money, her future is assured."

Maureen says she feels terribly important these days, not only because of the attention and care she is receiving but because all of the scenes being made for "Tarzan in Exile" are closeups of her.

Long shots in which she is supposed to appear will be done by a double and all the rest of the picture will be filmed after her closeups are taken. Because of the race against time, Maureen has dubbed the picture "Tarzan and the Stork."

MOVIE MIRACLE.

Technicians at Warner Brothers did in a single night what it takes nature three months to accomplish. They changed midwinter to midspring on a farm set for "Dark Victory" by threading 10,000 leaves onto transplanted elm trees, putting foliage on vines and replacing movie snow by grass mats.

Don't let the smiles and the pretty girls fool you. It's the lone wolf and cohorts in the current "Lone Wolf Spy Hunt" being conducted at the Rialto theater, with Warren William in the title role, Virginia Weidler as his daughter and Ida Lupino as the girl.

Tap dancing in drum time. The Roxyettes have perfected a drum and tap number which is described as "sensational" for their offering this week on the Roxy stage.

Thrills in the air. Alice Faye and Constance Bennett are the beautiful women who glorify the "Ladies of the Air" at the Fox theater starting Friday.

Lunt and Fontanne, Martha Graham to Perform Here

'Idiot's Delight,' in Uncut Broadway Version, To Be Given by Lunts.

Atlantans will be treated to an unique trio of entertainment offerings the latter part of next week—February 23-25.

The Lunts come to the Erlanger theater Thursday, February 23, in "Idiot's Delight;" they present "Amphitryon 38" in matinee and night performances February 24, and Martha Graham presents her troupe of classical dancers February 25.

Alfred Lunt and his wife, Lynn Fontanne, are well known in theatrical circles and Atlantans have read much about them and seen the couple in numerous Broadway productions. About Miss Graham's troupe, they know less.

Down through the centuries, the dances of a country have expressed the mood, tempo and heartbeat of its people. Today, however, there are far too few dancers who have been able to interpret the American tempo through the medium of the dance.

An artistic misconception that all true art, particularly that of the dance, can only be taught properly by European instructors has resulted in widespread infusion of foreign tempo and mood into dances that purport to be American.

It is well to note, though, that Miss Graham has successfully broken away from this, even as have many of our painters and musicians. The proportion of classical dancers who have been able to do this is relatively small, when compared to the other arts. Offhand, we can only think of one other troupe of this type, that of Ted Shawn and his male classical dancers.

Miss Graham has not been unrecognized for her work in this revolutionary field, and comes to Atlanta with a remarkable record. The first dancer ever to be awarded the coveted Guggenheim Foundation fellowship, she has not only been active in the classical ballet, but has supervised dancing scenes of many Broadway theatrical successes. Among these are "Lucrece," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Six Miracle Plays."

A tenth-generation American, Miss Graham is well able to interpret the American scene. She is a direct descendant of Miles Standish.

Orchestration for the dancing was arranged by Louis Horst, who has been musically connected with the ballet since 1915. Curtain will rise at 8:45 o'clock Saturday night.

Preceding Miss Graham next week, the Lunts will entertain with "Idiot's Delight," in the uncut New York stage version for one performance at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening. Motion picture of this Pulitzer prize play showed here during the past two weeks.

Atlanta theater devotees, who have seen the Hollywood version of this dramatic social indictment, should not conclude that it would be repetitious to see the play. Or vice versa, for that matter. The two elements of celluloid and stage may not be fairly compared, but while the movie is admittedly good, the play is even better.

The following afternoon and evening the Lunts will be seen in the 38th version of that old Grecian plot of a man, his wife, and a designing god. Appropriately enough, Jean Giraudoux, its French author, has numbered the version and named it after the character of the justly suspicious husband, Amphitryon.

"Amphitryon 38" is this crackling comedy. The slightly suspicious wife is handled by Miss Fontanne, while the amorously inclined god, Jupiter, is played by Mr. Lunt.

Alfred Lunt and the Blondes in a scene from "Idiot's Delight," which he and Lynn Fontanne were largely responsible for winning the Pulitzer award. "Idiot's Delight," with the original Broadway cast, will play Thursday night, February 12, at the Erlanger theater.

Kay Francis defends husband John Eldredge from the raft of the "King of the Underwood," Humphrey Bogart. It's the shoot 'em up gangster film at the Capitol theater.

Rose Bampton, lovely young soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear in recital at the Woman's Club auditorium Tuesday night, February 21.

Charlie Chaplin Will Speak in New Movie

That funny little man with the black moustache and the 180-degree angle feet—the one and only Charlie Chaplin—is going to speak on the screen.

The challenge of the "talkies" has finally broken the resistance of the filmland's only persistent non-conformist.

Charlie will play a dual role in his self-directed and produced, "The Dictators," which is scheduled for the cameras by March 15 and for distribution next fall.

Last week Charlie completed work on his script. This week work on building the most ambitious background Chaplin has ever employed will begin.

Charlie said: "The story is, naturally, concerned with dictators, but its primary purpose is to make people laugh. The present political situation, as it applies to this type of ruler, makes an exceptional vehicle for comedy. People with an overabundance of dignity and an oversupply of power have always in the end been targets for laughter."

"'The Dictators' will be released throughout the world wherever people are still permitted to have a sense of humor," Chaplin declared.

Jesse James run Robin Hood a close race for honors in the game of righting wrongs in the Fox theater feature which has been held over this week. Tyrone Power is the outlaw and Nancy Kelly is his wife.

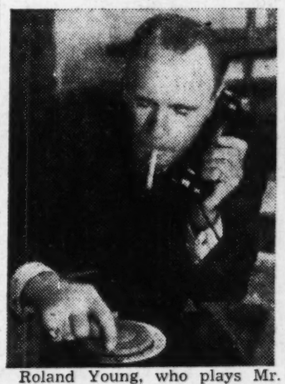

Connie Bennett Proves Herself Comedienne

Constance Bennett, the glamorous blonde who proved herself a first-rate comedienne in last year's "Topper" and "Merrily We Live," returns to the screen in another mad and merry portrayal in Hal Roach's latest comedy production, "Topper Takes a Trip," now at the Rhodes theater.

Roland Young, who scored so brilliantly in "Topper" last year and in "The Young in Heart" this year, portrays Cosmo Topper, the banker who manages to slide into marital and fiscal difficulties when Miss Bennett "philanthropically" takes a hand in his affairs.

Billie Burke, one of the screen's most popular comediennes who achieved wide acclaim last year as Mr. Topper's Victorian and shockable wife, is again gullible Mrs. Topper who gets into a whole series of strange scrapes when she is followed to the Riviera by Mr. Topper. Alan Mowbray is cast as valet to Mr. Young.

Mr. Topper, Please!

Bette Davis and Spencer Tracy Probable Award Winners--Graham

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb, 11.—On the night of February 23, in the ballroom of the Los Angeles Biltmore hotel, the names of the actor and actress to receive thae coveted Academy Award of the year will be announced.

It is not my purpose here to deal with the method of award-voting (of which I do not particularly approve), but with the benefits or lack of them—and the present-day status of those who have already bagged the little gold-plated "Oscars."

The awards were first established in 1928. Janet Gaynor was chosen as the best actress of that year for her performance in "Seventh Heaven." Emil Jannings, the best actor, for "The Way of All Flesh." For Miss Gaynor, the award has meant 11 years of continuous and lucrative picture work. Janet is now free-lancing, makes one, or, at the most, two pictures a year, for each of which she receives between $100,000 to $150,000. Emil Jannings has not been as lucky. The great actor's last Hollywood picture was "Betrayal," in 1929. Since then he has made a few unimportant German movies.

Mary Pickford "Bad."

I never understood why the award was given to Mary Pickford in 1929 for "Coquette." I thought the picture bad and Mary miscast. Mary's co-winner of 1929 was Warner Baxter for "In Old Arizona," the first western in sound. Warner is looking a little middle-aged these days, but is still making his $7,500 a week, and there is still a place for him in pictures. Mary retired from films in 1932, a multi-millionairess.

Norma Shearer was chosen Academy queen in 1930 for her excellent portrayal in "The Divorcee." Two years without picture work, plus two heavy costume films, pulled her off her first lady pedestal, but her recent performance in "Idiot's Delight" shows enough of the old Norma to indicate several more years for her before the cameras. Norma's current salary is $150,000 a picture, and she is said to receive a profit percentage.

George Arliss was the Academy's male choice for 1930. George is now in Hollywood after a long absence in England, but the offers to make films are conspicuous by their absence. Arliss has a tidy little fortune, he is getting on in years, had a great picture time while the going was good. And you don't hear him complaining.

Marie Dressler Popular.

One of the best-loved picture figures of all time received the "Oscar" accolade for 1931—Marie Dressler. Who can forget her Min in: "Min and Bill?" Until her death in 1934, at the age of 62, the award was followed by more work than Marie's health could stand. Lionel Barrymore stood up with Marie to receive his "Oscar" —for "A Free Soul." Lionel suffers currently from a crippling arthritis that limits his roles, but the demand for his film services is as great today as when he won the award.

Both actor and actress who won the Academy Award in 1932 now prefer the stage to screen. Helen Hayes (her Oscar was for "The Sin of Madelon Claudet") was unhappy in Hollywood. And I will be surprised if she ever makes another picture. Fredric March—his "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hide" gave him the award—is now starring on Broadway in "The American Way" —in which he invested $50,000 of his considerable fortune. March is in the $150,000-$200,000 per picture bracket—when and if he returns to Hollywood.

The acting winners of 1933 are also absent today from the film city—Katherine Hepburn ("Morning Glory"), Charles Laughton ("The Private Life of Henry VIII"). Miss Hepburn's picture career started with brilliant fireworks in 1932 with "The Bill of Divorcement" and ended in a damp squib in 1938. I still think she is a great actress—if she will shed some affectations—and get the right pictures. Laughton is now head of his own British company, and I doubt whether Hollywood sees him again for a long time—if ever.

Gable in 1934.

The year 1934 was a complete landslide for "It Happened One Night" and the people who made it—Oscars for Stars Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable, and Director-Producer Frank Capra. All three are still at the head of the class as regards ability and salary.

Bette Davis "Arrived" via an Oscar in 1935 (Bette really won the award for her 1934 performance in "Of Human Bondage"), She will probably win it again for her 1938 excellence in "Jezebel." Victor McLaglen's career took a new deep breath of life with his memorable showing in "The Informer."

Luise Rainer bagged the feminine Academy Award for 1936 and 1937—"The Great Ziegfeld," and "The Good Earth"—the only star to win two Oscars. But 1938 was as bad for Luise as the previous two were good. She is now in the middle of a six months' vacation from picture-making. Paul Muni, who has never given a bad performance in his life, shared the award honors with Luise in 1936 for "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

Spencer Tracy's 1937 Oscar—for "Captains Courageous" (which I think the best picture since "Birth of a Nation")—is in line for a little 1938 brother—for his Father Flanagan in "Boys' Town" —unless, of course, Clark Gable gets it for "Test Pilot," or James Cagney for "Angels With Dirty Faces," or Robert Donat for "The Citadel," or—but I think I had better leave this open until the Academy decides.

American-Born Trained Opera Star, Rose Bampton, To Sing Here Feb. 21

Miss Bampton is American born and American trained. She is a stately brunette diva. She readily admits she owes her present position in the musical world to her husband, Wilfred Pelletier, leading conductor for the Metropolitan Opera Company.

It was he who first saw her possibilities as a dramatic soprano when she was still singing in the contralto ranges several seasons ago. Since then she has set new mileage records for prima donnas by trekking back and forth across the continent. This winter she has broken musical precedents by singing alternately in the three musical fields of opera, concert and oratorio.

In Atlanta her program will include: Aria, "Dich, teure Halle," from "Tannhauser," by Wagner; "O, Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me," from "Semele," by Handel; "Tu lo sai," by Torelli, and a group of songs by Brahms and Schumann. The second half of the program will include "Chere Nuit," by Bachelet; "Fantoches," by Debussy; "Ah, Twine No Blossoms," by Gliere; the aria "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio," from "La Forza del Destino," by Verdi. An English group consisting of "Do Not Go, My Love," by Richard Hageman; "Hey Diddle Diddle," from Nursery Rhymes by Herbert Hughes; "Yards and Yards of Sunlight," by Pietro Cimara, and "Sea Moods," by Mildred Lund Tyson, will conclude the program.

PATENT LEATHER ACCESSORIES.

Howard Shoup makes good use of patent leather in an afternoon outfit for Olivia de Havilland that is as young as tomorrow in appearance. Her dress of black and white checked taffeta with full gathered skirt and tight waist is belted in shiny patent. A cunning shallow-crowned sailor, top-tilted over one eyebrow, is also of patent leather. So are her shoes, purse and the narrow borders on black suede gloves.

HUGH WILLIAMS TAKES ROLE IN ENGLISH FILM

Hugh Williams will depart for England to appear in a new play as soon as he completes his role in Samuel Goldwyn's "Wuthering Heights," co-starring Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier. He will proceed to London by plane and express steamer to go into rehearsal of "We at the Crossroads," penned by Keith Winter, author of "Shining Hour."

In "Wuthering Heights," Williams is portraying the role of Hindley, Merle Oberon's brother. The film is under the direction of William Wyler for United Artists release.

'THAT CERTAIN AGE' PLAYS AT CENTER

Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas Starred Today.

Opening today for three days, "That Certain Age," starring Deanna Durbin, Jackie Cooper, Melvyn Douglas and Irene Rich, will play at the Center theater.

The story is of a girl, nearing 16, who meets a war correspondent and fancies herself violently in love with him. Temporarily infatuated with him, she forgets her younger boy-friend and her childish playmates—for a time.

Wednesday, "Sky Giant," with Richard Dix, Joan Fontaine and Chester Morris, is booked.

"Down the Stretch," featuring Mickey Rooney, Patricia Ellis and Dennis Moore, is the Thursday feature. The story concerns a boy who is unable to get a job with any stable because his father, a famous jockey, had thrown a race, but is finally taken under the wing of a woman owner of a famous Kentucky racing stable.

MOVIE REVIEW

While the Roxyettes offer two sensational new numbers in their "Hot Tamale" and "Drum" routines, Lucas is quite capable of stopping the show on his own account.

The girls vie with themselves in the new routine where they all play trapdrums. The dance is quite as unusual as their skating, Scotch and more recent sphere numbers. But Lucas, with his unusual arrangements, song and renditions of intricate airs on steel and gut-strings, gives them stern competition.

Beatrice Howell gives some remarkable imitations of screen personalities, while the Paige brothers commit mild mayhem most amusingly. The Rutos have a dog act.

On the screen the Jones family cavort through oceans of "Hot Water" to complete the bill.

The Planets---Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

FEBRUARY 12—SUNDAY: If you are able to pursue a tranquil course, previous to 9:30 a. m., do so, for there are apt to be tensions and storms of emotion, leading to hasty words and action, and hasty spending. After 9:30 a. m. is a time to put into action, well thought out plans and dealings with people who are well organized.

FEBRUARY 13—MONDAY. It will be better to stick to the old tried and true, both with people and in works, previous to 11:04 a. m. People may be petulant or nagging, or a lack of vitality may prevent them from acting in a straightforward way. This is not an auspicious time to deal with liquids and chemicals. After 11:04 a. m. will be an excellent time to promote ideas, friendships with important people, and to get the support of friends or family in your plans.

FEBRUARY 14—TUESDAY: Purchases made for adorning the home or the person are apt to have unusual charm and beauty, during the entire day. Social functions and parties are likely to be beautiful and charming. This is an auspicious day to deal in works relating to the beautiful, and a good time to make for happiness.

FEBRUARY 15 — WEDNESDAY: Business, finances, and health will need close watching previous to 2:30 p. m. Affairs are not likely to smoulder, but break up in a big explosion and in a hurry. People will get up too much steam and let it loose. After 2:30 p. m. is a happier period, when important contacts and conferences should be made. This is a favorable time to deal in works catering to art, beauty, women, liquids, chemicals, oils and for finances.

FEBRUARY 16—THURSDAY: The better portion of the day is previous to 8:56 a. m., at which time you should plan to do your most important work. After 8:56 a. m. agreements, contacts, changes and correspondence, will need intensive study before action, though it will be better to defer action if possible.

FEBRUARY 17—FRIDAY: Previous to 5:16 p. m., matters of work and business can be pressed favorably. Your ability to see and think clearly, can blend with an energy to push affairs in practically every direction. After 5:16 p. m., hot-headed action will need a lot of restraint. Taking chances, whether in a small or big way, can smash to ruins. Excesses of any kind should not be loosed.

FEBRUARY 18—SATURDAY: Affairs are apt to be very "peppy," previous to 7:43 p. m., with much conversation, news, and communications abroad. Work on sound affairs and dealings with conservative people should make rapid progress. After 7:43 p. m., people may be somewhat disgruntled, so guard against flare-ups and dissensions.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice Denton Pierson will be glad to send it to you. State your birth month and date (year unnecessary). Write your name and address plainly. Accompany this with 10 cents in stamps or currency to cover clerical expenses, together with self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address: Bernice Denton Pierson, care Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Chart will be sent promptly.

What Has Happened To Justice?

The winter of the murder he had spent a month at the Oak Park home of his elder brother, Frank. According to the brother, his chief interests during his sojourn seemed to be the construction of snow men and toboggans. Frank tried to establish an alibi for Willie, saying he had returned the afternoon before the murder and stayed there all night.

An Oak Park girl brought the police her autograph book in which Willie had written.

"What's the use of always fretting
"At the trouble we shall find
Ever strewn along our pathway?
"Struggle on and never mind."

A Chicago newspaper, checking on the fact that the suspect had once worked as a train butcher, discovered that his employer had been Irwin Murrell, general superintendent of the Railways News Service at St. Paul, Minn. A reporter hurried to St. Paul to interview Murrell.

"Do you know Willie Tascott?" the reporter asked.

"Know him," echoed Murrell. "Why he was in here to see me last Thursday!" (In other words, just a week after the murder.)

Tascott had come in, he said, and asked if his old boss remembered him. Murrell did not until Tascott mentioned his name. At that time Murrell knew nothing of the murder and did not ask Tascott where he was going.

A search of St. Paul pawnshops unearthed the gold-headed cane and leather bag. The police reasoned that Willie had obtained little of value in the robbery and was hard up for cash.

It was also discovered that the suspect had purchased a second-hand black suit.

Reports now began to come in that Tascott was in custody in various places. These reports were to continue until they had him under arrest all other the world, including Australia.

Curiously enough, the only member of the Chicago police force who knew Tascott was Dammann, the detective who answered the coachman's telephone call the morning of the crime. He had once worked for the young man's father.

Detective Dammann was to travel untold thousands of miles looking at suspects arrested, erroneously, in the belief that the killer had been found. At the height of the search, nervous young men resembling Willie in the remotest degree were not safe in the United States. They were likely to be arrested just for looking nervous.

Willie Tascott became the nation's No. 1 Will-o'-the-Wisp.

Of course the Tascott family had been watched from the time the son was first suspected. On the day the murder was discovered his stepmother left for New York and his father left the family home to stay at the Fault hotel. For this the family had an explanation:

Mrs. Tascott's daughter, who was traveling in Europe, was returning to be married in New York. Mrs. Tascott had decided to go there for the ceremony, and Tascott thought he could live more comfortably in her absence in a hotel. It was a mere coincidence, they said, that both left their home that day.

STORIES TOLR OF HER TAKING HIM ABROAD

Another striking coincidence was recalled recently by John Kelley, retired police reporter of the Chicago Tribune, who supplied much of the material for this review. Mr. Kelley, who retired after 40 years of reporting major Chicago crime stories, said:

"About the time the murder was committed there was a telephone call to Lou Housemann, of the Inter-Ocean, a morning newspaper. Housemann, who as sitting in a poker game at the central police station, thought it was his office calling, and, not wishing to be disturbed, told the reporter who answered the phone to say that he wasn't there."

But this did not end the matter, for the man who had called said, "Tell him the millionaire who was shot half an hour ago is dead."

And with that the receiver clicked.

"The other reporters thought they had been scooped," Kelley continued. "They began calling all Chicago stations, inquiring about the millionaire murder. This was several hours before the police heard of it.

"It developed that the man who called was Fred Giles, and that he was celebrating his night off with a hoax. The police grabbed him and asked how did he know that a millionaire had been killed? He had to do a lot of explaining before he convinced them that it was all a coincidence."

It was generally accepted that the Snell family had offered a $50,000 reward for the capture of the killer. At various times smaller rewards were offered by the family and by the police, but so far as the amateur sleuths were concerned the figure was always $50,000.

The case attracted amateurs from all over the land. They spent considerable time and money in their vain efforts to track down the suspected killer. In time vaudeville singers lampooned these would-be sleuths in ballads about the murder and about the croquet-playing of Tascott.

But Willie just couldn't be found. Until he left St. Paul he seemingly made no effort to cover up his tracks, but at that point he vanished completely.

While the search was on a wax figure of the fugitive—if we may call him that—shared honors at Chicago's old Eden Musee with waxen models of Abraham Lincoln, General Grant and Napoleon Bonaparte. The wax Willie was a smiling, gentle-looking youth who no more resembled a murderer than does Shirley Temple.

A BODY FOUND, BUT NOT WILLIE

Considerable mystery seemed attached to one incident in connection with the investigation:

During the first year after the murder, a man who had been shot to death was found in the lake at Milwaukee. His description answered that of Tascott.

Chicago officers were dispatched to Milwaukee to view the body, but were intercepted by telegraph on the way and mysteriously ordered back to Chicago. Officials explained that they had learned that the man in Milwaukee could not have been Tascott. Nevertheless there was much speculation over the sudden change in plans.

Inspector Thomas F. Byrnes, New York's famous thief-catcher, became involved in the case when he told New York newspapermen that Tascott wasn't the criminal because he was not the killer type.

The Chicago police protested—and Byrnes apologized in a message which charged that the quotation ascribed to him was a "tissue of lies."

The Snell family, dissatisfied with the efforts of the Chicago police, called in William A. Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, whose father Allen, had been head of the United States secret service during the Civil War and was a close confidant of President Lincoln.

The Chicago papers reported with some awe that the great sleuth charged eight dollars a day for every man he had working on the investigation.

But even Mr. Pinkerton could make no headway.

Ten years after the crime, John A. Dier, one of the policemen on the case, made this statement:

"Willie Tascott is alive. He has been seen inside two years by a Chicago man. He had a mustache when he disappeared, and he was slight. Now he has a full beard and he is stout. He never fled from Chicago at the time of the murder, but remained here and left on a lake boat when the excitement died down."

Even today a new generation of Chicago policemen still gets messages from persons who believe they have seen the suspect, who would now have reached the ripe age of 73.

Snell's son-in-law, A. J. Stone, spent months and a fortune in efforts to track down the murderer. Yet when his wife claimed a share of the estate as one of the victim's three daughters, the court held that she was a foster-daughter and therefore barred from participating.

In 1901 Snell's son, Albert J., was found living as a recluse in a stable at the family home. He was penniless and half starved. Police sent him to a hospital.

The only survivor of the family is the daughter, Grace, who married the coachman, Frank Nixon Coffin, who was also a dancing master.

DIVORCES, REMARRIES, DIVORCES, REMARRIES, ETC.

She married Coffin in '84 and divorced him in '94. She remarried him in '98 and again divorced him the following year. From 1899 to 1901 her husband was James Walker. She married Coffin for the third time in 1901 but lived with him only a few months. In 1903 she married Perkins Layman, with whom she lived a year. In 1906 she married H. M. Love. Later she divorced him and remarried him.

Asked once why she kept on marrying Coffin, she replied, "He's the handsomest man I've ever known."

Mrs. Coffin-Coffin-Walker-Coffin-Layman-Love-Love came to Chicago from her Los Angeles home a year ago to ask the courts to leave her a large share of the income from the estate, which is in trust. Her own daughter and 25 of the Snell grandchildren and great-grandchildren opposed her plea successfully.

Mrs. Love said that she had become so accustomed to living on a lavish scale that she couldn't get along on less than $1,000 a month. Her daughter told the court her mother used to travel in a private railroad car, and that she would import Chicago orchestras for Newport, R. I., parties.

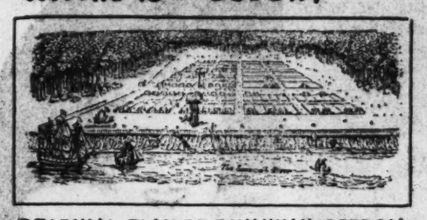

"What's the use of always fretting . . .
Struggle on and never mind."

Justice fretted and struggled, but never got anywhere in the murder of Amos Snell and the search for pretty Willie.

SAFETY PLAY QUIZ.

You are declarer, South playing a notrump contract.

To avoid losing more than one trick, disregarding entries, how would you go about it to play the following situations:

(1) (Dummy) S—A 9 3 / W—E / S—K J 7 5 2 (Declarer)

(2) (Dummy) S—Q 6 5 / W—E / S—A K 9 4 3 2 (Declarer)

(3) (Dummy) S—10 6 4 / W—E / S—A K 8 5 3

(1) The king should be played first; then a small card led to the ace-nine. If the nine loses then the suit has broken 3-2, and the ace will draw adversary's last card.

CAN FORCE QUEEN

If Q 10 x x were held originally by West, the nine will win. If West plays the 10, forcing North's ace, the jack and nine are equals to force out the queen and drop the accompanying small card.

If on the lead toward the ace-nine, West shows out, the ace is played and the nine led to the third round. The queen-ten will then be under the guarded jack and can only win one trick. The same play is proper holding nine cards in the suit.

(2) There are nine cards in the two hands; the J 10 8 7 missing. If they divide 2-2 or 3-1, any style of play will clear the suit without loss of a trick.

ESTABLISHES FINESSE.

If West has all four outstanding cards, one trick must be lost. If East holds all four cards, a lead of the queen on the first round will disclose West's void and South can take two finesses through East's J 10 8.

(3) South leads the ace, East or West drops the jack or queen. The proper lead to the next trick is small toward the ten-six. If the queen-jack were a doubleton orginally, this play will result in the loss of a trick which could have been won, but it also means that remainders were divided 3-2 and that the king will clear the suit on the third round.

ONLY WINS ONE.

If the jack fell from West's hand, and he has more, the ten is played by North. After it loses to East's queen there is an established finesse for the nine to South's king-eight. East dropping the jack on the ace and West still holds Q 9 7, he must play the queen on the next round, establishing the king and ten as master cards, or the ten will win the second trick and but one trick will be lost.

CAN LOSE TWO.

If the ace and king were played out immediately, the queen-nine would remain in one of the adverse hands to win two sure tricks.

'Till tomorrow . . .

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

'Tis now the middle of February, and when the days are warm we have a feeling that spring is here. Then we begin frantically to do garden work. Sometimes we let this springtime enthusiasm run away with us, and we do things which had better be left undone. Especially under this heading would I list pruning the spring flowering shrubs. Pruning is a job for this time of the year, but do not cut any shrub which will bloom before May. If you do you will cut off all of your spring blossoms. Leave this pruning until May, or even June. Do not prune weigelia, spirea, deutzia, cydonia, goldenbell, or forsythia, exorchoda, lilacs. These dormant bloom buds are even now awaiting suitable weather to burst forth into bloom. So wait.

But you can prune your evergreens. Some of them have gotten badly out of shape, and this is an excellent time to get them off to a good start. I always feel that when they have gotten so ratty looking that even if a severe pruning kills them, they are better off. However, they will stand a lot of cutting in February. First, cut out all dead wood, then shape the plant as the need requires. So much enters into the correct pruning of a shrub that I always feel helpless when trying to give this remote control directions. I really should not try, but I am always so glad to help any of you to improve your gardening technique.

Remember that tender shrubs (foliage) are burned by dormany oil sprays. But these sprays are necessary to combat pests. Do not put off any longer the spraying of your euonymus, lilacs, gardenia, flowering almond, crabs, quinces, dogwoods, cherries, peaches, haws and pyracanthas. I probably have overlooked some—I usually look out of my window as I write, and tell you of the things which I can easily see. But if you do the above you will be able to keep busy until I am back next week with some more late winter work outlined.

FEBRUARY GARDENING

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

If you have a basement window with southern exposure, it is possible to build a practical hot-bed which is more easily watched, aired, and watered than the standard type.

In front of the window make a shallow excavation, about a foot deep. The size must be figured carefully, so that a frame set in this excavation, can be covered by window or hot-bed sash. As in the case of other hot-beds, a glass substitute may be used on the sash, if desired.

Build a frame to fit in the excavation. The sides must slant sharply from a point above the window, almost to the ground. Fit the sash on this frame, using hinges at the top so the sash may easily be raised for ventilation. Earth may be banked around the frame to keep out the sold; and the sides should be as tight as possible to keep out the wind.

The frame may have to be caulked where it joins the foundation to prevent drafts, otherwise, it is built like the garden type, using a standard or odd-size sash, as you choose.

Heat is supplied to this bed by opening the basement window and allowing the heated basement air to enter the bed. The window is left open at night, and may often be closed during the day, when the sun is shining on the bed. Hot-beds of this type have been tried and tested, and although they do not maintain temperatures as high as other kinds, the heat will be more even, and the ventilation much better.

What to sow in a hot-bed? The tender vegetables that need a long season, such as tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, cabbage and cauliflower, a few cucumbers or summer squash in pots, sunk into the earth so they may be transplanted readily, all may be started here.

Most of the annual flowers will benefit from an early start here, if you do not plan to put them in the cold frame, otherwise use the hot-bed only for the tender or slow ones.

The main things to watch are temperature and drafts. Ventilation is necessary on warm days, and for very short periods on cooler days. Sow seed thinly and water bed moderately when planting; thin out when needed.

SEED BOX IN THE WINDOW GETS THE JUMP ON SPRING

Thousands of seedling vegetable and flower plants are grown successfully each spring in small boxes of soil, placed in south or east windows. They are a reliable aid to good gardening if properly handled.

The preparation of the seed box is a simple task, but one that needs care to be reasonably certain of bringing the seedlings to planting size.

In a tightly built box it is advisable to bore holes in the bottom to assist quick drainage. By covering the holes with pieces of broken pottery, the soil is prevented from leaking through. If a box is loosely put together, with cracks between the boards, the drainage holes may be omitted.

For the finer seeds, it is an excellent plan to cut burlap to fit the box and lay it over the coarse drainage. Then place the soil upon it so that the box may be watered by setting it in a pan of water, and there will be no danger of washing the tiny seeds or seedlings. Firm the soil and sow the seeds thinly in rows. This is better than sowing broadcast, as it will be appreciated when it comes to transplanting.

Thin sowing is economy. Quantities of seed are wasted by too thick planting. The tiny plants crowd each other and none of them has a fair chance when they come up thick as fur. This necessitates early transplanting before the seedlings are strong enough to be handled.

Cover the seed boxes with a damp cloth or piece of paper until germination starts, then place a pane of glass over the top. Remove the paper or cloth as soon as the first tiny sprouts break the soil. Wipe off the covering glass when water collects on it from evaporation. This will prevent moisture from dripping.

Keep seed box soil moist but not wet or waterlogged. Good drainage will take care of this, provided water enough to soak the soil is applied when needed, which is likely to be once a day.

Give the seed box all the sunlight possible. If the seedlings do not have sufficient light they will reach for it, growing tall, spindly and weak. Humid air is also desirable for them; a kitchen window facing south is a good place for a seed box, since the kitchen air usually has the most moisture.

When the seedling plants have formed their second pair of leaves they may be transplanted to another box where they will have more room. Instructions for this will be given in a subsequent article.

Best Source of Vitamins Is Home Garden.

All vitamins, to some degree, are most abundant in fresh foods, a fact which enhances the value of the home garden for the family with children especially. The products of the home garden may be served a few minutes after they are picked, and thus consumed with their maximum vitamin content. Tenderness and flavor are also at their best in fresh vegetables.

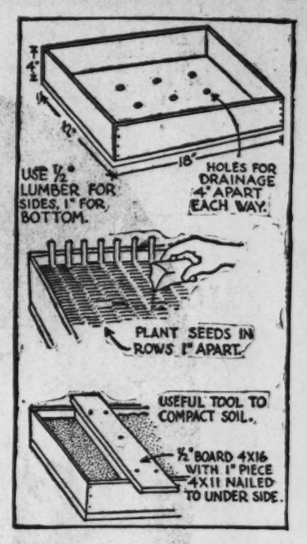

Quantity of food is no longer the index to a properly balanced diet, and children especially, may lack certain essential elements without that fact being realized. Of all vitamins, perhaps the most important for growing children is vitamin C, which is required for normal tooth development and healthy gums.

It is the most elusive of vitamins —what the experts call chemically unstable—and while it is found in most abundance in cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes, peppers, spinach, radishes, cucumbers, onions and citrus fruits, it quickly deteriorates when the vegetable or fruit is harvested. To be sure it is present, you must be sure the food is fresh.

Health and vigor are promoted by vitamin A. The pigments called carotene, found in many vegetables, are the sources of the important food. An adequate supply helps to build up resistance to disease, especially for children. Asparagus, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, celery, chard, yellow corn, kale, lettuce green peppers, spinach, string beans tomatoes yellow turnips, and several other vegetables are rich in this vitamin.

Vitamins B and G were at first thought to be one. Later they were segregated, but found always in combinations in the same foods. Stimulation of appetite and digestion, as well as growth-promotion, is their special province. A lack of them will cause nervous diseases and tendencies, as well as pellagra. They are found in peas, beans, and many of the root crops, and are especially accommodating because they withstand the extreme heat of cooking.

Vitamin D regulates the absorption of the mineral salts, calcium and phosphorus, which are found in vegetables. It is most essential for children whose bones are forming and growing. It is found chiefly in liver oils, sunlight, eggs and milk, and should be accompanied by an adequate supply of mineral salts.

WHAT TO DO IN FEBRUARY.

MULCHING: February is a good month for all kinds of mulching.

The rose bed, perennial garden, and shrubbery border should be protected. The best material for this mulching is a mixture of sheep manure, peat moss and woods earth; one bale of peat moss, 100 pounds of sheep manure and one wheelbarrow of woods earth.

FERTILIZER: It is also time to fertilize the lawn with a light application of some good fertilizer, such as bone meal or sheep manure. These two fertilizers are much to be preferred over the highly concentrated ones at this season of the year. Use raw bone meal for bulbs and perennials.

PRUNING: Take the tall stems out of hybrid perpetual roses as well as the dead wood. Wait until next month to do the final pruning of rose bushes. Remove the dead wood from all shrubbery and evergreens and give the fruit trees a good pruning.

SPRAYING: Now that fruit trees are dormant be sure to give them a good thorough spraying with scalecide, and for peach trees use dry lime sulphur.

WHAT TO PLANT IN FEBRUARY.

VEGETABLES—Any of the hardy vegetables may be planted this month, as soon as the ground is dry enough to work. This will include the following:

ROOTS AND TUBERS: Asparagus roots, horseradish roots, rhubarb roots, artichokes and Irish potatoes.

SEEDS: Turnips, purple-top globe, Swiss chard, beets, cabbages, Brussel sprouts, carrots, English peas, kale, rape, spinach, rutabagas, kohl rabi, lettuce, mustard, onions, parsley, Pe Tsai (Chinese cabbage), radish, salsify and cress.

VEGETABLE PLANTS: Cabbage and Bermuda onion plants may be set out.

COLD-FRAME PLANTING: This may be continuous as in January.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: Apples, figs, peaches, plums, apricots, pears, persimmons, pecans, blackberries, dewberries, raspberries and strawberries.

FLOWERS: Sweet peas may be planted. Use only the Spencer type and plant them in named varieties. All kinds of perennial plants may be transplanted at this time, including pansies, aquilegia, Canterbury bells, hollyhocks, English and shasta daisies, foxgloves, Oriental poppies. It isn't too late to plant larkspur seed and bachelor buttons from seed.

SHRUBBERY: Plant all kinds of evergreens, conifers, flowering shrubs, and fertilize your old shrubbery.

HUMPH! I SWEAR I CAN'T SEE WHAT FUN YOU GET OUT OF GOING HUNTING ON A DAY AS COLD AS THIS--- I DO WISH YOU WOULDN'T TAKE SANDY--- WHY, HE'LL GET RHEUMATISM OR MAYBE PNEUMONIA--

TCH! TCH! THE CHANGEABLENESS OF SOME WOMEN! OH, WELL- COME ON, ANNIE- LET'S GET GOING-

PROBABLY NOT- ANY SMART RABBIT WOULD STAY IN HIS NICE WARM HOME TO DAY- BUT THE WALK WON'T HURT US-

BUT--ER-- WALKIN' OVER ROUGH GROUND THIS WAY--- I MEAN---

WON'T IT BE BAD FOR AN OLD CRIPPLE LIKE ME? NO-- I'M LOADED DOWN SOME WITH MACHINE GUN SLUGS AND SHRAPNEL- I LIMP SOME, BUT I'M WELL ENOUGH OTHERWISE-

IT MUST HAVE BEEN A TERRIBLE WAR, WASN'T IT, TUCK?

SURE- ALL WARS ARE TERRIBLE- ALWAYS HAVE BEEN- BUT PEOPLE SEEM TO KEEP ON HAVING THEM- ALWAYS BEEN THAT WAY-

BUT LOTS O' FOLKS SAY TIMES HAVE CHANGED- SOON PEOPLE WILL USE REASON 'STEAD O' FORCE-

WELL, ACCORDING TO THE NEWS TO DATE, FOLKS WITH DESIRABLE PROPERTY AREN'T HAVING MUCH LUCK KEEPING IT, OR THEIR LIVES, BY JUST USING REASON AGAINST GUNS-

BUT IT'S ALL SO DOG-GONED WRONG-

SURE IT IS- ALWAYS HAS BEEN, ANNIE- AS TO TIMES CHANGING- MAYBE- BUT EXCEPT FOR THE TOOLS OF WAR, THEY HAVEN'T CHANGED MUCH IN FIVE THOUSAND YEARS- PEOPLE HAVEN'T CHANGED ANY-

GEE- THEN WHAT'S THE USE O' TRYIN' TO LEARN MORE OR BE BETTER?

HA! HA! WE HAVE TO LEARN FASTER ALL THE TIME TO KEEP EVEN WITH STYLES--- STYLES IN CLOTHES, IN TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATION--- THINGS LIKE THAT, ANNIE-

AS TO TRYING TO BE BETTER--- IT'S BEING GENEROUS, DECENT, HONEST, COMPASSIONATE AND KIND, THE BEST WE KNOW HOW, THAT KEEPS US HUMAN BEINGS---- NOT BEASTS!

SURE- SANDY'S ALWAYS FOR TH' LITTLE FELLOW-

IN A GENERAL DOG FIGHT, I'D BET ON SANDY CLEANING UP THE LOT--- BUT IN THE MEANTIME, HE'S FOR PEACE AND TOLERANCE--- HA! HA! NOT A BAD PROGRAM FOR A DOG--- OR A NATION, EH?

MAKE IT YOUR PLEASANT RULE 'TO REST NERVES NOW AND THEN!

THE Boston terrier, pictured here at rest, has a complex system of high-keyed, sensitive nerves, just as we have. But when the dog tires, instinct tells him to relax! Often, when we humans are working, worrying intently, we fail to heed this protective urge to rest our nerves. We really invite nerve tension! So make it a rule to rest your nerves regularly—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Enjoy the comfort, the goodness of Camel's milder, ripe-rich tobaccos.
